CAMERA: I salute again with each clasp of my aching shutter every beauteous sign, there is no end to the delight of my quivering shutter I wait daily for it to make its appearance; sometimes pretending to be occupied when it does, letting it pass by unseen

CAMERA: My mind beats on, as if a hail-storm down upon my face, were deftly bashing me apart and then mending me, now opening, now closing my seams like gills and by those gentle wounds letting light and dust fall on the most delicate parts of my inner machine: My mind beats on

OPERATOR: Refresh me, refresh me
