

ijADE CONFERENCE 2015

Sustainability in Creative Arts Education

Friday 6th - Saturday 7th November 2015

The Glasgow School of Art

CALL FOR PAPERS

150 WORD ABSTRACTS TO BE SENT TO: IJADE@CHESTER.AC.UK BY 30TH SEPTEMBER 2015

Sustainability has become a growing focus for many educators and practitioners in the visual arts, with many addressing sustainability from a variety of angles. This year's ijADE conference addresses the subject of sustainability in the context of art and design education and its practices and invites papers that investigate this topic. The following may serve as a guide for intending speakers:

- Understanding sustainability: theory and practice in art and design education and beyond
- The politics of sustainability in art and design education
- The fundamentals of environmental sustainability: mobilising art and design education to address key challenges
- Thinking sustainably: teacher/learner relationships and innovations in curriculum development
- Technology and sustainable practices in art and design education
- Collaboration and the importance of networks in creating sustainable practices
- Interdisciplinarity and creative practice: the role of art/design practitioners and educators in engaging and educating the public in discourses around sustainability
- Critical perspectives on sustainability, globalisation, and art and design education
- Sustainability in contemporary art and culture
- Environmental sustainability: the artist/designer as activist
