

Participatory Design with Young People: exploring the experiential, relational and contextual dimensions of participation

Appendices

Marianne McAra

Appendices submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements of The Glasgow School of Art
for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy

February 2017

© Marianne McAra, 2017

Appendix 1

Literature Review Search Criteria

Search Dates	Search Databases	Search Terms	Sources	Journals and Conference Proceedings
Initially in year one of the study, I searched for all dates to explore the work of both contemporary and seminal authors. Returning to the literature in year three to update it, I searched for contemporary literature published in the last five years (2011-2016).	ACM Digital Library Elsevier Google Scholar JStore Oxford Journals Taylor and Francis Sage Journals Springer The Glasgow School of Art Library The National Archive (UK and Scottish Legislation) The University of Edinburgh Library The University of Glasgow Library Wiley Youtube	Agency Artefacts (Co)Design Design Research Collaboration Empowerment Engagement Ethics Interaction Participation Participatory Design Marginalised Relational Sensitive Contexts Teenagers Tools Visual (Research) Vulnerable Young People Youth	Books (primary and secondary sources)	Design:	Other:
				The Journal of Participatory Design	The Journal of Youth Studies
			Conference Proceedings	CoDesign (Journal)	Visual Studies (Journal)
				Participatory Design: Issues and Concerns	Visual Methodologies (Journal)
			Journal Articles	The International Journal of Art and Design Education	The International Journal of Qualitative Studies in Education
				Scandinavian Journal of Information Systems	The International Journal of Qualitative Studies in Education
			PhD Theses	Design Issues (Journal)	Studies in Art Education
				The Interdisciplinary Journal of Human-Computer Interaction	Qualitative Research (Journal)
			Policy Documents and Reports	Participatory Design Conference (Conference Proceedings 1999-2016)	Contemporary Social Sciences: Journal of the Academy of Social Sciences
				Scandinavian Journal of Information Systems	Children's Geographies
			Study Reports	Design Research Society (Conference Proceedings 2002-2016)	International Society of the Learning Sciences
				Interactions (Journal)	Journal of Education
			Web Publications	Interaction Design and Children (Conference Proceedings 2002-2016)	Qualitative Inquiry (Journal)
				Design Studies (Journal)	Sociological Imagination
			Websites	Graduate Journal of Social Science
				International Conference for Design Education Researchers (Conference Proceedings 2011-2016)	Childhood (Journal)
				The International Journal of Human-computer Studies	The Journal of Educational Research
				European Academy of Design (Conference Proceedings 1995-2016)	Sage Visual Methods Research in Post Compulsory Education
			Films

Appendix 2

Signing this form lets me know that you would like to take part in this project. Please tick the boxes you agree with. Any boxes not ticked will help me tailor the research to suit your needs.

Your name.....

Your signature.....

Date.....

Researcher's name.MARIANNE.MCARA

Signature.....

Date.....

I understand that...

☐ I do NOT have to take part if I do not want to

☐ I do NOT need to answer any question I do not want to

☐ I can leave the research whenever I want without having to give a reason, and know that any data I have provided up until then will not be included in the research

☐ Information I provide will NOT be personally linked to me

☐ I will NOT be identified in the research

I agree...

☐ that during the research, I will be respectful of other people's points of view and behave in a respectful manner

☐ that during the event, I will be audio recorded and maybe quoted in the research and in future research, but will never be identified or personally linked to any quotes

☐ the researcher can use the things I make during the focus group in her research and future research

16MM FILM PROJECT

INFORMATION

AND

CONSENT FORM

Hello

My name is Marianne McAra and I am a design research student from the Glasgow School of Art.

My Project

I am researching young people's identity and what they plan to do when they leave school. I am interested in talking to you about school life, plans of the future, your community and hobbies.

You are invited to...

Take part in a series of workshops where we will explore aspects of your lives through creative making activities to produce a collaborative animated film using direction animation.

What is Direct Animation?

Direct Animation is a really creative and easy technique of animation where you draw, scratch, and paint directly onto 16mm film strips (like the film found in a disposable camera). The technique produces very quick results, where you can also choose what music or sound should be played alongside your film.

What's the point of this research?

Your thoughts, experiences and ideas are really valuable as they teach others about what it is like to be you.

Where will it be taking place?

The workshops will take place in your school over a double school period on Monday mornings.

How long will the event last?

Each workshop will last a minimum of 1 school period and a maximum of 2 school periods.

How will the workshops be recorded?

If everyone agrees, the workshops will be audio recorded.

What will happen after the workshops?

Any information you provide, apart from your age and gender, will never be linked to you. I will be using the information you provide in my research but no one will ever know that you personally said it. However, for your own protection, anything said that puts yourself or anyone else in danger will be reported to your teacher.

Parent/ Guardian Information Sheet

Dear Parent/ Guardian,

My name is Marianne McAra and I am a design PhD student from The Glasgow School of Art. Thank you so much for taking the time to read this project information sheet and consent form.

My Project

I am researching young peoples' identity and what they plan to do when they leave school. I am interested in talking to young people in 3rd and 4th year about school, plans for the future, their communities and hobbies. I would really appreciate your help by allowing your son/ daughter to take part in this research project.

Participants are invited to...

Take part in a series of creative workshops exploring aspects of their lives through creative making activities to produce a collaborative animated film using a method called Direct Animation.

What is Direct Animation?

Direct Animation is a really creative but low-tech form of animation where participants will draw, scratch and paint directly onto 16mm film strips (similar to film used in a disposable camera). The film strips can then be attached together to form a film reel and viewed through a 16mm reel-to-reel projector.

What's the point of this research?

Participants' thoughts, experiences, stories and ideas are really important as they provide far richer and more valuable data. Through creative design activities, the workshops are aimed to be fun and exciting for the participants.

Where will it be taking place?

The workshops will be taking place at  [name of high school omitted], during a double period on Monday mornings.

How long will these workshops last?

Each workshop will last a minimum of one school period (55 minutes) and a maximum of two school periods (1 hour and 50 minutes).

How will these workshops be recorded?

The workshops will be audio recorded. All recordings will be made anonymous.

What will happen with the data after each workshop?

Any information the participants provide, apart from their age and gender, will never be linked to them. I will be using the information in my research but no one will ever know who personally said anything. Places, events, and any other individuals mentioned will also be made anonymous.

A teacher will be present at all times during the research. I have been Disclosure Scotland vetted. For the protection and wellbeing of the participants and myself, anything said that is deemed inappropriate or places the participants at risk of danger to themselves or/ by others, will be reported to their teacher. This research is strictly follow The Glasgow School of Art's ethical code of conduct.

Parent/ Guardian Consent Form

Signing this form lets me know that you are allowing the young person in your care to participant in this research. Please tick the box agree with. Any boxes not will ticked will help me tailor the research to your preferences. If you have any questions or would like more information please get in contact: m.mcara1@gsa.ac.uk

I understand that...

- ☐ Participants do NOT have to take part in they do not want to
- ☐ Participants can leave the research whenever they want without having to give a reason and know that any data they have provided up until that point will not be included in the research
- ☐ Information participants provide will NOT be personally linked to them
- ☐ Participants will NOT be identified in the research

I agree...

- ☐ that during the research, participants must be respectful of other people's points of view and behave in a respectful manor.
- ☐ that during the workshops, participants will be audio recorded and many be quoted in the research and in future research, but will be never be identified or personally linked to any quotes
- ☐ the research (Marianne McAra) can use the things the participants make in the workshops in the research and in future research

I consent on the behalf on....

Name (BLOCK CAPS).....to take part in this research.

Your Name (BLOCK CAPS).....

Signature.....

Date.....

Research Student.....

Signature.....

Date.....

Signing this form lets me know that you would like to take part in this project. Please tick the boxes you agree with. Any boxes not ticked will help me tailor the research to suit your needs.

Your name.....

Your signature.....

Date.....

Researcher’s name.MARIANNE.MCARA

Signature.....

Date.....

I understand that...

☐ I do NOT have to take part if I do not want to

☐ I do NOT need to answer any question I do not want to

☐ I can leave the research whenever I want without having to give a reason, and know that any data I have provided up until then will not be included in the research

☐ Information I provide will NOT be personally linked to me

☐ I will NOT be identified in the research

I agree...

☐ that during the research, I will be respectful of other people’s points of view and behave in a respectful manner

☐ that during the event, I will be audio recorded and maybe quoted in the research and in future research, but will never be identified or personally linked to any quotes

☐ the researcher can use the things I make during the focus group in her research and future research

INTERVIEW

INFORMATION

AND

CONSENT FORM

Hello

My name is Marianne McAra and I am a design research student from the Glasgow School of Art.

My Project

I am researching young people’s identity and what they plan to do when they leave school. I am interested in talking to you about school life, plans of the future, your community and hobbies.

You are invited to...

Take part in an interview with your classmates.

What sort of questions will I be asked?

You don’t have to answer any questions you don’t want to. We will have an informal conversation about your thoughts on school and education, and your plans for the future. You will be in either small groups or with one of your other classmates. You can choose who you would like to be interviewed with.

What’s the point of this research?

Your thoughts, experiences and ideas are really valuable as they teach others about what it is like to be you.

Where will it be taking place?

This interview will be taking place in your school over a double period in Monday mornings.

How long will the event last?

The interview will last a minimum of 1 school period and last a maximum of 2 school periods.

How will the event be recorded?

If everyone agrees, I will record the interview with an audio recorder.

What will happen after the interview?

Any information you provide, apart from your age and gender, will never be linked to you. I will be using the information you provide in my research but no one will ever know that you personally said it. However, for your own protection, anything said that puts yourself or anyone else in danger will be reported to your teacher.

Parent/ Guardian Information Sheet

Dear Parent/Guardian,

My name is Marianne McAra and I am a design PhD research student from the Glasgow School of Art. Thank you so much for taking the time to read this project information sheet and consent form.

My Research

I am researching young people's identity and what they plan to do when they leave school. I am interested in talking to young people in 3rd and 4th year about their experiences of school and their plans for what they want to do when they leave. I would really appreciate your help by allowing your son/daughter to take part in this research project.

Participants are invited to...

Take part in an interview. The interview will be in pairs or in a small group of their classmates and is really just an informal conversation. During the interview, there will be small creative tasks including drawing and model making. A teacher will be present in all interviews.

What's the point of this research?

Participants' thoughts, experiences, stories and ideas are really important as they provide far richer and more valuable data. Through the use of creative activities, the interviews are aimed to be fun and interesting for the participants and a safe and confidential space to express themselves.

Where will it be taking place?

The interviews will be taking place in at  [name of school omitted] school during class time.

How long will the interview last?

Each interview will last no longer than one school period (55 minutes)

How will the interview be recorded?

The interview will be recorded using audio recorders. All recordings will be made anonymous so no one will ever be identified or linked to what was recorded.

What will happen with the data after the interview?

Any information the participants provide, apart from their age and gender, will never be linked to them. I will be using the information in my research but no one will ever know that individuals personally said it. Places, events and any other individuals mentioned will also be made anonymous.

A teacher will be present at all times during this research. I have been Disclosure Scotland vetted.

For the protection and wellbeing of the participants and the researcher, anything said that is deemed inappropriate or places participants at risk of danger to themselves or by others, will be reported to their teacher. This research is strictly following Glasgow School of Art's ethical code of conduct.

Parent/ Guardian Consent Form

Signing this form lets me know that you are allowing the young person in your care to participant in this research. Please tick the box agree with. Any boxes not will ticked will help me tailor the research to your preferences. If you have any questions or would like more information please get in contact: m.mcara1@gsa.ac.uk

I understand that...

- ☐ Participants do NOT have to take part in they do not want to
- ☐ Participants can leave the research whenever they want without having to give a reason and know that any data they have provided up until that point will not be included in the research
- ☐ Information participants provide will NOT be personally linked to them
- ☐ Participants will NOT be identified in the research

I agree...

- ☐ that during the research, participants must be respectful of other people's points of view and behave in a respectful manor.
- ☐ that during the interviews, participants will be audio recorded and many be quoted in the research and in future research, but will be never be identified or personally linked to any quotes

I consent on the behalf on....

Name (BLOCK CAPS).....to take part in this research.

Your Name (BLOCK CAPS).....

Signature.....

Date.....

Research Student.....

Signature.....

Date.....

Professional Participant Information Sheet

Hello

My name is Marianne McAra and I am a design PhD research student from the Glasgow School of Art. Thank you so much for taking the time to read this project information sheet and consent form.

My Research

I am researching young people's identity and what they plan to do when they leave school. I am interested in talking to you about your experiences of working with young people.

Participants are invited to...

Take part in an interview.

What's the point of this research?

Participants' thoughts, experiences, stories and ideas are really valuable as they provide far richer and more authentic data in socially conscious research. The interview will give you a chance to voice your professional perspective and experiences.

Where will it be taking place?

The interviews will be taking place in at  [name of school omitted] at a time of your convenience.

How long will the interview last?

Each interview will last no longer than one school period (55 minutes)

How will the interview be recorded?

The interview will be recorded using audio recorders and later transcribed by the researcher. All the recordings will be made anonymous so no one will ever be identified or linked to what was recorded.

What will happen with the data after the interview?

Insights from the interview will be used in the researcher's PhD thesis. On occasions the researcher quote something that you have said. Any quote or insight used will always be made anonymous and never directly linked to any individuals, events, or places. The only information that will be reported is your professional status at the school, and your age and gender. Any places, events and any other individuals out with the research mentioned will also be made anonymous.

For the protection and wellbeing of the participants and the researcher, anything said that is deemed inappropriate or places participants at risk of danger to themselves or/by others, will be reported to the Head Teacher and/or the police. This research is strictly following Glasgow School of Art's ethical code of conduct.

Professional Participant Consent Form

Signing this form lets me know that you are consenting to participating in this research. Please tick the box agree with. Any boxes not ticked will help me tailor the research to your preferences. If you have any questions or would like more information please get in contact: m.mcara1@gsa.ac.uk

I understand that...

- ☐ I do NOT have to take part if I do not want to
- ☐ I can leave the research whenever I want without having to give a reason and know that any data I have provided up until that point will not be included in the research
- ☐ Information I provide will NOT be personally linked to me
- ☐ I will NOT be identified in the research
- ☐ I do NOT have to answer any questions that I do not want to

I agree...

- ☐ that during the interviews, I will be audio recorded and may be quoted in the research and in future research, but will be never be identified or personally linked to any quotes

I consent on the behalf on....

Name (BLOCK CAPS).....to take part in this research.

Your Name (BLOCK CAPS).....

Signature.....

Date.....

Research Student.....

Signature.....

Date.....

Signing this form lets me know that you would like to take part in this project. Please tick the boxes you agree with. Any boxes not ticked will help me tailor the research to suit your needs.

Your name.....

Your signature.....

Date.....

Researcher's name.MARIANNE.MCARA

Signature.....

Date.....

I understand that...

☐ I do NOT have to take part if I do not want to

☐ I do NOT need to answer any question I do not want to

☐ I can leave the research whenever I want without having to give a reason, and know that any data I have provided up until then will not be included in the research

☐ Information I provide will NOT be personally linked to me

☐ I will NOT be identified in the research

I agree...

☐ that during the research, I will be respectful of other people's points of view and behave in a respectful manner

☐ that during the event, I will be audio recorded and maybe quoted in the research and in future research, but will never be identified or personally linked to any quotes

☐ the researcher can use the things I make during the focus group in her research and future research

ACTIVITY-BASED
FOCUS GROUP

INFORMATION

AND

CONSENT FORM

Hello

My name is Marianne McAra and I am a design research student from the Glasgow School of Art.

My Project

I am researching young people's identity and what they plan to do when they leave school. I am interested in talking to you about school life, plans of the future, your community and hobbies.

You are invited to...

Take part in an group discussion with your classmates, where we will reflect on your experiences of being part of the XL Club through a creative making activity.

What sort of questions will I be asked?

During the focus group, you'll be asked to reflect on your time in the XL Club and talk about your experiences and achievements as a club member. You don't have to answer any questions you don't want to. And remember that there are no right or wrong answers.

What's the point of this research?

Your thoughts, experiences and ideas are really valuable as they teach others about what it is like to be you.

Where will it be taking place?

The focus group will be taking place in your school over a double school period on Tuesday 5th May in the morning.

How long will the focus group last?

The focus group will last a minimum of 1 school period and last a maximum of 2 school periods.

How will the focus group be recorded?

If everyone agrees, I will record the focus group with an audio recorder.

What will happen after the interview?

Any information you provide, apart from your age and gender, will never be linked to you. I will be using the information you provide in my research but no one will ever know that you personally said it. However, for your own protection, anything said that puts yourself or anyone else in danger will be reported to your teacher.

Parent/ Guardian Information Sheet

Dear Parent/Guardian,

My name is Marianne McAra and I am a design PhD research student from the Glasgow School of Art. Thank you so much for taking the time to read this project information sheet and consent form.

My Research

I am researching young people's identity and what they plan to do when they leave school. I am interested in talking to young people in 3rd and 4th year about their experiences of school and their plans for what they want to do when they leave. I would really appreciate your help by allowing your son/daughter to take part in this research project.

Participants are invited to...

Take part in an activity-based focus group. The focus group will be in pairs or in a small group of their classmates and is really just an informal conversation. During the interview, there will be small creative tasks including drawing and model making. A teacher will be present in all interviews.

What's the point of this research?

Participants' thoughts, experiences, stories and ideas are really important as they provide far richer and more valuable data. Through the use of creative activities, the interviews are aimed to be fun and interesting for the participants and a safe and confidential space to express themselves.

Where will it be taking place?

The focus group will be taking place in at  [name of school omitted] school during class time.

How long will the focus group last?

The focus group will last no longer than two school periods (1 hour and 50 minutes)

How will the focus group be recorded?

The interview will be recorded using audio recorders. All recordings will be made anonymous so no one will ever be identified or linked to what was recorded.

What will happen with the data after the focus group?

Any information the participants provide, apart from their age and gender, will never be linked to them. I will be using the information in my research but no one will ever know that individuals personally said it. Places, events and any other individuals mentioned will also be made anonymous.

A teacher will be present at all times during this research. I have been Disclosure Scotland vetted.

For the protection and wellbeing of the participants and the researcher, anything said that is deemed inappropriate or places participants at risk of danger to themselves or/by others, will be reported to their teacher. This research is strictly following Glasgow School of Art's ethical code of conduct.

Parent/ Guardian Consent Form

Signing this form lets me know that you are allowing the young person in your care to participant in this research. Please tick the box agree with. Any boxes not will ticked will help me tailor the research to your preferences. If you have any questions or would like more information please get in contact: m.mcara1@gsa.ac.uk

I understand that...

- ☐ Participants do NOT have to take part in they do not want to
- ☐ Participants can leave the research whenever they want without having to give a reason and know that any data they have provided up until that point will not be included in the research
- ☐ Information participants provide will NOT be personally linked to them
- ☐ Participants will NOT be identified in the research

I agree...

- ☐ that during the research, participants must be respectful of other people's points of view and behave in a respectful manor.
- ☐ that during the focus groups, participants will be audio recorded and many be quoted in the research and in future research, but will be never be identified or personally linked to any quotes
- ☐ the research (Marianne McAra) can use the things the participants makein the workshops in the research and in future research

I consent on the behalf on....

Name (BLOCK CAPS).....to take part in this research.

Your Name (BLOCK CAPS).....

Signature.....

Date.....

Research Student.....

Signiture.....

Date.....

Signing this form lets me know that you would like to take part in this project. Please tick the boxes you agree with. Any boxes not ticked will help me tailor the research to suit your needs.

Your name.....

Your signature.....

Date.....

Researcher's name.MARIANNE.MCARA

Signature.....

Date.....

I understand that...

☐ I do NOT have to take part if I do not want to

☐ I do NOT need to answer any question I do not want to

☐ I can leave the research whenever I want without having to give a reason, and know that any data I have provided up until then will not be included in the research

☐ Information I provide will NOT be personally linked to me

☐ I will NOT be identified in the research

I agree...

☐ that during the research, I will be respectful of other people's points of view and behave in a respectful manner

☐ that during the event, I will be audio recorded and maybe quoted in the research and in future research, but will never be identified or personally linked to any quotes

☐ the researcher can use the things I make during the focus group in her research and future research

EVALUATION EVENT

INFORMATION

AND

CONSENT FORM

Hello

My name is Marianne McAra and I am a design research student from the Glasgow School of Art.

My Project

I am researching young people's identity and what they plan to do when they leave school. I am interested in talking to you about school life, plans of the future, your community and hobbies.

You are invited to...

Take part in a group discussion with your classmates, where we will reflect on your experiences taking part in this research project.

What sort of questions will I be asked?

You don't have to answer any questions you don't want to. During this discussion, we will be talking about your experiences taking part in this research. Your feedback is really important as it lets me know what you enjoyed and how to improve it, so please be honest and know that there are no right or wrong answers.

What's the point of this research?

Your thoughts, experiences and ideas are really valuable as they teach others about what it is like to be you.

Where will it be taking place?

This event will be taking place in your school over a double period on Friday 29th April in the morning.

How long will the event last?

This event will last a minimum of 1 school period and a maximum of 2 school periods.

How will the event be recorded?

If everyone agrees, the event will be recorded with an audio recorder.

What will happen after the event?

Any information you provide, apart from your age and gender, will never be linked to you. I will be using the information you provide in my research but no one will ever know that you personally said it. However, for your own protection, anything said that puts yourself or anyone else in danger will be reported to your teacher.

Service and Support Contact Sheet

Here are some details of organisations you can contact if you want to talk someone about a problem or get advice:

National Helplines

Childline: 0800 1111

Samaritans: 0845 7 909090

Childwatch: 01482325552

Victim Support: 0845 6039213

Quarriors: www.quarriors.org.uk

Breathing Space Scotland: 0800 838687

Health

The Youth Health Service: 0141 2765202

LGBT Youth Scotland: 0141 552 7425

Local Services:

Police - Family Protection: 0141 532 300

Social Care Direct: 0141 287 0555

Out of Hours Social Work Services: 0800 811 505

Local Citizen's Advice Bureau: 0141 552 5556

Antisocial Behaviour Hotline: 0800 027 3901

Crimestoppers: 0800 555 1111

Youth Services

YoungScot: www.youngscot.org

YoungScot Law Line: 0808 801 0801

The Lowdown: www.getthelowdown.co.uk

Appendix 3

Participant Interview Topic Guide and Prompts

How do you think most young people feel about going to high school?

What do you think are the problems, if any, a young person may face at high school?

Do you think a young person's behaviour changes throughout their time at high school? If so, in what sort of ways?

What do you think influences young people's behaviour? Do you think your friends influence how you behaviour? Both in a good and bad way?

At this school, are there certain subjects where pupils behaviour better and worse? Has it got anything to do with the type of lesson? Or a particular teacher? Or friendship group?

Do you think young people may misbehave on purpose, even though they know they might get in trouble for it?

What do teachers do when this happens?

Are there certain teachers you think young people trust more than others at high school? If yes, why do you think this is?

What kind of class do you prefer? The more arty ones or more academic ones like math and science? Why? Are there certain classes you go to where you get more freedom than others? Being able to experiment?

What kind of activities help you learn more/ make you enjoy the lesson more? Motivate you? Are there particular ways of learning you prefer? What keeps you determined?

Do you think that young people, even though they are really good at something or have the ability to do something, sometimes pretend not to be good at it? If so, why do you think people act like this?

So what subjects do you think you are good at? Have there ever been times where, even though you know you are good at something, you pretend not to be? Can you remember seeing anyone you know do this? Why do you think this is? Is it 'cool' to be seen by your friends as good at a subject? Do you think being good at school has anything to do with the people you are friends with?

When are the times when you feel proud? When do you feel a sense of achievement? Is it when a teacher says how well you have done or when your friends have said anything? Or your family?

Why did you choose to become part of the XL Club? / How did you become part of the XL Club?

What do you think about being in the XL Club?

What you do think other people think about the XL Club?

How do you think the XL Club has helped you, if at all? Do you think it has helped you in your other subjects?

What do you think young people most look forward to when leaving school? What do you think young people are most scared or worried about?

Where do you see your ideal self by the time you're aged 25?

Is that different at all from what you think might happen? Are there any barriers you can predict at this stage?

What do you think are the main influences on a young person's future? Their career? Their friends/family? How well they did at school or college?

How responsible do you feel for your future?

How do you think school affects who you become as an adult? Your future choices? Are friends a big influence? Friends inside or outside of school? Family?

Professional Participant Interview Topic Guide and Prompts

How do you think most young people feel about going to high school?

What do you think are the problems, if any, a young person may face at high school?

Do you think a young person's behaviour changes throughout their time at high school?

What do you think influences young people's behaviour? Do friends have an influence on a young person's behaviour? Positively? Negatively?

At this school, are there certain subjects where pupil's behaviour changes? Positivity? Negatively? Does the type of lesson have any effects? Particular teachers? Presence of friendship groups?

Could young people purposely misbehave even if they know they could get in trouble?

Are there certain teachers you think young people trust more than others at high school? If yes, why do you think that is?

What do young people look for in a teacher? Have you felt roles not fulfilled outside of school have been substituted by adults in school? Are these assumed roles teachers are expected to fulfil? There is the attachment teacher here? Can you tell me more about this role?

What kind of classes do you think young people prefer? Learning orientations? Are there classes where pupils have more freedom/ opportunities to experiment?

What kind of activities do you think motivate young people to learn?

How long has the XL Club been going at this school? Have you seen a difference in the school over all from when the club and the Curriculum for Excellence was introduced?

What are the criteria for nominating a young person to join the XL Club? What is your select process during the interviews?

What do you think other pupils, outside of the XL Club think about the XL Club?

What do you think young people most look forward to when leaving school?

What do you think young people care most or worried about? Have pupils who have left early ever regress - return to school?

When it comes to make the decision to leave or stay on at school - the young person's, the family, teachers?

What do you think are the main influences on a young person's future? Choice/ direct in careers? Their friends? Family members?

How responsible do you think young people feel for about their future beyond compulsory education?

Appendix 4

Key

Symbol
[...]	pauses or interruptions in conversation flow
	omitting a recognisable name/ place/ work
[]	additional information
{ }	time reference in relation to audio recording basic premise codes nascent themes compound themes
	interview nodes and gestures in various colours for different voices

Scots Colloquialisms

Scots Colloquialism	Translation
tae	to
dae	do wi	with
yur	your
aye	yes
aw	all
hund	hand
cannie	can't fra	from
fur	for naw	no
ma	my
wance	once

Entry One: 13/3/14 (55 minutes)Scrap Paper

Observation of a class completing a task for their Youth

Achievement Award; a diary of visiting a Velodrome. Present was Miss. Marsh and Maddy (the classroom youth worker). My presence was announced by Miss. Marsh, who introduced me as a student of the 'School of Art' (wrongly) studying art.

The pupils were tasked with composing a diary style piece of reflective writing on the computer about their experience of visiting a local Velodrome. Miss. Marsh provided the pupils with three clear instructions as to how to complete this task, a checklist of which was written up on the white board. The pupils were required to write a reflective commentary, provide three pictures, and to place captions next to the picture explaining their relevance. All of this could be spread over one to two A4 pages – alluding to a fairly short required word count. These documents were then to be placed in a plastic folder and stored in personal ring binders. I saw the large cardboard box of ring binders on a desk, each with a Youth Achievement Award front cover. Whilst the pupils engaged in this activity, Miss.

Marsh and Maddy encouraged me to go round the room offering assistance.

The first pupil I spoke with was Catherine, who was later described by Miss. Marsh as lacking a great deal of confidence. Miss. Marsh explained to me after the class during the class trip to velodrome,

Catherine refused to take part, and chose to sit out and watch her lack of self-belief? in own ability?

peers on the bikes.

Attempting a conversation with Mat and Sam proved unsuccessful.

I initiated dialogue through making positive comments towards their work, which I could view on the screens as I stood behind them looking over their shoulders. Both chose to ignore me. This led me to quickly change tactics and physically position myself at their level by sitting down at an available chair next to another pupil. Although hesitant at first, a fragile conversation soon pursued as between

Sean and I after I enthusiastically encouraged him to show me his diary entry. His piece of reflective writing was sparse, containing two authoritative prescribed presentation

social protection

self - exclusion social strategy

deny self of participation physically

mediating power

self-effacing

engagement
strategy

reflection
-inaction

engagement
strategy

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
reflection -in- action echoing the teacher attempting to reaffirm/ empower my reflection	containing two sentences. He described the entire velodrome experience as 'OK'. I probed for further details, asking him about the bike, the speed he went at, how much he felt he had improved. His apathetic responses were one-word answers. Registering his resistance, I quickly diverted attention away from his writing to the large collection of images he had taken from the Internet, each one followed by large sections of html coding. Reminding him that he only required three images, I assisted him in deleting the coding as he indicated which images out of the collection he wanted to keep. Throughout the session both Miss. Marsh and Maddy was consistently alert and vigilant to any misbehaviour. There was a clear level of control. Miss. Marsh insisted the documents be completed and printed within the short time frame of the period. As the pupils started printing out their finished documents, the printer began to falter, smudging ink near the bottom of each page. As the supply of white A4 paper ran out, Miss. Marsh directed Hailey to load the printer with light green paper, which I saw was scattered in what appeared to be a pile of recycled scrap paper. As she had designed her document with a bright red background, Hailey was anxious to use the green paper. When it printed out, I encouraged her it looked 'cool', hoping this would reassure her. I found it intriguing that, for the purposes of the Youth Achievement Award ring binder, Miss. Marsh (perhaps unwittingly) found it adequate for the pupils to print out an entry on scrap paper, the appearance additionally spoiled by the distortion of the ink at the bottom of each page. I question what kind of message this sends out, when the pupils are encouraged to produce reflective and considered pieces of work, the value of which completely undermined when instructed to print using materials which are considered 'scrap'. Could such actions, or a series of such actions, instigated by the Miss. Marsh or Maddy, in turn be internalized by the pupils? Resorting to the use of scrap paper could be connotative of how Miss. Marsh really views the quality and level of the pupils' work. Notions of unimportance and worthlessness may then be implicitly imbued in the pupil's own attitudes towards work when witnessing their teacher's actions, indicative of her attitude, of devaluation (through choosing to print on scrap paper with a faulty	struggles to reflect authoritative power arbitrary goals sabotage authority inadvertently sabotage sabotage internalised personified sabotage indicative of perception	becoming/ enacting these perceptions authority under pressure negative influence of authority impact of authority in self realisation	internalising external perceptions	printer). Could experiencing such notions over time could cause an adjustment in the pupil's attitudes toward their work and indeed themselves? These entries into their ring binders, sabotaged by the choices and actions of someone in a position of power, could be cementing these notions.	my reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	(as she views them). However, in Hailey’s case, it was clear that her male peers would not reciprocate her attempts at integration. When Hailey would offer up suggestions, she was met in many cases by mockery and ridicule (perhaps being quiet and reserved was Catherine’s strategy to avoid this unwanted attention?). In attempts to over come this, Hailey abandoned her intellectual capability, suggesting futile responses as a means of gaining recognition through being funny. The first task of this second section of the day was to democratically decided on a team name. Immediately this proved a difficult task for the pupils. Hailey responded to this task through repeatedly saying ‘kill me now, kill me now’. I noticed how, just after she said this remark, loud enough for the entire table to hear, she would look in my direction. I felt that this performance of vocally and physically (through placing her head in her hands and running her hands stressfully through her hair) demonstrating statements of resistance to a task, which she perhaps viewed as immature and patronising, was not just for her male peers but also for me. It was during this session of observation that I began to become acutely aware of my presence and dual identity as a young, or in the eyes of the pupils older, female and as an ‘arty’ person from the GSA, having an affect on the pupils and the situation. As an older female presence, she possibly felt that I might judge her as immature if she took part in this task. Perhaps through taking part in such tasks she runs the risk of scarifying her social creditably, which is already visibly in a state of flux being a female within a male dominated class. After repeating this statement again when confronted by Miss. Marsh, Hailey was then asked to leave the workshop setting. However, through being sent outside, Hailey had achieved the ultimate level of validation for her purposefully rebellious behaviour in front of her male peer audience, showing her to be fearless to the hegemonic power of Miss. Marsh. This non conformist attitude and behaviour was repeated in the second task of the workshop where the pupils had to each write on a piece of paper values that they believe they could contribute to the team, placing these inside blown up balloons. So to undermine a task again, Hailey wrote that she was good at ‘sleeping’ and ‘being lazy’. Again, she appeared to take great pride in her rebellion when I read out her paper to the group.	social rejection self - exclusion social strategy self - sacrificing seeking attention/ influence of adults/ those viewed as authority social faux pas seeking to be reprimanded social strategy social empowerment	manipulating projected self through internalising perceived self sacrificial strategy for social empowerment		negotiation of social power regaining autonomy harnessing agency	The male pupils, even though greater in numbers, generally displayed fairly homogeneous behaviours, with two pupils in particular, David and Joe, vying for the position of leader. For the majority of the workshop, the majority of the male pupils displayed apathetic and passive attitudes towards the tasks. This disinterest, in many cases displayed as boredom, was perhaps because of the subject matter, the types of activities they were required to complete, or as self protection from ridicule (which they had previously displayed towards Hailey). It was here that I noticed the table size was harnessed to fuel such behaviour, where Miss. Maddy and Maddy were not physically able to manoeuvre round to keep control. The male participants entered into private conversations and used the workshop resources to make miniature goals and began playing table football. On two separate occasions Miss. Marsh and Maddy both attempted to reprimand the pupils through raising their voices and speaking with authority. In the second instance where the Miss. Marsh attempted to regain control, she requested that all the pupils leave the room. We all left the room and sat down in the corridor where there were two facing benches. Miss. Marsh explained the reason why we left the room was because it was becoming too noisy and everyone was talking over each other. The work that proceeded in the corridor proved to be the most productive, with many of pupils (others still resisting) participating in dialogue surrounding the project. I suggested documenting some of what was being discussed, getting a pen and a large sheet of paper. At this point, I consciously sat down on the ground, physically positioning myself lower than that of the pupils in an attempt to subvert possible perceptions of authority the pupils may have equated with my presence. Prior to leaving the room, the group was asked to select, as a team, an area they would like to focus the project on, based on topics covered in the presentation videos. Unable to reach a democratic majority vote (as many of the pupils refused to take part in a vote) we had originally agreed to explore the astronaut’s experience with food. As the teacher and I began a conversation with the group for ideas, Hailey, critical of the topic’s limitations in the context of the project, advised we change to another area, suggesting we look at how astronauts sleep. As this was met with	attempting to mobilise physical rebalance of power

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
attempting to reaffirm/empower attempting to reaffirm/empower my reflection	was met with more of a group consensus with little confrontation, Hailey, possibly feeling empowered by the group's positive reaction, began to then suggest possible applications for the 3D printer. In order to capture and nurture this glimpse of enthusiasm towards the task, I suggested she come and sit down next to me on the floor where we could write her ideas down. Through further fleeting one-to-one dialogues, as I wanted to also give the other pupils similar attention and affirmation, Hailey continued to reflectively refine her idea. So to encourage her, I began to draw what she was verbally describing. She began talking through my sketch, pointing at sections as she described them. Throughout this dialogue, I notice Mat sitting beside her was eager to take part, interrupting to add to her ideas. Hailey's sense of empowerment may have been confirmed in this instance of Mat validating her idea, but which was certainly substantiated when Miss. Marsh praised her for the contribution, saying she had 'redeemed' herself from her previous negative behaviour. Reflecting on day's participatory workshop, I felt that the tasks were too abstract for the pupils to effectively engage with. Much of what was discussed was attempting to promote teamwork, however the physicality of the large table (and the set up of the room in general) did not foster democratic conversation, leaving the pupils either voiceless; dominating the conversation; or deviant. After it had been established what topic the group intended on exploring (at this stage it was food) and what values the individual pupils could bring to the team, the next task was the delegate roles. As a group, the pupils were required to nominate themselves for designated roles. There were no instructions from the workshop host as to what the types of role that would be required, nor any further guidance provided from the workshop's facilitators. This task was by far the most vague and ambiguous, leaving Miss. Marsh and Maddy to fill in the gaps with roles they presumed would be appropriate to the activities in the project. However, this activity-orientated delegation would most likely prove fruitless as individuals were selecting roles contained in stages much later on in the project (such as the CAD stage or presenting the final outcome), which would mean they would have nothing to do for the duration of the other activities. It appeared a fairly tenuous and meaningless task, particularly as the pupils were	confidence gleaned through social acceptance empowering impact of authority unsupported ambiguously required mobilise superficial	sources of empowerment dual effects of adult figures authority lower satisfaction	participating in public sacrificial strategy for social empowerment self sacrificing through intimidation	becoming easily distracted and bored, leading Miss. Marsh to have to coerce particular pupils into roles for the sake of the task. After each task, the speaker asked for everyone's attention, going round each school table requesting a pupil to feedback their group's findings to the room. I noticed from the outset how much older the other school pupils in the room appeared, which, for S3 pupils (between the ages of 14-15) might have been an intimidating prospect (although none of the pupils explicitly reported it). When it came to our table, nobody (including Miss. Marsh and Maddy) looked prepared to report back, particularly to such a large audience. Perhaps in an attempt to intuitively ingratiate myself with the pupils and the teacher and youth worker, I feed back to the room, as confidently as I could, a couple of the points we had discussed. Some of the workshop tools contributed to moments of chaos, where balloons were being blown up and popped using the pins of their name badges, the remains of which thrown at each other. In general, there was too much time dedicated to each task, leaving the pupils, as well as Miss. Marsh and Maddy, unsure of how to use the time and the depth of what needed to be produced. In addition, there were no breaks for the entire morning, which lasted approximately three hours and it was never made clear exactly what the format of the day would be in terms of activities and durations. There a lack of clarity and simplicity in task instructions, as well as in explaining their purpose, leading to confusion as to what the pupils were required to produce, and frustration in the teacher and youth worker. Near the end of the workshop, each school was designated two graduate students from the university who were experienced in space engineering and had previously worked with similar design briefs. The two students managed to engage with the pupils to a certain degree during the brainstorming activity about their previous experiences, however it transpired that both have very little logistical knowledge, when asked by the teacher, as to how this project was practically going to operate in terms of how and when pupils would learn the CAD software, use the 3D printer, and present back their final outputs. Again this just confirmed the lack of organization and chaos apparent throughout this trip, leaving Miss. Marsh and Maddy confused and frustrated, which when viewed by the pupils	strategy for acceptance

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	undermined their authority, as well as devalued the entire project - appearing that not even the experts are invested in it enough to be able to answer simple questions. Similar to use of scrap paper in the first observation session, I question how such degrees of divestment is internalised by the pupils.	internalising ambiguity and devaluing	impact of authority in self realisation			Entry Three: 27/3/14 (55 minutes) Scrapping for Status; corridor conflicts Reflecting on today’s class, initially I did not feel that any real significant incident occurred. Key dates for the project were instructed by Miss. Marsh and copied down by the pupils from the white board. Miss. Marsh and I attempted to open up a group brainstorm about deciding how to plan the construction of prototypes for the space project, and with what materials. However, once agreed that we would sculpt models from clay, one significant comment, off the cuff, was made. I was asked by Miss. Marsh in front of the class if I thought this was going to be a good idea to which I enthusiastically replied that I though it would be. To this, David sitting close by turned in his chair and retorted ‘...aye but its us that’s doing it’, implying that, because it is this particular class that is carrying out the activity, that it was not going to be successful – or that they were are ready at a disadvantage. Reflecting on this one particular comment, I question again what is means to the pupils to be apart of this class. How do they view themselves and (perhaps more importantly in the pupils’ eyes) how do they think other peers outside of the class perceive them? How does being in such a class, which is not a part of the traditional curriculum, affect their self-esteem (paradoxical when, as seen in the example of the very shy quiet female, the course is meant to build confidence)? However, I was neglecting a major event that took place prior to class, cautious of interrogating its significance as it happen out with, what has become to feel like, the microcosm of the classroom setting. However, I believe it purposeful in relation to understanding the everyday life worlds of these pupils at the school, a milestone event for me in terms of further discerning how power struggles, roles and behaviours are played out. This incidence centres on Hailey, who in the previous observational session (20/3/14) displayed a great deal of attention seeking behaviour. The corridor where this incidence took place is narrow with classrooms on either sides, in some cases causing congestion as pupils are required to form an orderly queue awaiting their teachers arrival. Miss. Marsh fetched me from reception and we

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	made the journey up to the classroom where we found the pupils waiting along the side of the wall, some of who were in conversation with each other. Maddy was also present by the door. As the door was locked, Miss. Marsh left the scene to locate the key. At this point, Hailey made her way down the corridor. I could see that beneath her confident exterior, she was agitated. Further down the corridor I could hear a group of teenage girls shouting. They appeared to be around a similar age, and were directing their attention and efforts towards Hailey. Unable to discern exactly the context, issue or circumstance which this confrontation had escalated from, I watched as Hailey, who at this point was standing next to me by the door to the classroom, turn to face the group of girls. Her response of 'com'on then!' was said whilst smiling and laughing to appear fearless in this public arena of the corridor. So to protect their own status in front of an audience of peers, a girl belonging to the group retaliated through a threat of physical violence: ' I'll wipe that smile off your fucking face!'. During this incidence, I was acutely aware of my presence, not as a researcher but as an adult. This conflict was unfolding right before me and I felt unable to exert any power to put a stop to it. As Hailey was a part of my participant group, perhaps I felt a bias towards her, as immediately my sympathies were with her as a victim, vulnerable, and isolated. Some of this was later confirmed to me by the male pupil's descriptions of her. The period of time between breaks and classes, as neither one thing nor the other, creates a melting pot of different friendship and year groups, interaction taking place mostly in these relatively narrow corridor spaces where an almost traffic like system has been adopted, inevitably resulting in collisions as witnessed. Lasting approximately five minutes, beginning as soon as the bell rings, this time, and space, is reclaimed by the pupils as their own. The physicality of traveling from one class to the next, in most cases out with the surveillance of teachers, presents a site and fleeting opportunities for communication, negotiations and fighting (both metaphorically and physically) to ensue. In the case of what occurred in the corridor during this visit, the female pupils' confrontation, although highly charged, was very quickly put on hold upon sighting the return of Miss. Marsh. Hailey entered the	performing social empowerment battling for social status/ kudos opportunity seized to regain autonomy	strategy for social empowerment	impact of authority in self realisation authority indifferent authority legitimising social condemning impact/ influence of authority	classroom with us and put her bag down, exclaiming that her pastoral care teacher would '...want to know about this!' and then left the room. Miss. Marsh, obviously with experience becoming sanitized to such behaviour, passively allowed Hailey to leave to the classroom without inquiring as to what had just occurred. A couple of moments later, Miss. Marsh had to leave the room, leaving the Maddy in charge who allowed the pupils to quietly talk amongst themselves. During this time, I listened as Maddy began to engage in conversation with David, who which she was sitting nearby, probing what had just happened in the corridor. Several of the other male pupils, Joe, Sam, Dan and Stewart, joined in the conversation, with Sam purposefully moving his chair across the room to be physically more involved in the dialogue. These male pupils, who previously Hailey was attempting to ingratiate herself with, were clearly relishing the opportunity to openly discuss their negative feelings towards her, suggesting that 'she has no friends' and that 'nobody likes her'. Upon listening to their dialogue, I began reflecting on previous incidences where such animosity towards her was not yet known. It was clear that Hailey did not have the loyalty of the male pupils in this class, and that, even through attempting to ingratiate herself through embodying and physically performing her tomboy identity, none of the male pupils offered her any positive recognition for her efforts.	my own self reflection my reflection my reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Entry Four: 2/4/14 (1 hour and 50 minutes) Passing over the Reins During this session, the pupils were tasked with making prototypes for the youth achievement award space project. The idea, offered by Mat (which built upon Hailey’s suggestions and that had been agreed upon), was to create small 3D portraits of themselves that would be representative of astronauts’ family member’s heads that would each have a voice box inside with a recorded message. Mat explained that such devices could be printed from the 3D printer on board the space station and used to comfort astronauts when they feel homesick. The voice box will have messages recorded which can be updated when the space station passes through pockets of Wi-Fi. Prior to this session, I had made the offer to Miss. Marsh that I could source and purchase the materials for the prototyping. Miss. Marsh had been given by the project organisers £20 for project materials. We had both agreed the previous week that this highly insufficient for the purposes of the project and for the class size. As a student, I offered up my student discount privilege which would enable us to make the money go further. Again, I readily offer any form of favour or service to make myself useful as possible. At the beginning of the session, Miss. Marsh reminded the pupils about the task in hand, looking to me for assistance. I have noticed that whilst I have been present during all the observational sessions, anything raised that has been remotely artistic in anyway, Miss. Marsh and Maddy would looked to me to for additional commentary, advice, or approval. Before I knew it that day, Miss. Marsh had quite literally passed the reins over to me in terms of introducing the task and demonstrating the proposed method in a very off the cuff presentation which I delivered at the front of the class. Here I felt my role as a researching-practitioner was forced to transition to that of a teacher. Reflecting on this moment, I very quickly changed tact offering the pupils choices in how they wanted to work; either in pairs so they could sculpt each other’s faces or to work individually. As some pupils began to move around the round, I began to open up the plastercine modelling clay and divided it up amongst the pupils. To waste less time, I began to also delegating this task to other pupils sitting near by. I demonstrated a technique to the pupils				of how to loosen up the clay, through warming it in their hands. After this I demonstrated how to achieve a basic structure in the clay of a face, through pressing their thumbs in creating eye sockets. I explained that from there, you could very quickly form other parts of the face, using the sockets as a guide. At this stage, the majority of the pupils seemed engaged in the task. Whilst explaining and demonstrating, I activity made my way around the room so all the pupils would feel include. The class branched into through three significant groupings. As I attempted to hover around the room and engage with all the pupils, there were moments of interesting dialogue and interaction I managed to catch. Mat and Sam who were sharing a desk, decided to construct their models differently from the rest of the class, deviating away from my demonstrations. Noticing this too, Miss. Marsh championing their explorative and creative response to the task, complimenting them on their ability at working as a team. Although at this stage I was uncertain if the pupils really were choosing to operate as a team, however, both agreed and seemed enthused after the teacher’s positive feedback. I knelt down next to the table these boys were working at, asking them to explain the idea behind what appeared to be two parts of one whole. Mat, who previously had been keen to offer designerly ideas and who’s idea we were all basing the models upon, eagerly explained to me the concept and why they were using a different style and technique to the rest of the class. Making reference to the fact that this model will be required to be made from a 3D printer, Mat and Sam took the initiative to work in layers, so to create a hollow structures – also taking into consideration the need for the voice box. It was clear to see that these pupils had indeed spent moments and conversations reflecting on the original brief and exploring how they were going to factor in the several requirements, both following a similar aesthetic with one making a base and the other making a head with a face. During this observational session, I found myself drawn to engaging with these two pupils the most in the room, as they were most eager to share ideas, ask for help and in general talk to me. As well as Mat and Sam, Sean also engaged with me, but during this time, aggressively destroyed his work, explaining his frustration with the material. Like in previous observational sessions, Sean had

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
strategy for engagement my own self reflection	invited me to assist him, and has proved to be one of pupils who engaged with me aid more positively engages in my presence. On reflection, perhaps this is why I have spent more time with him as I find him more inclined to engage with me than some of the other pupils, who, through either displaying apathetic reactions (choosing to ignore me) or reservation (through sarcasm and showing off), I have found are far less approachable. Surveilling Creating Another self-formed group in the room was David, Joe and Catherine. (At this stage it is worth noting that Hailey, who had been the focus of previous observational sessions, was absent from this lesson. As this was also the last week of school before the Easter break, the teacher had previously informed me that absences were very common during this time). As previously noted, Catherine is much more quite and reserved. During this activity, I noticed how much David was attempting to include her in their conversation. As I hovered around this group, aware of the previous caution David had displayed at my presence and attempts at engagement; I felt I did not want to linger too long. As opposed to previous observations, David today appeared highly engaged in the task. I could see the effort and craft he was putting into his model, possibly a physical manifestation of the value he holds for artistic activities. Whilst I praised him for his attention to detail, Miss. Marsh added, loud enough for the class to hear, that he was very talented at art. To this David replied that he 'didn't have time to do art' – suggesting it was not an option for him to take it as a standard grade class. Reflecting on this incidence and comment, I began to think about how much boys were encouraged and enabled to undertake art – in the context of friendship groups and others (perhaps family disempowered through peer pressure? disempowered through family pressure? members) outside of school. In such circles, how is art as a taught subject viewed? Perhaps art is viewed, particularly by the pupils, as a more feminine activity, effecting the relationship male pupils have with it and informing their gender stereotyping? I also noticed how this could work in the reverse, reflecting on the female pupil situated in this group, and her reaction to this session's activity. As she was playing around with plastercine in her hands, failing to get started, I approached her and asked how she was getting on. Her reluctance to engage with the activity suggests she was embarrassed to show or attempt at being creative under the scrutiny of her male peers,	confidence through recognition paid self - exclusion social strategy mobilised by creativity self-deprecation enacted expected social roles			particular in front of David who was displaying a highly level of skill. However, I have to also acknowledge the affect of my identity, as someone described as 'arty' and know to them as coming from a renowned art school (even though fine art is not my area), will have had in the context of this creative session, where pupils may have felt that I was assessing their work and skills. Attempting to avoid this and to put this pupil at ease, I knelt down next to her and asked if she was having trouble getting started. She replied in a whisper yes. I took her plastercine and demonstrated the eye socket impression technique again. Whilst talking through what I was doing, I took more plastercine and showed her how to add on other facial features. With the hope that this interaction might have enabled her to finish off the model, later on (at least 10-15 minutes later) I returned to discover she had done nothing more to the model – no adaption, no additions. At this point Miss. Marsh, unaware that her model was actually solely my making, enthusiastically commended her work. Whilst attempting to boost Catherine's self-esteem, I was anxious that Miss. Marsh's praise could have to opposite affect, reaffirming any sense of inadequacy, masked by insecurities of externalising her level of skill and ability through her own model, instead choosing to hide behind my one. Another group was situated that the back of the class, a location usually harnessed by pupils for concealing misbehaviour. Miss. Marsh, aware this, spent the majority of this session in this location. Whilst her presence was forcing better behaviour, I was anxious that her surveillance could be affecting and sanitising their creative exploration. Reflecting on this incidence methodologically, in relation to my proposed workshops, I noticed a need for balance between encouraging and fostering autonomous behaviours but in preventing pupils from deviating away too much from the task in hand or feeling that they have license to misbehave. This incidence was repeated several times by different pupils throughout this session. I noticed that Dan, sharing a desk with Lewis who was really engaged in the task, was not taking part, instead choosing to make a dice out of his plastercine. When I inquired into how he was getting on, he was reserved and reluctant to talk. Attempting to joke around with him, instead of being critical of his lack of focus, I encouraged him to start his model again. Here again I found my identity and role as	my own self reflection attempting to reaffirm/ empower self-effacing attempting to reaffirm/ empower my reflection strategy for engagement reflection -in- action

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my own self reflection	a researching-practitioner brought into conflict. As this work was part of their youth achievement award, the pupils were required to complete it but perhaps the pupils were actually uncertain whether or not to take this activity seriously as a piece of school work due to its creative content. creativity not associated valued work - association instilled by others? Pride, Possession and Sabotage At the end of the session, the pupils were asked to place their models and excess plastercine in a tray to store them over night. Standing by the tray, I noticed David, who had displayed a high level of artist flare earlier on, place his highly detailed model delicately in the tray. He then proceeded to linger around the tray, policing as the other pupils deposited their models, perhaps to monitor the activity surrounding his own model for fear of sabotage. Sean, unaware of the security measures taken by his peer, put his model down and went to pick up David's. Upon seeing this act of violation, David immediately and aggressively reprimanded him. Such protective behaviour suggests a sense of pride over his work, contradicting a previous statement he had made regarding the skill level of the class: '...aye but its us that's doing it'. Perhaps David feels he had something to prove, or perhaps this activity gave him a platform to channel his artistic ability through, which is otherwise suppressed. I found the David's strong reaction to the threat of sabotage an interesting link to his implicit pride over his work. How often does such a threat of sabotage occur in the lives of these pupils – in and out with the school? Is such sabotage also sometimes inadvertently and unintentionally induced by the teachers (such as the scrap paper incidence in entry one)? devaluation/ worthlessness	prescribed creativity devaluing creativity investment expressed through protecting insecurities mobilised through creativity threat of sabotage	protection over autonomous work	autonomy strategy for self empowerment	alternative opportunities to harness agency encouraging autonomous decision making seeking authority authoritative criticality without social affirmed authority	Entry Five: 23/4/14 (55 minutes) Peacemaking This was the final session before the pupil's prototypes needed to be ready to show to the competition organisers. Between now and the previous time I was in the class, the pupils had researched online voice recording devices and ordered one, paying for it with money the pupils had raised in a previous activity. (Much of the activities within the Youth Achievement Award seek to instil an entrepreneurial spirit, engaging pupils in ventures where lessons of profit and reinvestment of capital are fostered- an example of a previous enterprise include organizing a school disco.) Whilst still experimenting with prototypes for the project and now with the voice recorder device, I suggested the group try alternative approach to modelling their heads, this time out of papiermache. Using balloons, newspaper and glue I had brought in, I first of all demonstrated to the group how the technique worked before the usual sub groups were formed and work began on their own. Again, not wanting to appear too much in control of the project, I also suggested that if anyone wanted too, they could finish off the plastercine models from the previous session instead of creating a second one. As Hailey had not been present in the previous prototype-making session, I was anxious to her reaction upon viewing how the project had developed in her absence. When the tray of model heads was brought out, Hailey was quick to critically examine them loudly offering praise and, as suspected, critique. Immediately Hailey's comments were met by the majority of the group ganging up on her. Observing this, it was clear that the group were not so concerned with defending they models or artistic ability, as with revelling in an opportunity to aggressively reprimand and insult her. Whilst there was several voices shouting and swearing aggressively over each other, to which I stepped out of my researching-practitioner role and voluntarily into an authoritative one, raising my voice to ask them to watch their tone and language. Wanting to appear neutral, I then addressed Hailey and told her loud enough for everyone to hear that the nature of those types of comments were not constructive and whilst acknowledging she was trying to help, that in fact they could offend people. peacekeeping	reflection -in- action reflection -in- action diplomacy peace keeper

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my reflection my own self reflection adopting multiple roles	Reflecting upon this incidence, and without the support of Miss. Marsh or Maddy (who whilst present in the classroom, only became involved after it had occurred), I realised that this was the first moment throughout this fieldwork where I have felt forced within the moment to regain control over the group dynamic through using my status as an adult to leverage a degree of authority – an aspect of my identity as researching-practitioner I have been very mindful of not wanting to be associated with authority and hierarchy mediating. This moment illustrates the challenge in working amongst pre existing social dynamics and tensions within a group made up of several micro communities who, out with this classroom, often clash. Within this moment, I was at once a researching-practitioner, an authority figure, as well as diplomat and peacemaker. Returning to remainder of the session, once this eruption of conflict diminished, the pupils engaged in the making of their prototypes. Once again, David actively engaged with this task. Choosing to work on his own and away from his peers, I observed him delicately work, keeping his desk clean and tidy. Conversely, others were less inclined. I watched as Joe and Max sharing a desk, choose to scrunch up balls of paper and glue. Whilst possibly making a deliberate mess, the two of them appeared to be having fun. When I asked about their creations, Max defended their decision not to use a balloon, as they believed it would create a stronger structure.	with out authority backing out with my control/ choice sacrificing harnessing control conscious/ actively reflecting upon tensions and conflicts diverse tensions and conflicts play out reflection-in-action multiple roles	mobilised through creativity autonomous actions protection over autonomous work		engagement with technology prescribed enchanted through technology	Entry Six: 1/5/14 (1 hour and 50 minutes) Gesture of Recognition Present in today’s session were two engineers from the university hosting the competition. With them, they had brought a 3D printer laptops and laser scanning cameras, which was met with much excitement as the pupils entered into the classroom. After the pupils had settled, the visitors introduced themselves again and the purpose and plan of their workshop. Miss. Marsh then requested a volunteer from the pupils to explain and show them the prototyping process we had previously been working on. After a couple of moments, David complied and quickly outlined the concept. Both engineers expressed a great deal of enthusiasm, remarking on the sophistication of the pupil’s concept and use of the voice-recording device. They then introduced the 3D printer and demonstrated how it works, printing a miniature model human figure as an example. During this time the pupils, fascinated with the printing process, maintained a harmonious dynamic, with several confidently asking the engineers questions. Once printed, the figure was passed around, with each pupil delighting in holding and examining it. The group was then spilt into two with each engineer facilitating a mini workshop with the laser scanning cameras. Here the pupils were took it in turns to 3D laser-scan another pupils face, which then appear digitally on a laptop. This scan would then be printed as a their final 3D model prototypes and competition entry. During this time, there was much excitement and laughter as the pupils attempted to hold the camera steadily and pose as still as possible. Near the end of the session, the engineers announced their plans to 3D print off the pupils’ scanned images and selected the best one to put forward as their competition entry, taking with them the voice-recorder, which Mat had pre-recorded a message in. The engineers also requested a list of everyone’s names so to 3D personalized key-rings as a token for the pupils to keep. As a piece of paper was being passed around the room, Sean enthusiastically exclaimed that my name should be included on the list so I would receive a key-ring also. Reflecting upon this gesture of recognition, I was touched that one of the pupils thought to include me in that moment.	technology technology excitement enchantment goal structure self mobilised empowerment strategy enchantment empowerment strategy enchantment enchanted technology enchanted harnessing self capacity enchanted enchanted technology technology technology technology enchanted enchanted engaged/ mobilised technology reward/ incentive enchanted confidence gesture of acknowledgment included humbled acceptance gesture of acknowledgment my own self reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Entry Seven: 14/5/14 (55 minutes) Little Precious Moment This was our last session working on the science competition. As part of the pupils entry, they were required to create a digital presentation about their concept and the develop phases. Presenting the pupils with the option of either working on the presentation or finishing off their models, the group self-divided into sub-groups. Asked to by Miss. Marsh, I worked with David, Joe, Sam and Mat with finishing off painting their models. During this time, I suggested also including diagrammatic drawings of their proposed concept that could be included in their digital presentation. Asked for an example, I quickly draw an impression of one of their models, placing a scale next it, explaining the use of dimensions. Whilst Joe, Sam and Mat continued with painting their papiermache heads, David moved his chair next to mine and after examining my sketch, began his own. Prior to this moment, David had been often quite reticent in our previous interactions. However, whilst drawing here, I noticed David looking at my sketch as reference as he drew, copying it in style. Perhaps mindful of wanting to prolong this possibly fleeting moment of acceptance, I began drawing another sketch alongside him, now and again commenting on his and he did with mine. Moments such as these, whilst possibly unremarkable to the pupils, became very precious in fostering rapport, particularly with some of the more reserved pupils.  reflection -in- action attempting to reaffirm/ empower my own self reflection 	 task task task directed technology autonomous choice autonomous choice social groups authority creative task aid technology teaching creative task seeking learning gesture of acceptance inspired cautious creativity seeking learning inspiration/ as an aid creativity gesture of acceptance reflection-in-action creativity strategy for empowering gesture of acceptance implicit gestures gradual yet genuine engagement gesture of acceptance   mobilised through creativity creative learning transformative acceptance   creativity catalyse conviviality 			 confirmed achievement not social faux pas expressing pride agency transformed authority expressing praise seizing opportunity 	Entry Eight: 19/5/15 (School Trip) Proud I was invited by Miss. Marsh and Maddy to attend the competition awards ceremony with the pupils at a local venue. As I met the group outside the venue, there was a great deal of excitement and anticipation as the pupils watched the other schools arrive as we waiting in foyer to be called in by an event organiser. Once called, we were directed to our seats in an auditorium, and whilst we waited, a large screen played a slide show of images of all the competition entries. When our entry appeared on screen, I witnessed the pupils enthusiastically comment to each other, pointing at the screen and making sure everyone in our group had noticed. At the front of the stage were plinths, each displaying the 3D models, which also became to topic of some of their conversations, overhearing critique of the other entries. Such responses here were completely the opposite to earlier performances of apathy and despondence, particularly in the case of Hailey and David. Before the winners were announced, several presentations took place by the competition organizers and by the two engineers who had visited the school. Whilst sitting through these patiently, there was certainly a tense atmosphere. I felt extremely anxious, and was already thinking about how the pupils' would feel if we didn't win. There were two runner-up prizes read out before the overall winner. Once we heard both of these had been awarded to other schools, the pupils became gradually more animated through the suspense. Our group was then announced as the overall winner to which the pupils, as well as Miss. Marsh, Maddy and I triumphantly cheered as the auditorium filled with applause. Watching our digital presentation on the screen, the organisers described the pupils' entry, and why it had won, describing how the pupils exceeded their expectations through designing a truly meaningful device that could really enhance emotional wellbeing if used by astronauts in space when spending long periods of time away from loved ones. Asked for two of the pupils to come to stage to collect their award, Steven and Sean jumped up and ran down. Holding their framed  my own self reflection my own self reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes
	certificate, they shock hands with the conference organisers and got their photos taken. On our way out of the auditorium, each pupil (as well as me, to my delight) was also handed a 3D printed medal. Gathered together in the foyer, Miss. Marsh congratulated the pupils again and requested a class photo be taken. I was also asked to be included in the photo, where the pupils proudly held up their medals and winners certificate. This would be the last time I saw the pupils before they were to go on their summer holidays. Winning the competition was a profound moment. I felt a sense of acceptance into the group and felt incredibly proud of them. I hope that their own sense of achievement here would carry over into the next phase of engagement.	authority expressing praise expressing pride acceptance	confirmed achieve ment not social faux pas sustaining transformed agency

my own self reflection

confidence

authoritative praise

enchanted

poignant

feeling sentimental

enchantment

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes
	Entry Nine: 29/8/14 (55 minutes) Project Induction This was the first time I had visited the class since the summer holidays (a period of seven weeks). Again I observed the class and was then invited by Miss. Marsh to formally introduce the workshops to the pupils. Having prepared a short presentation (five minutes), I asked the pupils to gather around my laptop. I explained my plans to host a series of workshops and the technique we were going to use to produce a collaborative class film. I also showed a piece of footage I had created purposefully for this presentation, and then presented them with the actual film reel allowing them to see what and how I had drawn on the film. During this time Hailey and Steven were reluctant to join the majority and stayed at their desks. Miss. Marsh and Maddy urged these pupils over, however, already anxious of the class's reception to the proposed project, and wanting to sustain a relaxed atmosphere and non-authoritative demeanour, I insisted that they did not have to join in if they did not want to. Hailey loudly vocalised her disinterest, displayed also in her lax body language, propping her feet up on another chair, the sort of decorum which she knows from experience will result in her being reprimanded by Miss. Marsh. I am finding such witnessed moments of disruption significant upon reflection as, within them, I am struck by the conflicting, and often paradoxical, motivations for such risky behaviour. Seizing an opportunity to rebel in front of an audience of peers, who I know from previous occasions she has a fragile and contentious relationship with, I question whether or not such a performance of pomp was simply because Hailey did not want to take part in the project. On the surface this is what it appeared to be, a display of rebellion for myself, Miss. Marsh, and her peers, however, unpicking this hunch further, I also see such gestures as an attempt to score points and ingratiate herself with a group, who for the most part, have rejected her (echoing earlier occasions in phase one of the fieldwork). Usually extremely talkative and quickly distracted, the other pupils	physically expressing disinterest appearing engaged as social faux pas paradoxical strategies sacrificial social strategy sacrificial social strategy in response to social rejection	seeking empowerment pragmatic

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	received the presentation for the most part in silence. I found it difficult to apprehend if this was because they were intrigued by what I was showing them, or simply because they was perplexed. At the end of this class, Hailey stayed behind to talk to Miss. Marsh. As I gathered up my things, I witnessed Maddy approached her and asked her cheerfully to ‘give the workshops a go’, exclaiming that she would be really good at it. Hailey still resisted but in a more jovial tone. Concerned upon hearing this interaction of the Hailey possibly feeling forced or coerced into participating, I quickly reiterated that she did not have to join in if she do not want to and that in the next workshop, she could either have a go and see if she enjoyed it, or simply watch. However, upon reflection, this incident chimes with a reoccurring insight, one that I have witnessed on many occasions during previous observations. Many of these pupils, perhaps due a lack in confidence, indeed require a high degree of encouragement, support and nurturing, and that this was what the Maddy was trying to do. I have witnessed these pupils previously approach tasks or activities that might highlight fault or a lack of skills or knowledge, with caution and self-deprecating declarations, already anticipating their failures, which in some cases did become purposely self-fulfilling prophecies. Possibly it is this lack of confidence and fear of ridicule, particularly in front of an audience, that becomes disguised and channelled through displaying challenging and hostile behaviour, or adopting an apathetic or pompous attitude, as in the case of Hailey’s resistance on this occasion.	influential authority praise self-deprecation engagement as social faux pas	can be mobilised through authority praise deny self of participation	impact of authority	physically fostering autonomy freedom - a sense of privilege ingrained hierarchy authority indifferent to conflict/ justice strategy for social empowerment	Entry Ten: 8/9/14 (1 hour and 50 minutes) Trials and experiments; interactions of buy in The aim of this initial taster workshop was to allow participants time to understand, and hopefully appreciate, the method of Direct Animation through experimenting with simple techniques autonomously. Materials, including lengths of film stock (both black and clear), thin marker pens, sandpaper, dental tools, cutting mats, letraset (dry rub fonts), scissors, and tape, were left on a table for the participants to choose from. Prior to this initial workshop, I had designed two types of storyboarding tool, which was also placed on the table. I purposely decided not to influence or restrict the content of these experiments to any particular or guiding theme, so to afford the participants time to get accustomed to the methods and materials without feeling any additional pressure that their creations would be critiqued by myself or in comparison to each others. I intentionally kept any demonstrations brief as a way of encouraging self-learning through trial and error, only assisting when asked. On reflection, this heuristic approach runs contrary to how this class is traditionally taught. During my initial encounters in the class, I have observed the pedagogic style of Miss. Marsh and Maddy, where, in relation to the pupils, a well-established and embedded hierarchy was immediately revealed. This teacher-student dynamic, on many occasions, became particularly apparent at the beginning and end of each class, where Miss. Marsh would voice strict instructions for the pupils to follow. Any turbulent or rebellious behaviour is immediately confronted and dispelled by Miss. Marsh, with, in many cases, little attention afforded to mediating and resolving the conflict. Perhaps intrinsic for dealing with challenging behaviour, but I question the effects of this teacher-student relationship, particularly in the context of vulnerable groups, in terms of building confidence and autonomy, which the curriculum of this class supposedly promotes. Additionally I question if this pedagogy style is a result of such behaviour, out of necessity, or perhaps, could be seen as a catalyst for it? Upon entering the classroom I became apprehensive as I noticed the desk configuration had changed from my previous observations.	attempting to reaffirm/ empower attempting to reaffirm/ empower my reflection my own self reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my own self reflection balancing power balancing power my interpretation	Before, pupils sat either in pairs or alone, now the desks were positioned in clusters. I anticipated that this rearrangement may led to conflict and distraction, however throughout the majority of the workshop, the participants, whilst in casual conversations with peers, appeared genuinely engaged with the activities. As this workshop was spread across two school periods (each last 55 minutes), the participants were offered a choice as to whether they wanted to stay for the second period or go on to another class. Miss. Marsh informed me prior to the workshop that the classes the participants would be missing would be physical education (P.E) or religious education (R.E). Anxious to make sure that the participants did not feel pressured to miss a class, I iterated at the beginning of the workshop that it was their decision and not to feel pressured to stay. Half way through the workshop, five participants left to go to P.E, however I noticed that even after being questioning by his peers, one of the male participants, Max, decided to stay and continue with the workshop activities. This same participant is one who I have rarely conversed with previously. However, near the end of the workshop, he was confidently chatting to me about different animation techniques and digital technologies. Such informal interactions, mostly (and surprisingly) volunteered by the participants themselves, fulfilled a more fundamental aim of this initial workshop, which was to get them inspired to take part and buy into the project. Such a moment was reiterated when I explained that the pieces of footage participants were working on would be screened in action in the following workshop. The participants showed enthusiasm and excitement; however Sean and David both voiced concerns whether their individual work would appear next others, indicating that they wanted breaks between each so to differentiate theirs from others. I interpreted this concern as a sign of ownership, where these participants were perhaps implicitly seeking recognition for their own sections, anxious that they might become lost or mistaken as someone's else's if seen as a whole. An additional incident, which cooperates interactions of buy in, showed one participant taking the initiative to research images from a class computer. Without instruction, Sam identified the need to resize the image, holding up the storyboarding tool to the	physically fostering collaboration engaged through creativity encouraging autonomy encouraging autonomous decision making resisting social pressure transform enchanted though possible opportunity for achievement seeking achievement individually mobilised through creativity/ technology	allow self to participate harness agency rapport autonomous achievement	engagement not social faux pas creativity catalysing transformation creativity catalysing social integration empowerment catalyses acceptance	the computer screen for size reference. Enquiring into his efforts, I suggested he repeat the images numerous times on the storyboard tool. Although not having the time to draw-out his film, Sam enthusiastically spent the entire workshop concentrating on digitally resizing and repeating multiple images. Such concentration was mirrored by the majority of the participants, where in many moments, most, whilst situated at these desk clusters with their peers, worked in silence. Furthermore, Hailey, who had displayed a great deal of resistance during the last encounter (when I had initially introduced the project) had completely reversed her attitude, transpiring in her producing the most amount of footage. Previously isolating herself from the group when asked to gather round for my presentation; during this workshop Hailey positioned herself at one of the desk clusters, actively engaging with the tools, asking questions and working the swiftest amongst her peers, culminating at the end by her enthusiastically describing to me the narrative she had drawn. Although a small (and perhaps mundane) gesture, the most significant occurrence, and the first milestone in this case study, is that the majority of the participants addressed me by my first name. Reflecting more on such humble yet profound moments of interaction, I recall a significant shift in my confidence during the workshop. Up until this moment, the pupils had either addressed me as Miss, or not idiosyncratically at all, which I assume has emanated from associating me with their authority figures (the teacher and social worker). However, perhaps the activities and non-hierarchical structure of the workshop helped to mediate my role, instilling the more egalitarian dynamic I had hoped to achieve, citing such interactions as signalling a form of acceptance - buying into the research, and more profoundly buying into me.	attempting to reaffirm/ empower my reflection my own self reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Entry Eleven: 15/9/14 (1 hour and 50 minutes) Ink on Film; working in the abstract Between the first and second workshop, Miss. Marsh drew my attention to an email she had received from the City Council outlining an inter school animation competition. The competition requires participants to create a one minute animated film based on a theme from a list of sectors. To my delight, the theme of Education and Development was listed, resonating highly with the context of this present study. The competition organisers agreed to the class taking part using the technique of Direct Animation, with the closing date near the end of the case study. I was excited to alert the participants to this prospect, hoping through entering a competition and instilling a competitive element, it would further enchant the participants to participant, keeping the momentum of the following workshops up. The second introductory workshop offered participants a chance to experiment with another technique in Direct Animation – painting with ink. With the aim of promoting collaboration, the main objective of this workshop was to experiment with the technique through producing long lengths of film as a group, again without guiding the content with any significant theme. Before the participants arrived, I changed the orientation of the room from clusters of desks to one long bank, so participants would be positioned around the film as if they were sitting at a dinning table. Before commencing the workshop, I began by showing the participants a film made up of individual sections they had created in the previous workshop. Between this workshop and the last (a week since), I had spliced their sections of film together and fed this through my projector (16mm Eiki Elf model), filming what was being projected onto a white wall with a standard Canon camera. To slow down the frames, I imported the now digital film file into imovie (a standard film editing application), which enabled me to enhance the picture quality and place in a music track. I was disappointed to see that a considerable amount of the participants' film did not translate clearly, or at all, when projected. In several cases, participants had written horizontally onto the film, which, when projected, simply					become shapes rather than legible words. I was apprehensive to show the participants this film, anxious it may dishearten and demotivate them, whereas I had hoped seeing their creations come to life would have enthused and inspired. During the screening, I explained which sections belonged to whom, and clarified why some sections were projecting more clearly than others. Whilst this did not receive the exact reception I had initially hoped for, on reflection, this moment proved to be a distinct learning curve. I described how bold and clear patterns, or colours and shapes with lots of repetition, can yield vivid results, appearing as animated when projected; suggesting that intricate, precise and singular images fail to be registered due the speed at which they are passed through the projector (24 frames per second). As described above, many of the participants had composed extensive narratives, which were literally written onto the film and illustrated with small individual drawings. Such creations failed to emit a coherent picture when projected, becoming extended periods of blur within the overall film. A significant observation throughout this second workshop was how these same individuals, perhaps due to using a different technique (ink as opposed to the pen), or perhaps as a reaction to the viewing their film at the beginning, began to adjust their style and execution. Previously attempting to depict literally a liner story, on this occasion, the clear film was harnessed by the participants as a canvas for conveying abstract and complex imagery. During several interactions, different participants commented enthusiastically on the artistic nature of this approach, whilst proclaiming that they do not do art. Moments of such self-deprecation were iterated often. Hailey, who had displayed a great deal of reservation prior to the first workshop, and insisted on working alone on this occasion (sitting separately from the rest of the class), compared what she was doing to a nursery activity. Throughout the workshop, Hailey was eager to experiment with the inks and demonstrate such experiments to me, enthusiastically discussing her findings, and even allowed herself to be reprimanded by Miss. Marsh for having her phone out in class to take photographs of her work. However, whilst engaged and excited, she assured me that what I was asking her to do was childish 'finger painting'. In such instances, I have found myself unpacking
my reflections	self mobilising self mobilising self mobilising autonomous learning creativity team work autonomous learning team work autonomous learning physically staging collaboration physically staging collaboration	learning new skills staging collaboration and autonomy		transform	teaching device creativity catalyses engagement self-depreciation self-reassuring through devaluing strategy for mobilisation gesture of enchantment lower expectations of others allowing self to participant through devaluing	teaching-learning teaching-learning teaching-learning created/ mobilised created teaching-learning transformation self mobilising self mobilising learned transformation enchanted creative self-deprecating self-deprecating performed despondence socially isolated infantile enchanted self mobilised enchanted seeking attention self mobilised sacrificing risky behaviour authority enchanted creativity self mobilised enchanted self-deprecating immature infantile	attempting to reaffirm/ empower

my reflections

presenting back to the participants attempting to reaffirm/ empower

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my reflections	the possible motivations for such devaluation. My hunch, made explicit in this example, is that such downgrading is adopted to disguise insecurity and low self esteem. Paradoxically, describing the activity as infantile in the above example actually permitted the Hailey to be much more fully involved, expressive, and explorative, whilst safeguarding against critique as she attempted to lower my expectations of her skill level. In other cases, participants were less calculating, simply being tentative to start. A further significant incident that occurred during this workshop was that after seeing images I had resized for Sam and Mat, I was presented with numerous requests from other participants, most keenly from Max and Sean to resize images sourced from the Internet. It was interesting to see how individuals reacted to noticing their peers receive bespoke made items, which quickly motivated them (perhaps out of a competitiveness) to request items be sourced specially for them.	self-reassuring through devaluing enacting surveillance on self strategy for mobilisation seeking individual bespoke tools competitive	self sabotage allowing self to participant through devaluing conflicting seeking autonomy		motivations	Miss. Marsh here, such incidents would perhaps not have occurred, however moments such as these remind me that this group of participants are never going to be as invested in, and truly value, this project, and thus the materials, as much I do. Quite possibly the workshops are seen as an opportunity to get out of other lessons. However, other incidents have shown a genuine interest from other participants, particularly those who have chosen to stay on for the second period, and those who had requested me to source and bring in bespoke materials for them.	my own self and methodological reflection
my own self and methodological reflection	Reflecting on the workshop activity itself, I found the technique of painting with ink, whilst for the most part well received by the participants, extremely challenging to facilitate, however, the vivid and abstract outcomes produced did outweigh my own stress of coordinating the activity. The most significant issue that arose included was the amount of materials consumed (including rubber gloves, aprons, film stock, ink and paint brushes). During this workshop, I received little support from Miss. Marsh and Maddy who were also conducting consultations with each participant in the classroom, pulling individuals out of the workshop for 5-10 minutes at a time. At certain moments, whilst I was engaging with individual participants in conversation about their work, others took advantage of the lack of vigilance and attempted to disrupt the workshop. David in particular wiped red ink over his hands and down his apron (trying to emulate a Halloween custom). Seeing this, I presented him with a clean apron and new gloves. When taking his gloves off, I found he had layered five pairs of gloves on. I found moments such as this, which occurred often during this workshop, problematic to mediate. I do not want the participants to view me as an authority figure, however I felt complete frustration upon viewing particular participants sabotaging the materials I had personally invested my own money in. Upon reflection, with the support of attempting to reaffirm/ empower	one-to-one basis rapport creativity lack of facilitation rebellious behaviour sabotage	use autonomous learning culture to rebel	opportunistic
my own self reflection	sabotage
balancing power	sabotage conflict in roles

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my own self and methodological reflection attempting to reaffirm/ empower presenting back to the participants gatekeeper support	Entry Twelve: 22/9/14 (1 hour and 50 minutes) Personalising the Approach The objective of this third workshop, contrary to the previous two (which were much more explorative and experimental), was to develop a topic around which to focus the content of a final film, which would be entered into the inter school competition. I was apprehensive of the degree to which the participants were going to truly engage with this workshop, which I had planned to be centred around conversation instead of ‘doing art’ (as a number of participants have described it). This would be the first opportunity for me to really inquiry about their experiences in relation to the context of this study. Between this workshop and the previous, as well as projecting and editing their film together, I had also photographed sections of their film strips to generate high quality, close up images, capturing the fine details of their paintwork. Excited by the outcome of these images, I presented these to the participants, suggesting additional applications such images would translate well onto such as different fabrics and as posters or postcards. I then showed the participants the edited film they had created in the previous workshop, as well as the raw footage of the film passing through the projector. My aim here was to show them what kinds of shapes and colours are most effective for this animation technique. In the previous workshops I have noticed many participants focusing on small, detailed illustrations, which, when passed through the project, and to their disappointment, become lost in a blur. After introducing the inter-school completion again, I suggested to the participants we collaboratively brainstorm some ideas for themes they would want to explore in relation to education. I asked the participants to gather around tables I had grouped together, rolling out a long length of paper and handed out marker pens. Here Miss. Marsh supported me in beginning the brainstorm, engaging in conversation with the participants around possible topics. Hailey, who had become considerably more enthusiastic over the past two workshops, was the first to propose an idea. Whilst still	develop repertoire of skills staging collaboration creativity catalysed mobilisation		empowered through knowledge transform agency reflecting on self and social self	social autonomy becoming fluent in the technique drawing on learnt knowledge empowered to harness own capacity solo mobilisation catalyses collaborative mobilisation critical and conceptual thinking emotive reflections social identity	physically positioning herself away from the other participants, sitting on a table behind me, she confidently advised that, because of this kind of animation, we would need to work with colours instead of specific images, a piece of advice presumably based and learned from seeing the group’s edited films each week. I encouraged her to explain further how this might be done. With reference to connotations, Hailey continued by explaining how colours can represent emotion, giving the examples of red to signify anger, pink to signify love, and blue for sad. I found this moment of interaction significant as this participant was plainly displaying, and furthermore able to vocalise, her metaphorical thinking. Prior to this moment, I have been anxious that the participants might have been reading the films they were creating and other examples I have shown them, which are highly abstract, too literally. An initial assumption I had, which has been greatly challenged in that one moment, was that it could be possible that these participants would find thinking metaphorically difficult to connect with, to find any valuable meaning, which could leave them disenchanted by the film technique we were using, and fundamentally the project as a whole. Furthermore, Hailey continued by proposing to make a film exploring the different emotional phases one goes through throughout the system of education – from nursery, primary school, high school, to thinking about the future beyond school. This idea led the other participants to enter in a group conversation considering these different stages and debating the emotive connotations of different colours. Further points elaborated on the theme of change and identity, where, as you progress through education, you grow in confidence and self esteem, coming to know yourself better. When this conversation was exhausted, and in an attempt to provoke more ideas, I asked the participants the one thing they would change about school. There were several different responses to this question, with participants reaching a consensus surrounding two points in particular. School uniform was raised, but the conversation that followed conversely seemed to appreciate its anti-bullying effect of making everyone equal. Participants explained, in relation to maintaining their identity, how pupils still express their style whilst wearing the uniform through choices in shoes	attempting to reaffirm/ empower my own reflection facilitator role

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	and jackets. The second significant point, raised by Mat and was expanded on by others, was the issue of different learning styles, stating the need for alternative and more ‘fun ways of learning’. During this group conversation, I was noticing particular participants engaging whilst others, Joe and Max in particular, were beginning to seem disinterested, expressed through doodling on the paper and attempting to deviate or interrupt the flow of the conversation. At this point, and wanting to maintain the momentum of the workshop, I summed up the key ideas, asking the participants to identify one in particular that could be explored in the film. (Additionally at this point the bell sounded for the second period and three participants, David, Dan and Joe, left for their next class, leaving six participants choosing to stay on for the second period.) A group consensus was researched on the topics of phases of education and the function of school uniform. I then introduced the concept of a creating a mood board to further explore their ideas and be used to gather inspirational images, showing them some examples I had sourced from the Internet, on my laptop. Suggesting that the participants could use the rest of this workshop to research images to generate their own mood boards for this film, I encouraged them to go onto the class computers and research different shapes, colours and patterns, as well as pieces of music they think might be appropriate in translating the two themes. At this point Hailey and Meghan eagerly broke away from the group to form their own sub group stating that they would create a chart outlining the definition of different colours for the rest of the group to follow when making their film. Overhearing some of their conversations, they debated the connotations of various colours and shades, seeking reference from the Internet, examples of which included: Blue: wisdom and intelligence Peach: childhood White: goodness and innocence Orange: enthusiasm, fascination and creativity Yellow: joy, happiness and intellect Brown: sad Red: danger, determination and strength Purple: power and ambition	criticality self mobilised criticality awareness of own capacity and preference collaborative work self mobilise disenchanted disenchanted behaviour disenchanted behaviour disenchanted behaviour criticality collaborative work metaphorical thinking visual identity inspiration researching researching/ inspiration metaphorical thinking metaphorical thinking metaphorical thinking metaphorical thinking self mobilise/ enchanted self mobilise self mobilise criticality researching	criticality preference for learning style	embracing complexity becoming co-researchers enriched infectious engagement group mobilisation/ cohesion reciprocity	Black: lonely and hate Green: growth and safety Pink: romance Pastel: delicate and springtime Neon: lively and positive I was struck by degree to which these two participants were identifying with highly abstract and metaphorical colour definitions. In the context of creating a film about the emotive phases of education, themes surfacing that these participants felt were significant enough to assign a colour to included feelings of loneliness, hatred, determination and fascination, as well as assigning colours to symbolically represent childhood, growth and safety. On reflection, the weight and significance of such themes will need to be further unpacked in the subsequent workshops. As well as this colour categorisation, Hailey and Meghan began mapping out a timeline of the different educational phases, surveying the room, asking the other participants as well as Miss. Marsh, Maddy, and myself, to recall memories of feelings at particular points to find an average to assign a colour to. Witnessing these two confidently taking such initiative without having to be facilitated by either the teacher or myself, particularly as one of them had displayed resistance and negative behaviour in the past, made me feel confident that they were genuinely engaging with project. Conversations also surrounded music choices, with Hailey singing out loud at certain moments lyrics from her favourite band. Nearing the end of the workshop, I overheard plans to set up a Facebook group (an online forum) to discuss song choices with other participants who were not present at this workshop. Whether this comes to fruition or not, I was humbled by the fact that they were considering working on this project outside of this classroom and workshop setting - possibly an indication that the participants are starting to become perhaps, even by a very small degree, passionate about the success of this project. A further significant incident, which I felt indicated a degree of interest and enchantment, occurred during my interactions with Max, who opted to miss his P.E lesson for the third time to stay	my reflection harnessing capacity metaphorical and conceptual thinking criticality metaphorical and conceptual thinking metaphorical and conceptual thinking researching/ criticality researching researching researching researching analysing their data self mobilise self mobilise self mobilise transformation transformation enchanted researching self mobilise group mobilisation researching group mobilisation enchanted enchanted group mobilisation enchanted acceptance sacrifice enchanted rapport self mobilise/ resist peer pressure	my reflection performances of enchantment my reflection my reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	on for the second period (somewhat of a sacrifice I can imagine). Sitting on his own at a class computer, Max showed me different pieces of software we could possibly use for the film, particularly demonstrating an application for manipulating sound. He described a piece of music a friend had created, eagerly trying to locate it on his own USB stick so I could listen to it. Unable to find it, he used a couple of other tracks to demonstrate what kind of effects could be created, requesting the other participants in the room to be quiet so I could hear. During this time, he politely requested if he could be responsible for editing the music for the film. I enthusiastically agreed, informing him that I would bring in speakers the following workshops for him to use. In terms of motivating participants to become actively involved in such workshop tasks, particularly those who I have noticed are quick to proclaim self-deprecating declarations as previously described, I have found enthusiasm and possible buy in can be fostered through taking an individualised approach. Whilst all working on a common goal, I have found participants requesting additional materials for their individual endeavours, such as asking me to resize and print images out for them to bring to the following workshop. Possibly them witnessing me investing the time to produce bespoke materials for them has enhanced their investment in the project, and in me. With this hunch in mind, I offered to bring in speakers for Max he could fulfil his requested role as music editor in the next session. I did not offer to bring in speakers for any other participant. A simple and humble gesture, yet small moments such as these, I believe, can have a nurturing impact, hopefully instilling a sense of self worth, and valuing their contributions. I have found myself as a facilitator, oscillating between addressing the group and addressing the individual. During such moments, however fleeting, of investing time and attention on an individual level, I have noticed certain participants, such as Max grow in confidence, actively seeking my attention, asking me questions, addressing me by my name, and working independently.	social sacrifice autonomy enchanted through technology seeking individual role and responsibility bespoke tools self-reassuring through devaluing giving ownership investment through viewing my investment in them gesture of investment catalyses agency and confidence acceptance	autonomy ownership allowing self to participant through devaluing instilling self-worth and value reciprocity	transform	becoming co-researchers choices chosen for them reversed criticality condition affected choices	Entry Thirteen: 6/10/14 (1 hour and 50 minutes) Out with My Control; a turning point The fundamental aim of this session was maintaining the momentum generated in the previous workshop, where participants had been discussing concepts for the competition film entry, becoming researchers themselves in developing these concepts, with some self-selecting management roles. Unsure exactly how this workshop was going to unfold, I decided to bring all the materials with me in case participants felt ready to test their concepts out visually on film. I also brought back materials generated in the previous brainstorming conversations and their crafted mood boards. Two weeks had past since the last workshop due to the pupils going on their 4th year work experience. This session began with Miss. Marsh going round each pupil asking about their experiences, what challenges they faced, what they enjoyed and what they learned. It was interesting here to hear where participants had chosen to work, however, I learned that several of the placements had been of the school's choosing and not of the participants' own. Work experience locations included: a supermarket, a large clothing and home ware shop, a construction company, SQA (Scottish Qualification Association), a local primary and nursery school, and a credit union. The majority of the participants briefly described their experiences, offering little in the way of emotive reflections. Only when probed further by Miss. Marsh did they describe if they enjoyed it or not, giving it a mark out of ten. The majority of the participants seemed to have really enjoyed their experiences, with most of ranking their experience a seven or more out of ten. I was informed by Miss. Marsh before the class began that Max who was meant to be on work experience at a supermarket had refused to attend. Without being aware of this up until this moment, I was surprised to learn that this participant is being treated for Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). It was because of his condition he was anxious to attend his work experience as he felt he would not be able to cope with the longer working day. Possible also because there would not be present the support he has at the school, with staff who are aware and can accommodate his condition.	seeking to sustain engagement empower/ encourage autonomous decision making

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my own self and methodological reflection empower/ encourage autonomous decision making	I found this workshop to be the most challenging so far. Willing the participants to take the lead, I reframed from planning the workshop too much, leaving room for them to take the reigns. Picking up from where we left off previously, I suggested participants continue on storyboarding the film. Intuitively, the participants split off into three distinct groups. By the time the workshop really got going, the bell had gone for the second period, where three participants, David, Dan and Catherine left for another class. Hailey and Meghan, who had worked together before, rolled out their timeline and finished off surveying the room with regards to how other participants felt at significant moments during the time at school. Max, who had previously expressed a keen interest in being the music editor, sat at his regular computer and began working on mixing a list of tracks put together by the participants since the last time I saw them. Around him sat several of the other male participants – Joe, Lewis, Steven and Ricky. It was interesting to watch the initial interaction unfold between these two main sub teams, one made up of male participants focusing on the music and the other the two female participants working on the films visual content. They began by positioning themselves at opposite ends of the classroom. Both working autonomously, I announced loudly that what they were each doing was going to be informing what the other was doing, suggesting that they would need to start talking and working as a collective. At this point, dialogue began loudly across the classroom between the two parties. Reiterating the fact that both groups needed to work together, I physically moved the timeline Hailey and Meghan were working on and placed it on the floor by the other group working on the computer. Now the majority of the participants were working together.	infectious engagement becoming co-researchers seeking individual roles and responsibility inter-group collaboration staging group collaboration collaborative cohesion mobilised gesture of investment catalyses agency and confidence	group mobilisation/ cohesion transform seeking autonomy resistance to collective working ownership acceptance through reciprocity		reluctant to self initiate instilling value and worth becoming a teacher and leader gesture of investment catalyses agency and confidence	time to be included on the film. The remaining three participants, Sam, Mat and Sean, reluctant to join in with Hailey and Meghan’s activities, sat together at a cluster of desks, talking amongst themselves, awaiting direction. Responding to this, I rolled out the large piece of paper from the previous workshop which Hailey and Meghan had used to roughly collate the meanings of different colours on post it notes. I informed them that it would be very helpful if they could re draft this into a more coherent poster that could be used as a resource by the class when we began creating the film. Through considerable negotiation with Hailey and Meghan, during this workshop, the all the sub-groups contributed to a class wide discussion about the music, with the majority of participants chipping in suggestions of songs and particular lyrics. Deciding on splitting the film up into six-second segments, the group surrounding the computer and collated a list of 15 songs that would frame the entire film. Max and his apprentice participants struggled to locate the tracks online due the school’s Internet firewalls in place, so again I offered to source and pay for these for the participants and bring them in on disc the following workshop for them to edit. The songs identified that would structure their film were: Nursery: Happy by Pharrell Williams Primary 1: Waves by Mr. Probz ft. Robin Schulz Primary 2: Riptide by Vance Joy Primary 3: Happy Little Pill by Troye Sivan Primary 4: 10ft Tall by Afrojack Primary 5: Millionaires by The Script Primary 6: It’s Time by Imagine Dragons Primary 7: Rude by Magic! 1st Year: Really Don’t Care by Demi Lovato ft. Cher Lloyd 2nd Year: Amnesia by 5 Seconds of Summer 3rd Year: Am I Wrong by Nico and Vinz 4th Year: Sky Full of Stars by Coldplay On the surface, the workshop could have appeared slightly out of control, a view I became anxious Miss. Marsh and Maddy	facilitator role attempting to reaffirm/ empower diplomat role my own self and methodological reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my own self reflection my own self reflection reflection -in- action pragmatic facilitation my own self reflection my reflection reflection -in- action my own self reflection pragmatic facilitation	were thinking. In fact it did become out with my control as some participants were now taking control and leading their own workshop sub teams. I was excited to forgo my status as the sole facilitator, finding myself asking participants to inform me about the decisions they were making. Others however were not so inclined and waited for my direction. During this session, I noticed my facilitation style fluctuate when addressing individual participants. Retrospectively, I can see what I was actually doing was intuitively categorising the participants by participant personality type and using this coding as a means of quickly identifying and adjusting my interactions within such moments. On further reflection there were those comfortable with being the active leaders (as in Hailey and Meghan), the quiet teachers (such as Max who was instructing the group around him on how to use the music editing software), and the passive recipients (as with Sam, Mat and Lewis). Whilst trying to perceive and respond to each participant on an individual basis, I found myself, in this situation, even though being sensitized to working on a very individualised basis, quickly pulling on such associations in the moment so to bracket participants together, guiding my behaviour towards them. With the active leaders, I found my interaction with them completely different to the interaction I had with the passive recipients. Within these often fleeting moments of dialogue, I felt at times almost schizophrenic in trying to nurture the more assertive participants through gently challenging their assertions and encouraging their spontaneous activities, whilst with others, I was reverting to much more of a teacher: student dynamic. I find my intuitive behaviour in such moments, which almost undermines previous moments where such passive participants have flourished, frustrating to reflect upon. From their perspective, perhaps they viewed the major, more important, tasks as having been already assigned to the more confident participants, meaning that because they were less outspoken they were left with doing menial tasks or redoing a piece of work completed by someone else. Upon such moments, I attempted to encourage them through reiterating the value of what they were doing. However, within this I believe there to be a turning point. The challenge I face as a facilitator is not to deal with having to be schizophrenic, quickly jumping from one engagement style to the next to accommodate for the segregation in confidence levels (which also became physically apparent	participants taking control reluctant to self initiate becoming co-researchers becoming a teacher and leader need to nurture disempowered instilling value and worth personalised approach	transform nurture mobilisation on bespoke basis	encouraging group cohesion	where the participants were positioned), but to use my position as a mediator to negotiate with the more active participants, roles, an invitation, and a voice for these more passive participants situated at the periphery to join the others at the hub of activity.	advocate role diplomat role

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Entry Fourteen: 20/10/14 (1 hour and 50 minutes) Lynch Pins The aim of this workshop was to continue on with the competition film. In preparation for this I purchased additional materials, and the music the participants had identified from the previous workshop. After having difficulties accessing music websites from the classroom computers due to firewalls, I burned the music I had purchased from iTunes onto a C.D for them to import onto the classroom computers. Anticipating that more than one participant might wish to work on the music editing, I made several copies of the C.D. As this would be the first session where we would be considering the artwork for them film, I brought with me all the materials so the participants could choose what medium they wished to work with. I arrived early so to adjust the configuration of the classroom, tape down paper to the desk surfaces and set out the materials. It had been two weeks since the previous workshop due to a half term holiday. Whilst there were several participants missing at this workshop, I noticed two participants present, Sophie and Ross, who had not been at the previous two workshops, leading me to begin with an overview of the previous decisions made and work completed on the film, outlining a loose plan of the day's workshop, highlighting the competition deadline. During this time I handed Max, a large speaker I had previously promised to bring in for him and the C.Ds. He quickly returned to his usual position on a computer at the back of the class. I rolled out the timeline Hailey and Meghan had completed during the previous session onto the long bank of desks that the participants had gathered around. On this now also had the song choices for each section as well as post it notes describing the emotions at each stage, becoming the crucial element co-curated by the participants for navigating the content of the film. The specific lyrics decided on to structure the each section of the film around were as follows:	personalised approach working autonomously staging collaboration their research findings	emotional transitions growth seeing self through the eyes of others transform nurture mobilisation on bespoke basis		younger - carefree becoming more self aware and self-conscience uncertainty growing resilient social self awareness	'...because I'm happy... clap along if you feel like a room without a roof...' (Happy by Pharrell Williams) positive '... my face above the water... my feet can't touch the ground... touch the ground...' (Waves by Mr. Probz ft. Robin Schulz (Radio Edit)) struggling unstable '... I was scared of dentists and the dark...' (Riptide by Vance Joy) apprehensions '...take me away... dry my eyes... bring colour to my skys...' (Happy Little Pill by Troye Sivan) escapism crying - young child '... I'm clumsy and my head's a mess...' (10ft Tall by Afrojack) (socially?) awkward confused '... we're learning on each other try'na beat the cold... I carry your shoes and I give you my coat...' (Millionaires by The Script) relying/ friendships? to get through/ overcome struggles '... time to begin isn't it... I get a little bit bigger than them... I'll admit I'm just the same as I was...' (It's Time by Imagine Dragons) pressure growth physically growing but still feel young pressure to be ready/ uncertainties '... why you gotta be so rude... don't you know I'm human too...' (Rude by Magic!) bullying seeking empathy '... I really don't care... I really don't care...' (Really Don't Care by Demi Lovato ft. Cher Lloyd) rebellion/ strength giving up '... forget about these stupid little things...' (Amnesia by 5 Seconds of Summer) maturity/ growth '... am I wrong... for thinking about that we could be something for real...' (Am I Wrong by Nico and Vinz) friendships established/ kinship superficial friendships '... and I don't care... go on and tear me a part... and I don't care if you do... cause in a sky... cause in a sky full of stars... I think I see you... I think I see you...' (Sky Full of Stars by Coldplay) maturity/ growth bullying/ stripping agency maturity/ growth raise above it optimism for the future optimism for the future/ still uncertain

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	David had not been present at the later stages of the previous two sessions, which meant he had not seen this timeline before. He sarcastically inquired loudly what it was. In the background, music from the C.D began to play to which he also criticised sarcastically. During his absence, key decisions had been made and the content and production of the film already underway, and now required them take direction from their peers. I had already anticipated some sort of negative reaction from these this participants on his return, and was anxious of the possible disruption this may cause in terms of undermining the other participants' fragile investment in the project that has developed. I have noticed over the course of this fieldwork that the behaviour of David in particular plays a critical role in the prevailing social dynamics of the classroom. I think of him as a gatekeeper to other (male) participants, whereby his performances regulate those around him, elevating his status over the majority. The one to lead, his comrades to follow, I have noted the effects of his prominence. Never once has he chosen to stay on for the second period. He leaves for P. E taking four other participants with him. (I wonder how many of them would stay if he would?) As this group leaves for the second period, there is a notable shift in the group dynamic and in general, there is a relief of tension in the room. He and a handful of others have become the lynch pins that either holds the group dynamic together, or destroys it. Explaining what the group had decided on and the focus of this workshop again to him was meet with equal cynicism, perhaps at having to tolerate decisions made he had not vetted. Frustrating, yet predictable. Whilst mediating this particular tension, I found myself mediating another. Whilst making key decisions during previous workshops, as well as co-curating the timeline, Hailey was becoming gradually more and more frustrated with the attitudes of others. Today sitting with Max at a computer, she simultaneously kept a vigilant watch over the production of the artwork being completed by the others, occasionally offering criticism loudly. Whilst I was happy to witness her enthusiasm, I became anxious she was overly dictating the workshop, causing others to rebel. In response to her critique, others snapped back at her, questioning her authority through	strategy to self empower undermining through feeling undermined disempowerment catalysing cohesion participant gatekeeper harnessing agency socially an affect of social empowerment adverse effect of leadership for collaboration criticality/ policing pre-existing social dynamics	imposed sabotage social policing social conflicts manifesting as collaborative conflict		personal insults. On numerous occasions she explained to Miss. Marsh and I that certain pieces of film would need to be done again. Upon such moments, Miss. Marsh did attempt to reconcile, reminding her that this is a collaboration, and that she would not be able to do everything. There were moments within these incidents however where I felt Hailey was looking to me for support in her assertions, seeking my approval so I would intervene. Attempting to stay as mutual as possible but without wanting to disparage her enthusiasm, I tried to carefully handled the situation through praising her commitment whilst also reminding her of the editing possibilities at our disposal when using iMovies, and not to be too concerned at this point about particular aspects of individual's film. On the surface both these instances could be viewed as negative, disruptive interactions, with both David and Hailey displaying hostile attitudes: the first was cantankerous, the second combative. However, the focus of such disruption has generally been centred on, or catalytic of, the film making activities, augmented by pre-existing social classroom dynamics. Particularly evident with Hailey is her palpable enthusiasm for the project, which, perhaps due to her pre existing social status within this group, is met with little recognition, and, in interactions like today, contempt. Conversely, David's apathetic attitude, translated into disruptive behaviour, often has a contagious affect on his peers. Again I return the lynch pin metaphor, where, in the context of this workshop, one recruits (David) while the other estranges (Hailey). Another significant interaction that occurred during the second half of the workshop was a dialogue where I sat and worked with Lewis, Mat and Sam on pieces of film. I began working on my own piece of film, and together we sat, crafted, and conversed. This was a moment where I sensed that the film making process was becoming a conduit for conversation. I began the conversation by asking what they thought they do after upon leaving school. Whilst Mat described wanting to get into construction, Lewis and Sam described wanting their thoughts about possibly joining the Army or Royal Navy. We discussed the army and Iraq, where I offered a personal antidote of my uncle's involvement in the army and his time whilst on tour in Afghanistan. During this time, the conversation	disempowering her judging authority equal/ level out power dictate advocate critique as an authority figure? unbiased/ diplomatic enchantment mentitating strategy investment mentitating strategy drawing on resources/ tools critical dictating performance lynch pins catalyst collaborative creativity social empowerment conflicts/ tensions enchantment and investment fragile/ vulnerable disempowering her disenchantment channelled performances influential/ ring leader catalysts influential/ ring leader becomes disempowered rapport building balancing power creativity rapport building creativity rapport building creativity rapport building aspiration rapport building	seeking my role as one of authority my own self reflection attempting to reaffirm/ empower whilst remaining diplomatic my reflection engagement strategy balance power

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	wove in and out of these personal anecdotes and discussion about the film. Sam experimented with dipping the film into a cup of ink, taking it out, and drying it very quickly which lead to the film having a translucent dyed effect. Mat used his hands to thickly spread ink onto his film, commenting on the pearlescent, almost metallic effect it was creating. Such moments of interactions, which have usually occurred later on in each workshop, have become vital in terms of building up rapport. A final significant gesture that occurred during this workshop was, for the first time Miss. Marsh sitting down and working autonomously on a piece of her own film. Throughout all the previous workshops, Miss. Marsh has supported me through adopting a quasi-facilitator role, helping keep the participants engaged in the activities, however, this was the first time she actively took part in the workshop as a participant. Such gestures, I believe, can be fundamental in encouraging the pupil participants to engage with the activities. Upon viewing the teacher taking the time to take part, the participants may reassess the value of the project.	rapport through creativity self initiative acceptance gesture of investment catalyses agency and confidence	reciprocity transform legitimising participation		communi- cating their knowledge seeking autonomous praise strategy for individual empower- ment physical social autonomy forging collaboration autonomy empowers social isolation mirroring confrontation confrontation catalyses confrontation	Entry Fifteenth: 29/10/14 (55 minutes) Friction, Abrasion and Appreciation Following on from the previous workshop, the aim of today was to finish off the remainder of the artwork for the competition submission, as well as design a device to give the audience so they will be able to interpret the meanings of the colours used. Today's session was held in a different classroom to the one we are usually based in. During this workshop, whilst only a single school period (half the duration of the majority of the workshops) I witnessed several different performances from the participants. Whilst I have been trying to facilitate these workshops as collaborative events, I have become increasingly aware that many of the participants struggle to work as a genuine collective and prefer to work alone, even though physically situated in a group, working on the same activity with a common goal in mind. Often participants have identified or specifically requested separate roles and tasks to be responsible for, seeking recognition and praise on an individualistic level. On this occasion, Sean (who they teacher speculates to be Autistic but has yet to be formally diagnosed) refused to work with two other participants (Sam and Mat) on designing the audience device. Positioning himself away from the rest of the class, Sean stated that he was the only person going to work on this activity. At this moment, I responded through suggesting the other participants sit near him (but not at the same table so to preserve Sean's desired autonomy) and work together to produce some other ideas. Over the course of the workshop, the Sean enthusiastically displayed and explained his creation to me. Steven (who has been identified as having Asperger's) refused to take part in any of the workshop activity, sitting away from the group with his arms folded. As I approached him to see if anything was wrong, Miss. Marsh bluntly intervened, inquiring in quite an abrasive manner as to why he was not contributing to the task. Steven replied in an equally confrontational manner that he just didn't want to take part today. Clearly Steven was reluctant to take part, however Miss. Marsh, whilst attempting to reconcile the situation, (thinking perhaps	unanticipated change in fieldwork setting my reflections reflection -in- action authority exerts power encroaches on participatory ethos

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
reflection -in- action my own self reflection my reflections peacemaker role diplomat role gatekeeper deciding peacemaker role seeking me as authority figure diplomat/ advocacy role	this was also being helpful to me in trying to facilitate the workshop), was actually making it worse. I was anxious that now that Steven was going to feel forced into participating. One of the biggest challenges throughout this fieldwork is how I mediate moments such as this, particularly when Miss. Marsh is exercising her authority, which in some cases perpetuates the tension further, instead of diffusing it. In other moments, such as today, her actions were actually running contrary to my ethical stance as a researching-practitioner, where I am striving to foster genuine engagement with participants, which is often extremely fragile and very easily interrupted. Recently I have found that participants clashing over decisions affecting the project have caused many of these interruptions, frequently erupting into highly aggressive spats. I find myself constantly mediating conflict and tensions between those who are displaying initiative, enthusiasm and leadership qualities, a capacity I want this project to nurture but which is often channelled through authoritative and hegemonic behaviour, with those who are less confident or those who are not as invested in the project. Such conflict was ignited during this workshop through being in a different classroom that had no computers. Max and Hailey wanted to work on the music and were instructed by Miss. Marsh that they could go down to the library and use a computer there, whilst the rest of the group stayed and continued on with the artwork. On her return to the classroom, Hailey began commenting on and critiquing her peers' work, exclaiming that some pieces would need to be done again. Met with contempt by the other participants, a confrontation ensued with raised voices, swearing, and a complete loss of concentration; ruining the focused group dynamic I had just pieced together. It was frustrating to witness and try and resolve as she I could see Hailey's own frustration portrayed through disappointment, whilst the others were interpreting her behaviour as antagonising, looking to me as some sort of authority figure to reprimand her for her negative comments.	aid conflicting conflicting values of participation conflicting values of participation authority asserting authority reprimanding disenchantment conflicting values of participation conflicting values of participation collaboration conflicts power and control collaboration conflicts collaboration conflicts peacemaker collaboration conflicts active/ self mobilising enchantment empowered creativity to instil dominating/control/ critical disenchanted passive/ insecure/ intimidated collaboration conflicts catalysed catalysed change in setting lack of resources autonomous active leaders directed authority privilege creativity exerting control/ dominating invested creativity criticism resentment (from previous privilege?) defensive criticism catalyst enchantment mediator/ peacemaker disempowered/ enchanted her enchantment not mirrored exerting control/ dominating strategy to disempower her criticism	mirroring confrontation conflict channelled through creativity nurture leadership/ investment whilst negotiate collaboration nurture insecurities criticality collaboration conflict catalysed by pre-existing social conflicts criticality as a gesture of investment	confrontation catalyses confrontation nurture on bespoke basis fragility of collaboration	physically staging collaboration gesture of acceptance conflict in values	Entry Sixteen: 3/11/14 (1 hour and 50 minutes) Divergent Dynamics The purpose of this workshop was to finalise the design of the device that will be given to audience members to consult when they are watching the film so they can apprehend what the colours depicted in the film mean. Taking inspiration from one of the participant's prototypes made in the previous workshop, I designed a template that took the shape, once folded origami style, of a pinwheel star. Once pushed together by the user, the colours are revealed which have their meanings printed on them. I'd hoped that the performative nature would appeal to the participants, as well as the fact that it is relatively simple to fold and slot together. I planned to demonstrate the device, and, if they liked it and there was group consensus, to then show the participants how to make it. Before the workshop began, I came in early to set up the room. During this time Miss. Marsh and I discussed what had occurred in the previous workshop with Steven in particular refusing to take part, and that his behaviour had continued on during the week in other classes. She told me that she had threatened to call his mother about his behaviour and then handed me a neatly hand-written letter of apology. Miss. Marsh has already informed me that Steven has Asperger's Syndrome (a form of Autism), which, on previous occasions when he has displayed challenging behaviour or an apathetic attitude, has been raised as the prognoses. During today's workshop, it was interesting, yet not surprising (as he had recently been reprimanded for his behaviour), to note that today Steven was really engaging today with this workshop task. For the first time Steven sat with the rest of the group and actively sought my attention, calling me by my name and requested further demonstrations, after which he completed his own pinwheel. I felt relieved that he was engaging, however I was aware that this was perhaps not due to the nature of the activity itself but because of previously being reprimanded by Miss. Marsh, he was now being solicited into taking part. This is one of many occasions throughout my fieldwork where I feel the participatory agenda of my methods has been brought into question, where often participants, under the teacher's vigilance, could have at times felt that they have	goal goal kinetic enchant easy/ achievable collective democratic physically setting up collaboration opting out she had threatened to call his mother about his behaviour found guilty coercion found guilty affects learning and behaviour affects learning and behaviour raised as the prognoses punished invested coerced investment? physical social collaboration gesture of acceptance one-to-one demos learned self mobilise creativity/ achievement investment creative punished authority coerced enchantment? democratic/ voluntary conflicting values authority power influenced by authority	participants' choice reprimanded by gatekeeper gatekeeper exerting authority feeling forced to participate? reflection -in- action my reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
attempting to reaffirm/ empower/ rebalance power	had to take part in the project. Upon such moments, I continually coercion/ disempowered rebalance power empower participants too. Whilst trying to be helpful, I often find myself implicitly at odds aid with the teacher's own agenda, an insight clearly apparent when authority hierarchy/ pedagogic style institutionalised setting where a teacher has to be present at all times. The dynamic of my workshops fluctuates between one I am carefully attempting to cultivate, with one she already has firmly ingrained. Staged in a democracy/ collaboration conflicting hierarchy/ pedagogic style institutionalised setting of conduct (hers), and a creative, explorative and hopefully fun hierarchy/ pedagogic style empowerment through autonomy environment for self-expression and collaboration (mine), which often perpetuates subtle tensions and perhaps confusion for the participants. democracy/ collaboration conflicting values contradictory values A further significant incident, confirming an insight gleaned previously, reoccurred in the second half of this workshop. After the period bell went, the usual suspects (David, Dan and Joe) left for their next subject, leaving behind the seven or eight participants who usually stay on (today it was Hailey, Meghan, Max, Mat, Sam, Sean, Lewis and Steven). Leaving some of the participants to work on the computers editing the film music, I worked with Hailey and Sean on my laptop, attempting to edit a digital version of their film I had recorded during the week in iMovie. During this time, Hailey (who has previously really asserted herself in the project) and Sean (another who has been identified as showing signs of Autism) entered into numerous disagreements. Hailey raised her voice and told Sean to 'grow up' and to 'stop being such a baby', to which the Sean responded by calling her a 'bitch'. At this point I stood up to make it obvious to Miss. Marsh to intervene. I find moments such as these incredibly difficult to conciliate, as I do not want my role to be compromised if I am forced to act as an authority figure. I have conflict of roles/ threat to acceptance become increasingly more conscious of how far my responsibilities should or should not extend researching within this environment. A further example of my hesitancy occurred shortly afterwards whilst the participants and I wrote the end credits for the film. When deciding on titles to give her peers, Hailey insisted that she be delegating/ exerting power known as the Director. To this, Sean requested that everybody be control/ dominate known as the directors, resulting in yet more confrontation between the pair, which again the teacher quickly resolved. delegating/ exerting power control/ dominate seeking equality upholding a collaborative ethos conflict authority mediate	contradictory values/ cultures and actions			enchanted gesture of acceptance engagement with technology sacrificial gesture	Entry Seventeen: 10/11/14 (55 minutes) Tendencies The aim of this workshop was to prepare cinema style tickets and popcorn boxes for an invited audience (of other school teachers) to a screening of the finished film, taking place the following week in the classroom. Before I had entered the class, and whilst sitting the school reception waiting for Miss. Marsh, Sean knocked on the glass doors and waved at me. He left and then returned to the reception area and told me Miss. Marsh had instructed him to take me up to the classroom. Upon arriving into the classroom, I began decanting the equipment from my bag. Sean began inquiry about the equipment, particularly upon seeing the large projector. Miss. Marsh arrived at the classroom, and we began to rearrange the furniture whilst I briefed her on what I was hoping to achieve in this workshop. During this time, Sean, who was actually still meant to be on his morning break, stayed in the classroom and then helped me to set up the projector, passing me cables and opening up the laptop before taking up his station as the self proclaimed 'technician'. gatekeeper gesture of acceptance gatekeeper technology technology technology goal sacrifice enchantment technology self mobilised/ enchanted technology Before the workshop began, Miss. Marsh had Youth Achievement Award certificates to give out to three of the pupils – Meghan, Catherine and Ricky - as they had been absent from an assembly the previous week. The teacher asked that I present these to the students as they were called out in front of the class. As the teacher called out each name I gave them their certificate and shook their hand, congratulating them, feeling a sense of honour being invited to participant in such a ceremony. public display of achievement/ instilling value being able to instil value After this I screened the final film for the participants to see on a projector. Sean, who had helped set up, sat next to me by the laptop whilst everyone else sat around a bank of desks. To my disappointment, the film was met with little reaction from the participants. I enthusiastically congratulated them, and remarked on their accomplishment, to which Miss. Marsh and Maddy agreed, responding equally as animated. Apathetic reactions such as this have occurred frequently through this fieldwork, where the participants often acknowledge praise with indifference. It has often been difficult to gage whether or not the participants truly do apathy a sense of importance apathy attempting to instil value attempting to instil value/ achievement authority praise attempting to instil value on the surface nonchalance genuine	my own self reflection attempting to reaffirm/ empower my reflection
reflection -in- action forced to take an authoritarian role		autonomous work dominating social conflict ignited by investment	conflict channelled through creativity	seeking individual role expressing achievement publicly is a social faux pas apathetic achievement apathy

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my reflection facilitating whilst participants have autonomous decision my own self reflection pragmatic facilitation	experience a sense of achievement, as they rarely vocalise any sentiments. Possibly this could be because of the pre-existing social dynamics embedded within this group, where what is said and how participants act and react to one another is policed by each other. Participants risk being ridiculed by peers if they were to express how they felt, particularly if it was a positive statement. I have noticed expressing accomplishment has almost become a social faux pas with this group. How can conviviality be taught, as well as the capacity to pay reverence to themselves (without the fear of being mocked)? After the screening, I began the workshop activity off by showing the participants how to make the card boxes for popcorn. At this point I also suggested that some of the participants, if they wanted to, could go on the computers to design a cinema ticket style invitation. In response to this the majority of the participants went on the computers, leaving me with two participants, Sean and Catherine, making the boxes. Mat, usually quite shy, specifically request to work on the origami pinwheel from the previous workshop. For the popcorn boxes, I had found a simple free template online which I printed several of, as well as, on high quality card, close up sections of their films. Using the template as a stencil, the participants cut out the shape, gluing and folding it together. Whilst Catherine engaged in this task, Sean (who had previously assisted me with the projector earlier on) struggled to complete all the stages to make a box. Becoming frustrated, he stopped and began interacting with the other participants. I have found over the course of this fieldwork becoming more and more attuned to certain participants' tendencies. I am aware that Sean finds it challenging to concentrate on one task for longer periods of time and has a precarious temperament. In terms of the ticket invitation design, I suggested to those participants to look for inspiration online for their ideas. By the end of the workshop, I only had one complete prototype handed to me by Lewis. To my delight the prototype was extremely sophisticated in its design. Lewis had tried to make his design look as authentic to a real cinema ticket - including all the relevant information in terms of location, date and time, as well as even including a Mastercard	expressing achievement publicly is a social faux pas social rules enforced on self engaged through creativity learned individual approaches/ personalities	apathetic achievement build up repertoire/ personalised knowledges		logo. As I enthusiastically praised Lewis for his work, I was again met with little in the way of self-confirmation.	attempting to reaffirm/ empower

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
my own gesture of investment my reflection	Entry Eighteen: 17/11/14 (55 minutes) Performance Prior to this session, I had taken the cinema ticket Lewis had previously designed, and replicated in on card, and perforated one end so to create a stub. I posted these to the school so the pupils could the pupils could invite guests a screening which would take place in this session. I arrived early for today's session so to position and test out the projector, speaker and video. After the class had settled down and the register had been taken, the participants divided themselves into teams to prepare for the screening. David and Joe decanted popcorn into boxes made in the previous workshop and positioned a table by the classroom entrance, which they both sat at, as well as organising the pinwheel mood cards. Sean and Sam chose to sit by the laptop, speaker and projector I had set up. The rest of the participants moved tables out the way and positioned chairs to form a cinema-style audience. Once the room and props were set up, Miss. Marsh suggested we have a rehearsal before the audience were due to arrive, particularly as Hailey had planned to give a short introductory speech. David enthusiastically stood up and announced he would be pretend to be an incoming audience member. He left the classroom and entered again in character. Slightly mocking the situation, the class laughed as he jovially entered the room, showing his ticket to Joe. Once Hailey had rehearsed her speech in front of the group, Miss. Marsh suggested someone be ready to stand up at the end to answer any questions. Again David confidently volunteered, quite certain he wanted this role, and stood up in front of the room. It was interesting to watch the concurrence contained in his performance, an insecurity masked by flippancy. I suggested he present the audience with the physical film reel containing the participants' artwork I had brought with me. During this period of rehearsal, Sean, who had assigned himself the role of technician in the previous session, had taken up position by my computer and the projector. He was playing with the mouse pad on my laptop, not clicking on anything but appearing to be operating something. I have noticed him doing this before, and	group mobilised group cohesion surrounding common goal confidence/ investment masked so to avoid social faux pas seeking individual role/ responsibility	shared goal catalyses investment social strategy seeking autonomy within the collective		performance for social empowerment gesture of value empowerment strategy	perhaps put it down to wanting to appear as if he was operating the machine in front of his peers, displaying a knowledge that perhaps he thought others would admire him for. He suggested to me we play some music quietly as the audience entered the room to which I enthusiastically agreed, kneeling down next to him, showing him how to operate the iTunes application. Sam, sitting next to the projector, kept fiddling with the projector lens cap. Even though we were both aware there was no operational need for him to sit there, I went along with his performance, which perhaps might have made him feel important and valued. There was a jovial atmosphere in the classroom and a more harmonious dynamic between the participants than I have witnessed previously. The audience began to fill in, with a teacher from the adjacent classroom bringing his entire class of around 20 pupils with him. Several other teachers also joined. Once seated and calm, I quietly instructed the technician (Sean) to fade out the music as Hailey stood up at the front to recited her speech. Whilst smiling and occasionally laughing, she confidently outlined the project and the work that was involved without the need for the script. Afterwards, I again subtly instructed Sean on how to play the film, signalling to Sam to remove the lens cap from the projector. Throughout the screening, pupil audience members sang along with the music. At the end, David stood up, thanking the audience for attending, and if there were any questions. He also presented them with the original film reel and past it around the room. The guest teachers enthusiastically praised the participants, commenting on the animation technique exclaiming they had never seen anything like it before, as well as the mood cards, which they requested to keep. Before the end of the session, I handed out DVDs containing all of the participants' films, which also contain a small portfolio-style book of photography I had taken of their work throughout this phase of the fieldwork. Whilst giving the outputs of the workshops back to the participants, I also invested time and money in getting the booklets printed professionally so to give them back something that felt high quality back and hopefully something they would be proud to reflect on and show to others.	presenting the participants back their work instilling value/ my own gesture of investment

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Entry Twenty: 9/12/14 (School Trip) Showcase The inter-school film competition screening concluded this secondary stage of the fieldwork. Once again I was invited by Miss. Marsh to attend the competition awards ceremony, along with the pupils and Maddy. Taken place at the same venue as the previous competition, there was slight sense of déjà vu as I met the group again at the venue, where there was a great deal of excitement as well as anticipation, which I was equally feeling. Out of a total of 71 entries, twenty entries were short-listed resulting in twenty different cohorts arriving to the venue ranging from primary school age up to seniors at high school. (The competition was split into age categories.) Taking our seat once again the in auditorium, I noticed it was completely full. After a welcome presentation from the competition organiser, all twenty short listed films were screened on the enormous iMAX cinema screen. It was tense wait for ours as it was shown last. Upon viewing all the other animations, which were mainly created using stop motion with narrating voice-overs, I was delighted to see that the theme of education and particularly emotional experiences, had not been used in any other movie. As well as seeing that no other entry had used the Direct Animation technique, I also noticed there was little to no inclusion of music. When our film finally came on screen, it was a completely different visual experience. The commercial music the participants had chosen boomed from the speakers, gripping the audience's attention, with some other young people singing along and moving in their seats. Having a completely different dynamic to the other entries, and whilst communicating a meaningful and profound message, it felt as though our film created quite a stir. In stark contrast to all the other entries (and of course I'll admit my bias here), our film appeared more cutting-edge and sophisticated, an aesthetic I hoped the participants were equally as proud of. Looking down the row, I tried to gage the participants' reactions. Unsurprisingly, the participants mostly maintained their usual despondent exteriors, which I have grown accustomed to when it comes to expressing pride or achievement, particularly in front of any audience.	enchantment through competitiveness instilling value value imbued by association displaying achievement as social faux pas	controlling sense of achievement value imbued by association social strategy		authority praise legitimises public display of achievement acceptance reciprocity	After the screenings, and before announcing the winner, the organisers had arranged a special preview of a new film that had recently been released. I recall anxiously sitting through the film and unable to concentrate, worrying about the competition outcome, and that if the participants did not win anything, they might leave feeling disappointed or that they had failed. Spilt into two age categories (primary and high school), the organisers then announced the runners up before the winners. Upon hearing the judge announce our film had come in joint second place, the participants, as well as Miss. Marsh, Maddy and I burst into celebrations within the clamour of audience applause. A couple of the pupils were invited up in front of the full auditorium to collect their prize and have a photo taken. At this point I was surprised to see Steven, who had been previously very reluctant to take part in the workshops, jump out of his seat and enthusiastically run down to the front. Before the class left the venue, and in the same space as before, Miss. Marsh took a group photograph, which I was again requested to be in. Upon returning to the classroom on my next visit, I was humbled to see the photo pinned on the wall next to their proudly displayed winner's certificate. Ending this phase of the study with a second shared experience, built upon the foundations of the previous phase, allowed both the participants and I to enter into the third phase with a more secured and convivial research relationship. This shared experience ended again on a highly positive note, with the participants receiving formal recognition and praise through winning another award. Whilst this entire competition was fortuitous in the context of this fieldwork, winning an award was an additional bonus to the young people being able to see their work, the fruits of their labour, on the big screen where they would typically see famous Hollywood blockbusters.	my own self reflection my own self reflection

Transcript One

Date: 2/2/15

Duration: 50 minutes

Hailey

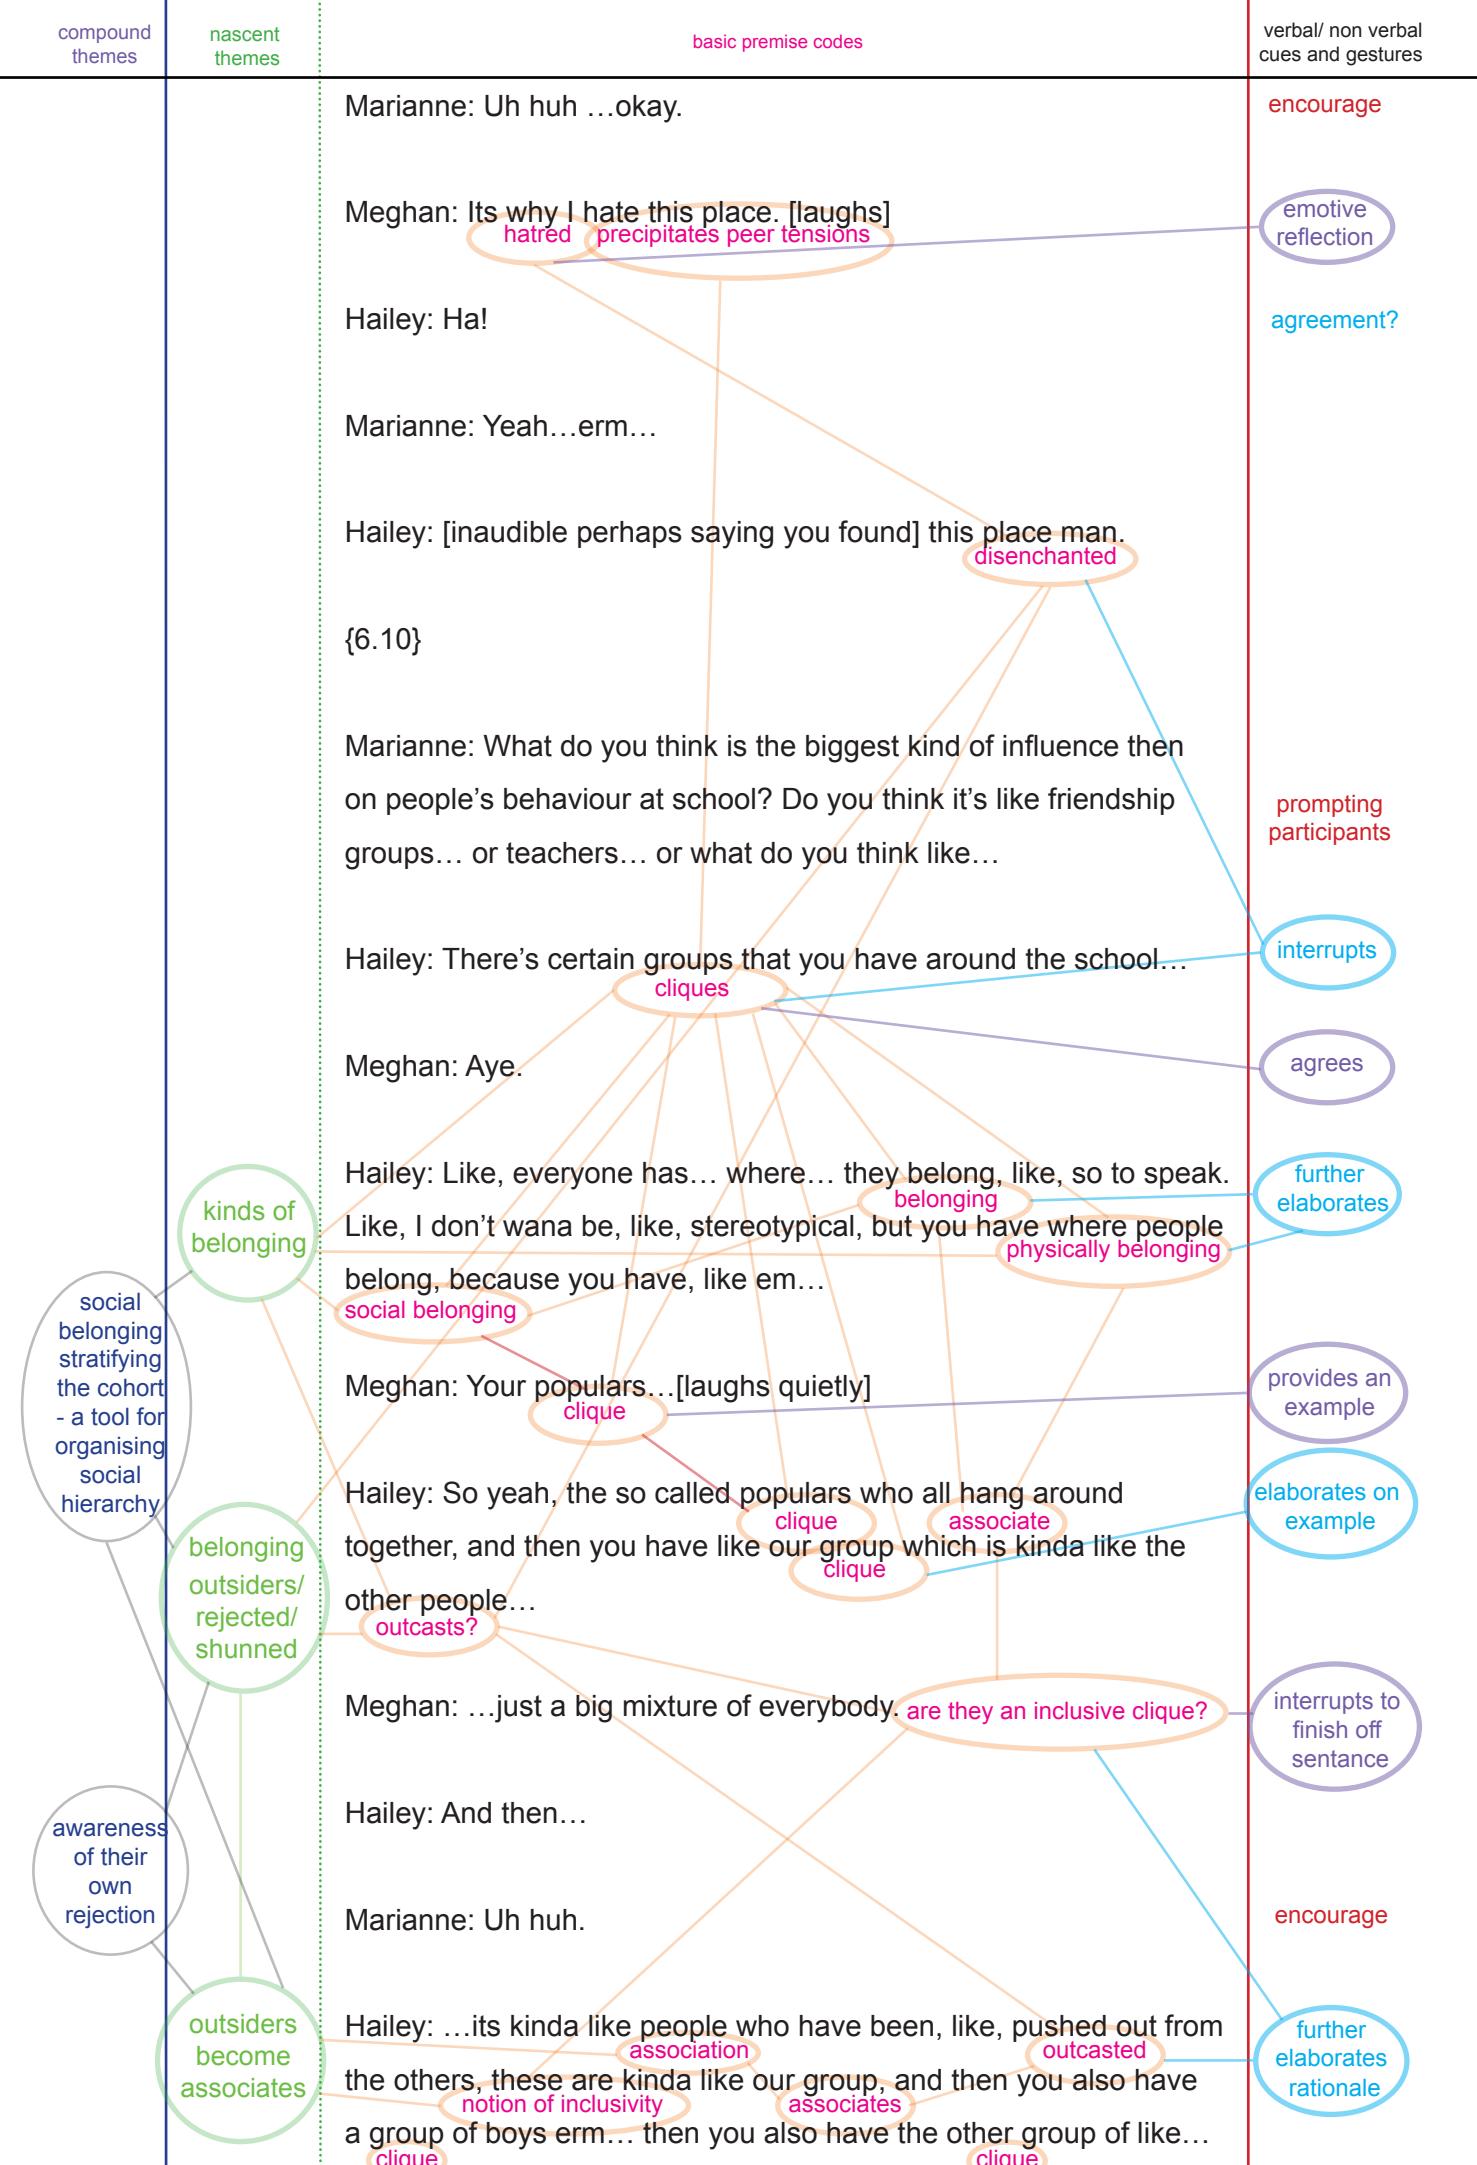

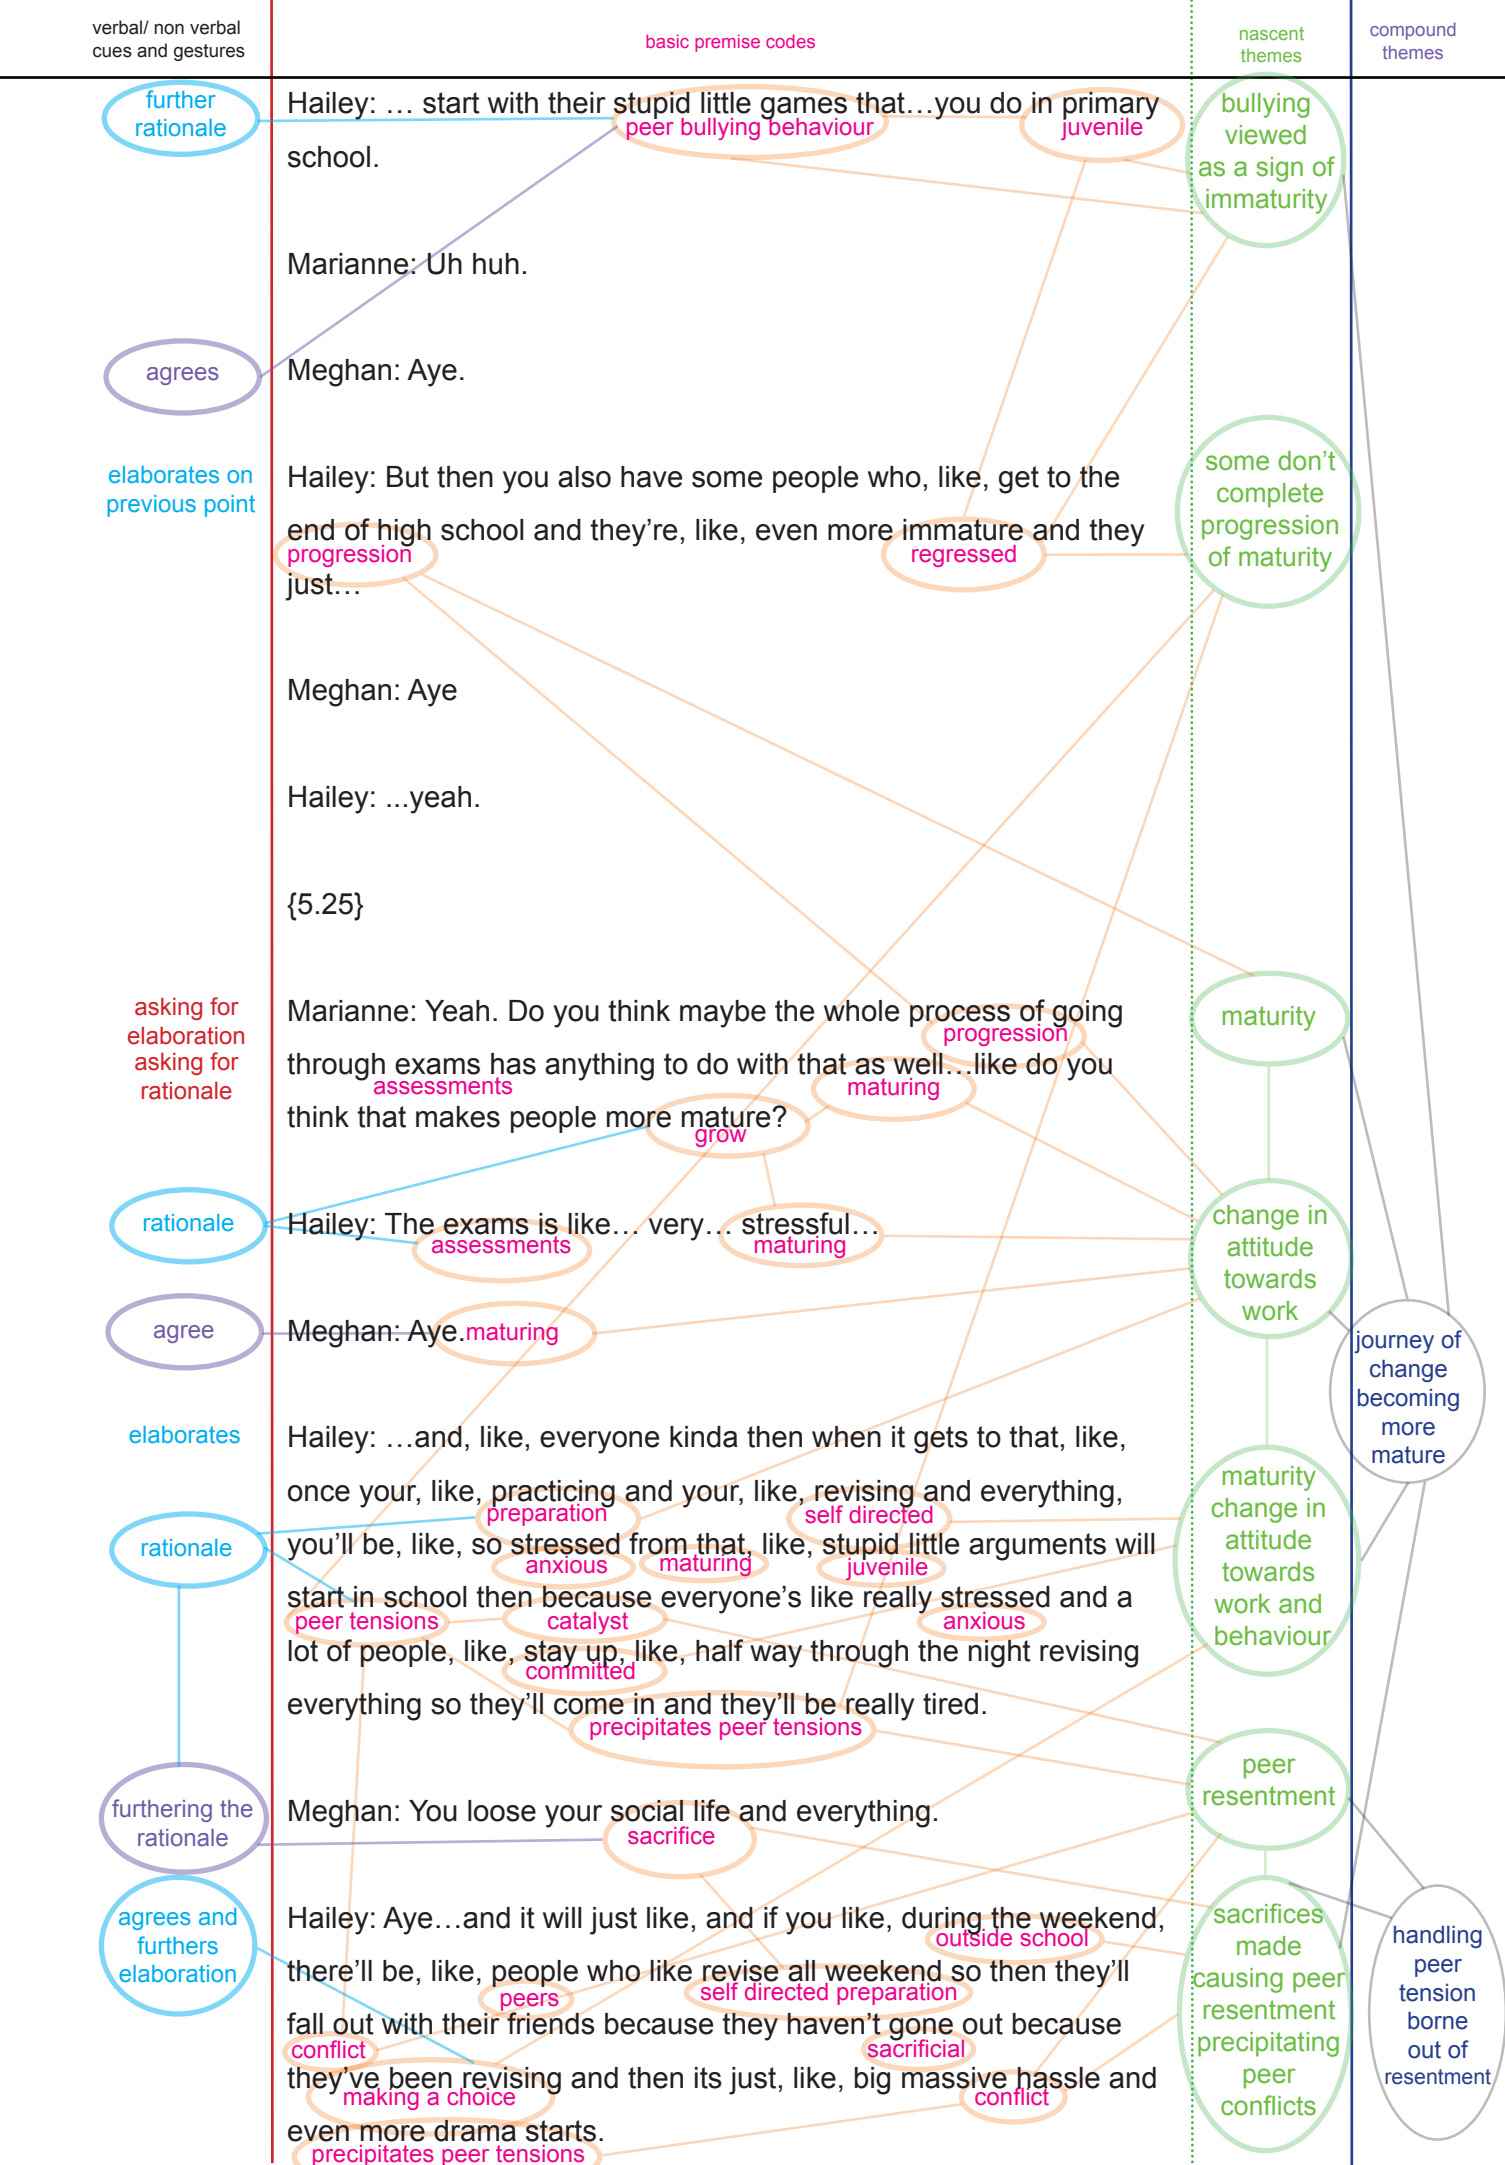

Meghan

Marianne

verbal & nonverbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	distilled themes
	Marianne: So are you guys in the middle of doing your prelims at the moment?
agrees	Meghan: ...Uhuh.
	Hailey: Yeah, I've only got one left.
asking for elaboration	Marianne: How's it going?
	Hailey: Err...well... everyone failed the Maths and English ...	failure
asking to confirm	Marianne: Really?
confirms	Hailey: Everyone failed it.	certainty of failure mirrors	Meghan: Everyone.
echoes	Hailey: Everyone failed it.	certainty of failure
asking for elaboration	Marianne: What happened, was it just really difficult or was it...
	Meghan: Some people said on Facebook that they'd passed.
iterates previous statement	Hailey: Naw, everyone failed them. They might have passed like one of the papers but everyone failed it... like altogether...erm....	certainty of failure certainty of failure sarcasm	Meghan: [sarcastic] Makes me feel sooo good...
	Hailey: laughs
provides rationale	Hailey: ...er naw cos its like a lot of people weren't prepared for a lot of it.	lack of preparation
asking to confirm	Marianne: Really?
other participant answers	Meghan: ...a lot of them [inaudible perhaps saying are on tis' now.]
other participant elaborates	Hailey: Uh huh... and some of the teachers, like in English, like our class, cos there's only three National 5s in that class so its like...like	sit of blame - authority figures inevitability
		inevitability of failure generalised failure	pessimistic sense of a general inevitability of failure classroom struggles

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	erm...half of us like hadn't been taught like what to do cos they was only like three National 5s in our class so a lot of it was focused on National 4 work. Marianne: Right, okay....Prelims are funny ones, so when are your actual exams? Hailey: Er.... Meghan: June is it not? Marianne: June? Hailey: No, it starts April the 28th and I think like our last one for like the subjects that they teach at this school is like May the 28th but the actual exams go on until June cos there some weird ones at the end. Marianne: Uh huh. So are you, are you doing anything at college you two? Are you doing any classes at college or are you just doing all your classes here? Hailey: Here. I burnt myself sooo... erm... I've got very restricted movement in this arm...it was'nae even funny, it hurt so bad. Meghan: How did ya do it? Hailey: I had chicken curry and then I spilt it on my arm...and it actual burned Meghan: Did that not hurt? Hailey: ...it was like a proper burn and then it had blisters and everything and then last night... Meghan: ...like chicken curries are the like, see the sauce, that's wan of the worst burns you can get... Hailey: I know, like last night, see like the blisters burst and its so	diffused and diluted attention				sore man... Marianne: Well... okay so lets [Meghan laughs] erm...we'll just start then, so what I'm interested is talking to young people about is your experiences of school. Hailey: Oooft Meghan: Ooft Marianne: So [Hailey and Meghan laugh]...be as honest as you want and you can say whatever you want in this room and you know that I'm not going to be telling anyone what you have been saying so speak as freely as you want... Hailey: [to Meghan]...you have to swear to confidentiality as well. Meghan: I do...why would I wana tell anybody anything? [laughs] Hailey: Okay Marianne: So...oh yeah of course... okay... Hailey: We've got that covered. [Both Hailey and Meghan laugh] {3.27} Marianne: So the first kinda questions are sort of linked to each other, so what I'm interested in looking at is what do you think... er... how do you think in general young people feel about going to school...high school? Hailey: Hate it. Meghan: Aye...hate it. Hailey: Hate it.	redirecting the topic sarcasm sarcastic response mirrored reassuring confidentiality trust ensuring trust ensuring trust participants reassuring each other participants reassuring each other referring to a general 'other' - removing the individual definitive mirrored echoing previous response
asking to confirm confirms expanding on the topic tangent: personal anecdote responding to tangent furthering tangent			pessimistic deterministic view of school

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
elaborating	Meghan: Some of them enjoy it...but some of them don't.					Meghan: I have that in Maths. peer tensions	personal anecdote asking for rationale	Marianne: What do you hate about it?					Marianne: Uh huhyou have that in Maths?	asking to confirm other participant elaborates	Hailey: Like... you just come in and there's like...it's not even like the classes, cos sometime the classes can be okay but a lot of teachers like pick on certain people... mundane routine authority figures targeted				peer struggles and conflicts	Meghan: ...with  [male name omitted] ...och. He just like, he like makes comments aw the time, and like I get pure annoyed dead easily... antagonised quickly frustrated	elaborates
	Marianne: Uh huh ...					Hailey: That...that's what happens with me and  [male name omitted]	agrees and echoes
hesitant to be negative	Hailey: Erm... and then you also have like, when your like, during break and lunch you'll have like so many people like...aw cant say that... naw you have so many people like erm... just making comments about others and just... social time condense peers condense peers peer tensions				peer conflicts escalate	Meghan: Aye...it takes everything for me no tae just snap at hum and just...violent. acts of aggression/ low tolerance	further elaborates finishes other participant's sentence	Meghan: Being bullies...just put it that way. peer bullying					Hailey: In English, you've got me and  [male name omitted]...but that's not too bad now.  just shouts out now randomly now. disruptive behaviour	further elaborates on previous point
agrees	Hailey: Yeah. peer bullying					{4.45}
asking for confirmation	Marianne: Yeah, so it cause there's so many young people in the school that your just all... become a catalyst condense peers	bullying physically ignited by high concentraton				Marianne: Erm...what do you think, do you think over the course of high school, do you think that young people, your behaviour changes at all throughout high school? shifts
further elaborates	Hailey: Aye! And there's always like a new rumour going round about someone. bulling behaviour					Meghan: Uh huh.	agrees
	Marianne: Uh huh.					Hailey: Yeah. behaviour change	agrees elaborates through iterating previous point	Meghan: Yeah it's just too crowded...I don't like that. condense		physical spaces and locations can be catalysts for peer tensions and conflicts			Marianne: Like how?	asking for elaboration agrees	Hailey: Aye. condense					Hailey: Like some people, like, near the end of it get, like, more mature and, like, there's people where, like, near the start of, like, high school there would have bin, like, mucking around and [Meghan voicing agreement] not really caring but they get to the end and they're... a...bit maturer, not saying that they, like, still, like, knuckle down, like, and completely do their work but they're, like, maturer and they understand more situations and don't, like, start stupid rumours or... growing up progression transition growth apathetic grown appreciate life experience behaviour change bullying behaviour	rationale asking for further elaboration	Marianne: Do think that then would ever start to affect how well people were doing at school? become a catalyst				transition maturity signalling shift in behaviour	Marianne: Uh huh.
confirms and elaborates	Hailey: Yeah because like you can sit in a class and if your like sat near someone you hate or your in a class with someone you hate there'll be constant like shouting across the room. classroom setting peer tensions peer tensions antagonistic	tensions conflict		journey of change becoming more mature

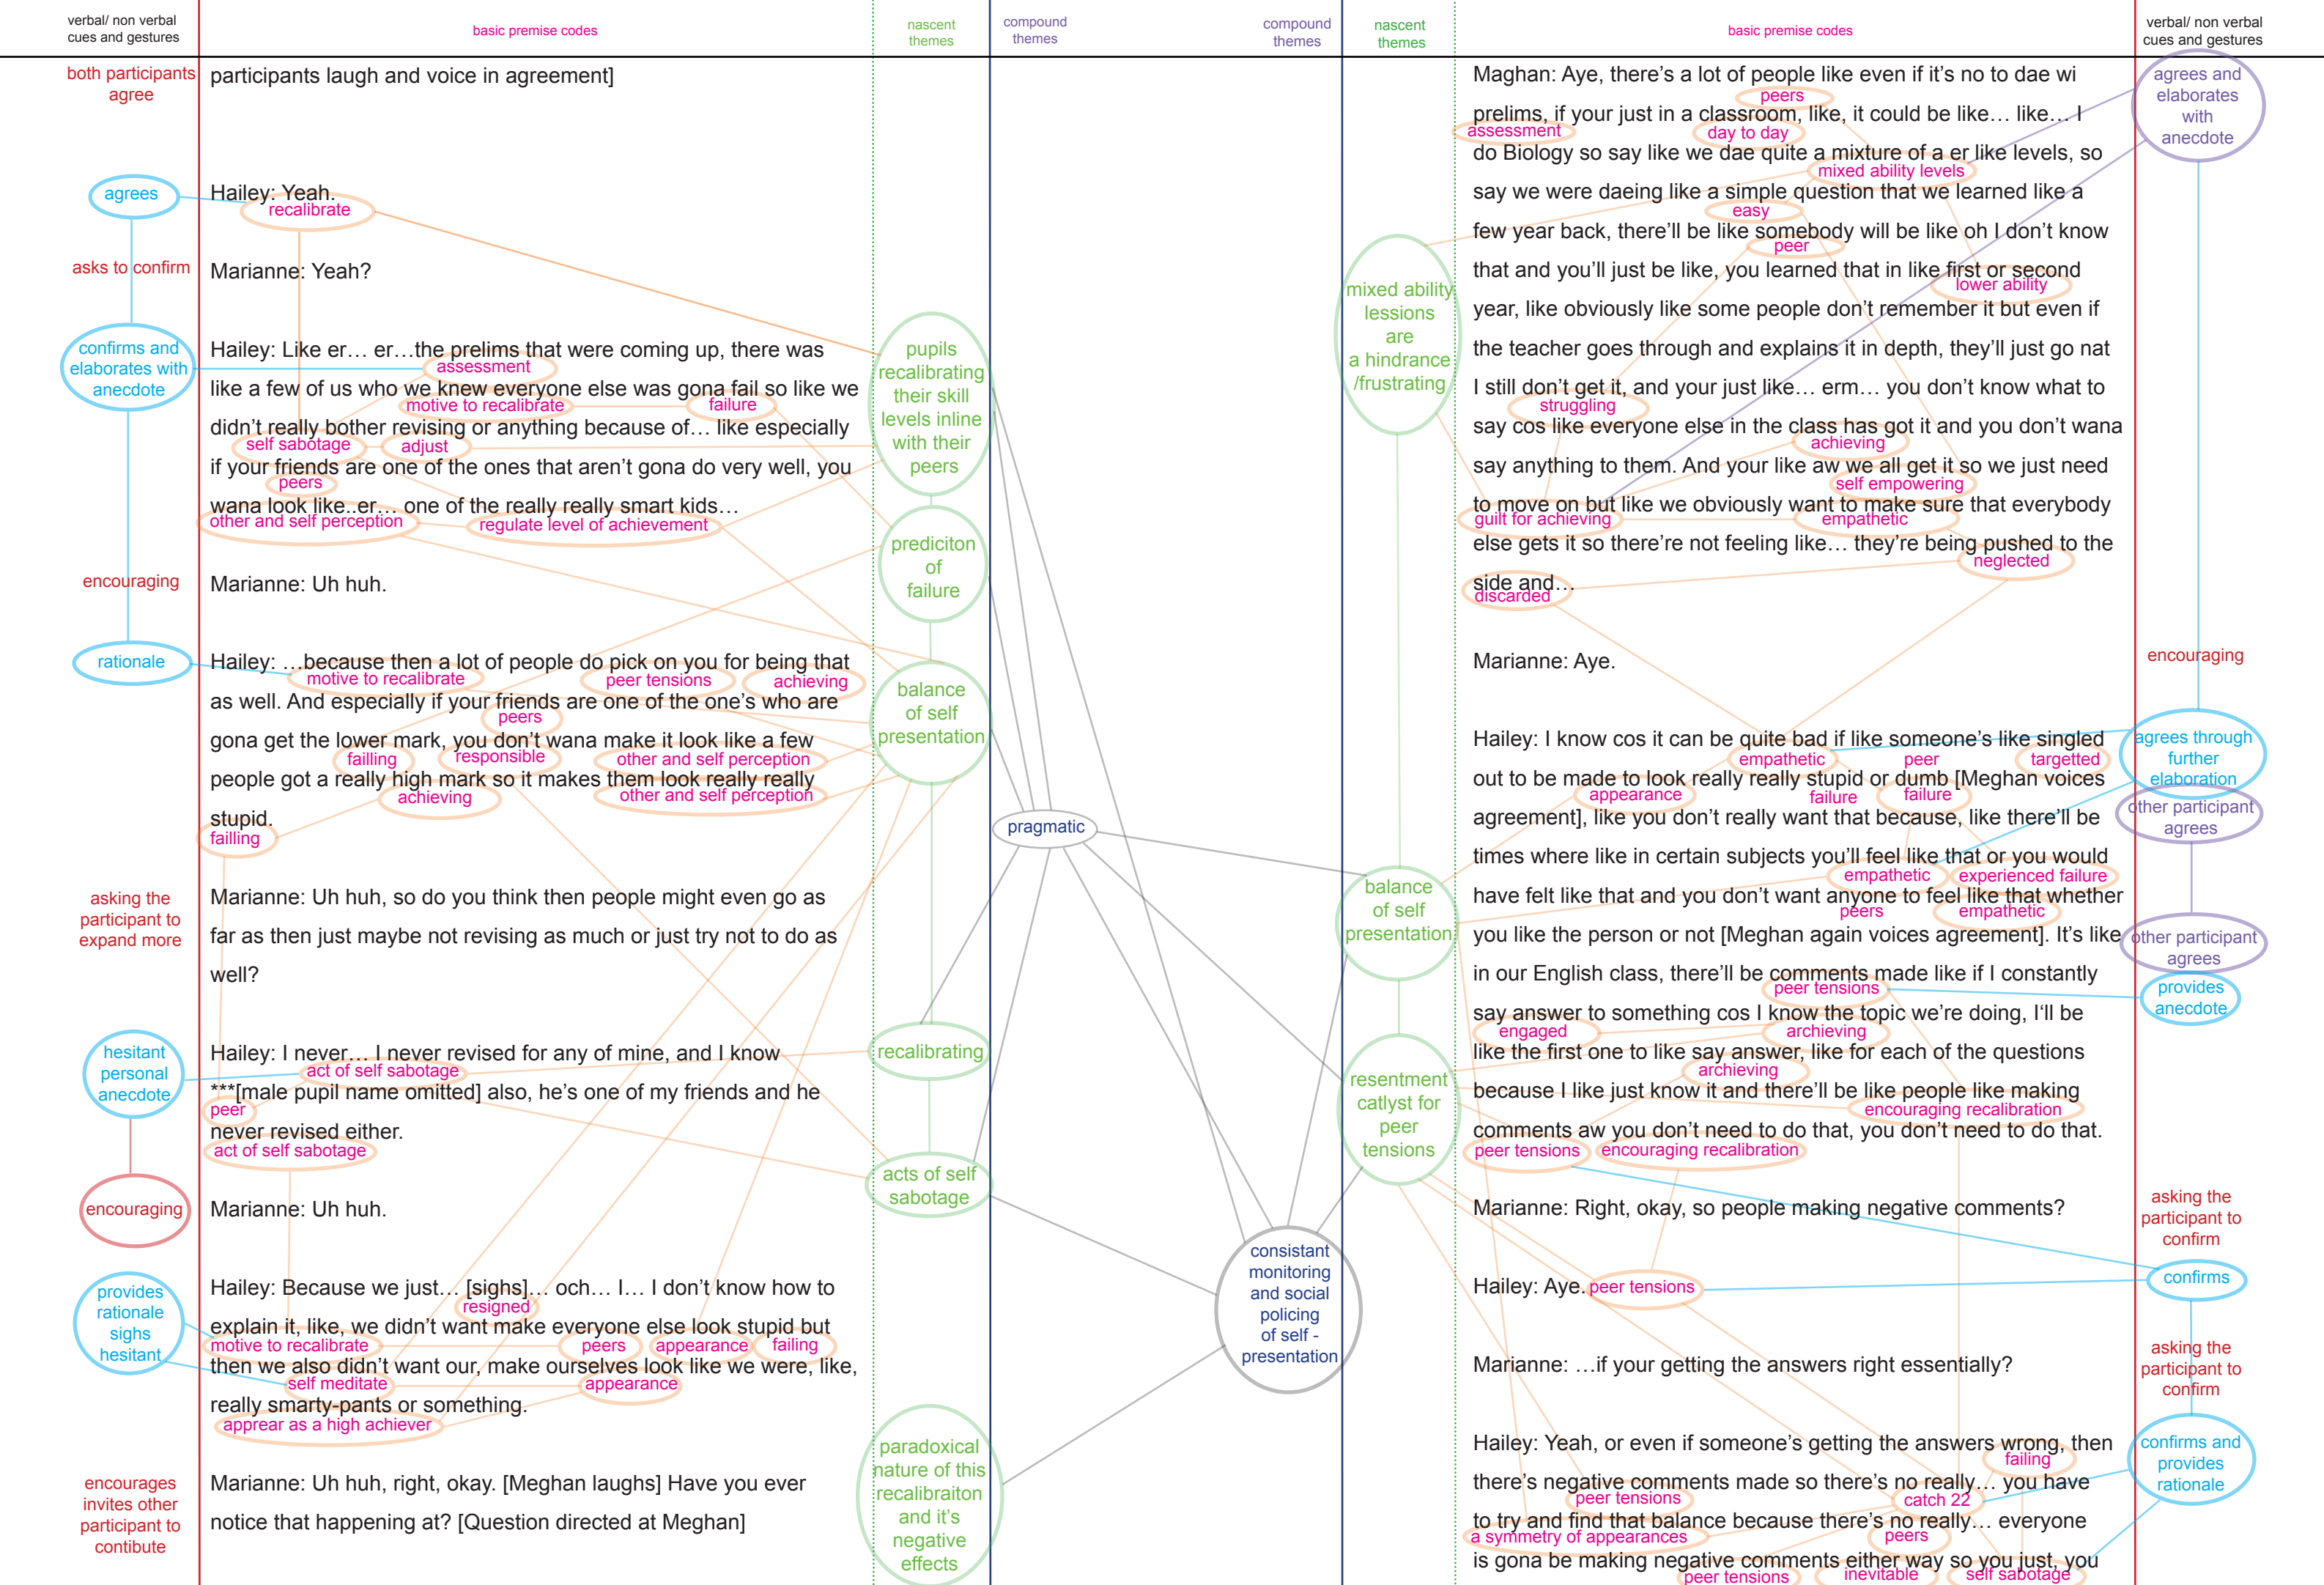

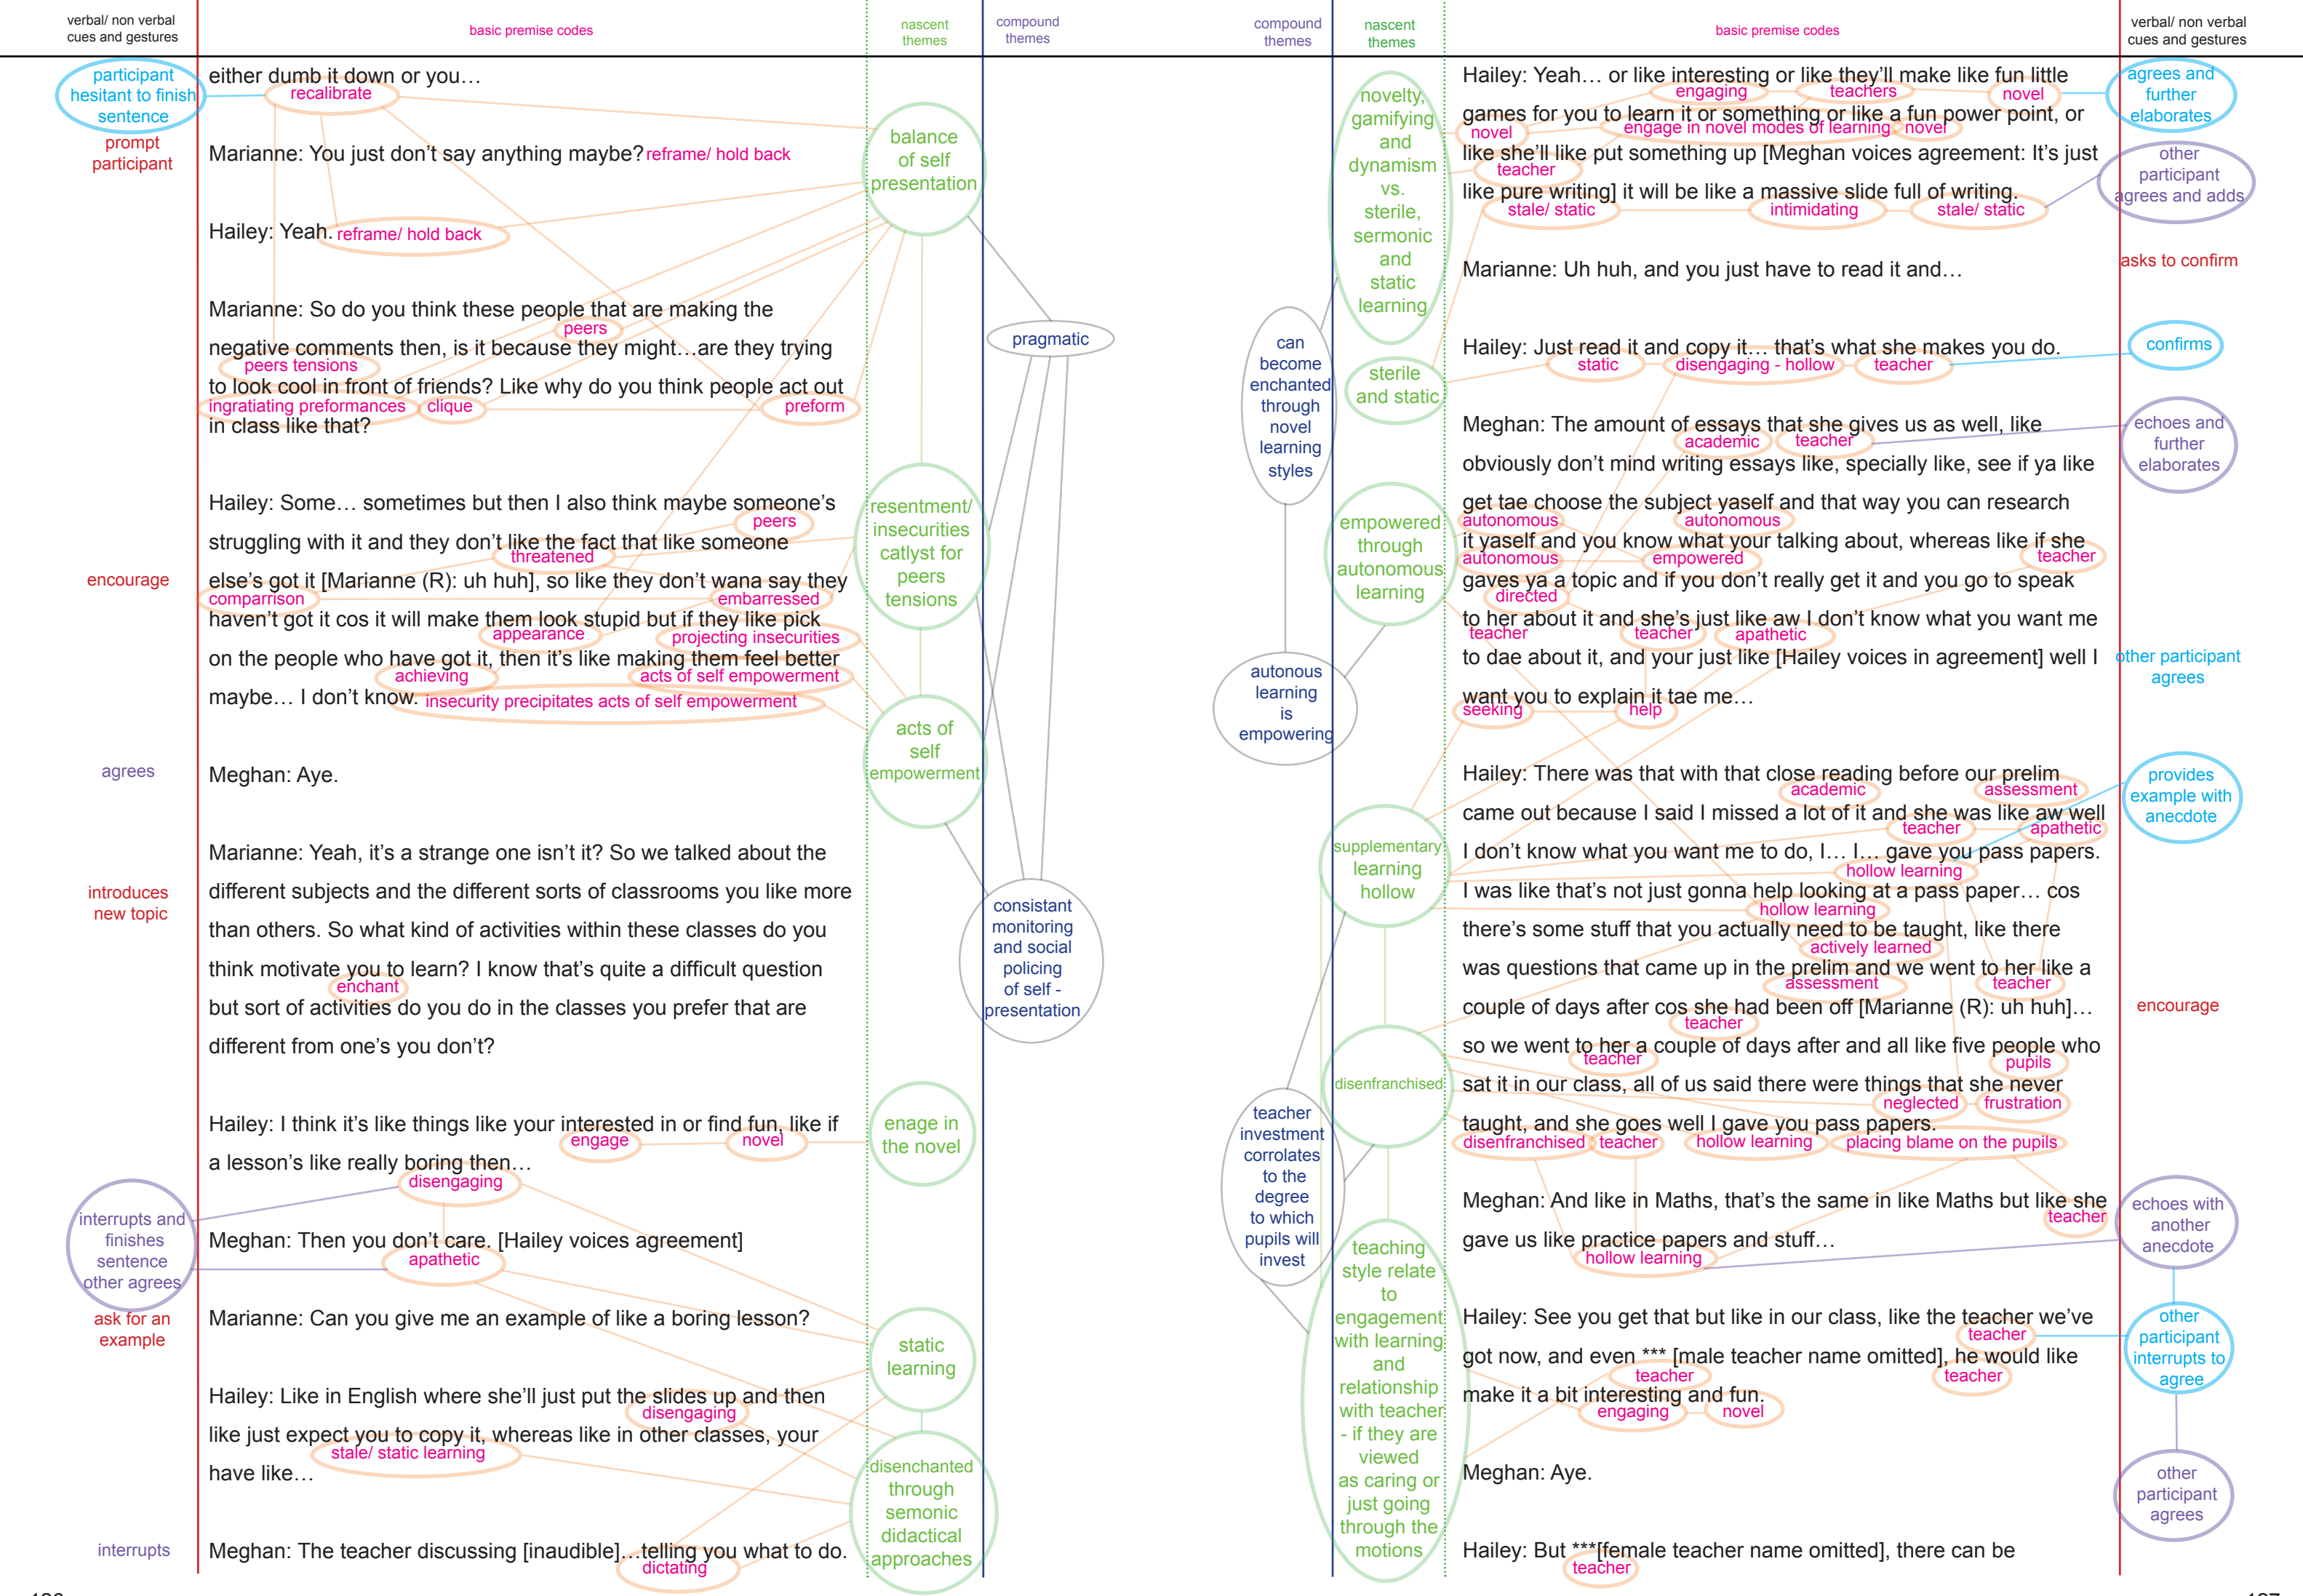

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
agreement?	eh...the smokers, so to speak. They're their own little group. unified by an activity					Hailey: ...but then there'll be some teachers that... that... all they care about is just, like, their work is done and you shouldn't bother them, and as long as your not bothering them, they don't really care... authority figures prioritise teacher's agenda burden getting attention when you become a burden	furthering elaboration
encourage	Marianne: Uh huh.				feel like a burden	{8.15}
elaborates	Hailey: Erm... but everyone has their own little group and like, erm, if there's a fail out within that group or there's a fail out with another group it can cause like big massive drama and just like everyone around is like... such... a big influence because like... clique inter- clique conflict clique clashes conflict can escalate impact/ catalyst for change	belonging conflict the effects of peer tensions leading to conflict	clique conflict catalyst for social and work discord			Marianne: Right, okay. Have you got any... can you give me any examples of when that's happened before... I mean you don't have to name names or anything...	ask for an anecdote reassuring encourage	Marianne: Uh huh.					Hailey: Like, last week...er...cos my sister was rushed into hospital Monday night, Iv bin a bit, like, edgy about it and everything... outside school event family anxious	provides personal anecdote further elaborates	Hailey: Just like anyone can influence what happens during that day, like... I can come in the morning and I'll be in a perfectly fine mood but then you'll have something happen...and....it will like completely influence everyone's mood throughout the day [Meghan voices in agreement] and it can impact on the school work and everything and, like, people getting kicked out of classes... peer impact conflict behaviour shift the fallout class tension and conflict reprimanded by teachers	clique conflict can distrust work				Marianne: Uh huh.	encouraging other participant voices in agreeent	{7.34}	catalyst for social discord				Hailey: ...so like on the... Tuesday or the Wednesday I think it was I was in Chemistry and my Chemistry teacher, she like, I was like really out of it and I was just mainly focused on my phone in case I got information about her. So my Chemistry teacher took me out and she was like aw what's up, and I told her what was up and she was like perfectly fine with it, and she, like, gave me the space I needed then and she wasn't, like, really on top of me and pushing me to do things, like, she kinda, like, took a step back... distracted family concerned teacher's attention allowence compassionate appreciating respectful	further elaborates asking for futher refection	Marianne: Uh huh... okay. And how do you think in those circumstances, how do you think then, or how do you feel at this school particularly teachers then react to that, like are they, do they help to kinda resolve... authority figures mediate/ resolve	teachers are preferred when they show care and respect through empathy and compassion				Marianne: Uh huh, so that was really, you felt supported by her then...yeah?	asking to confirm begins sentence	Meghan: Some of them help... come to their aid/ make an attempt to mediate					Hailey: Yeah... eh... but then there'll be teachers like, our English teacher for instance, like she doesn't care [Meghan voices agreement] what's happening in the class, like  [male pupil name omitted] can shout across the room that he wants to stab me or something, and she doesn't care as long as her work is getting done... felt supported apathetic when peer class conflict occurs disrupt threatening apathetic priorises work over conflict resolution	confirms other participant interrupts and further elaborates	Hailey: There's like some teachers that are like really nice and like if you've had a falling out with someone, or something bad's happening at home or something, some teachers will be like...em... caring and understanding and will, like, understand that your going through something and that you do need, like, a little bit of... peer conflict outside factors compassionate empathetic giving	seeking compassion from authority figures			teacher viewed as not caring to understand the conflict	Meghan: Its always you that gets in trouble. reprimanded provoked and antagonised	other participant agrees interrupts to finsh of sentace	Meghan: Space. allowance	feelings acknowledged and respected			wrongly accused	Hailey: Aye, its always me that gets in trouble for saying well are you going to tell him off, he's just threatened to stab me. challenging authority aggressive peer class conflict	supporting the other participant
echoes	Hailey: Space, so they won't, like, push you into things... allowances allowances				tensions with authority		justifying/ defensive
	Marianne: Yup.				tensions with teachers and in the classroom can occur when viewed to not care

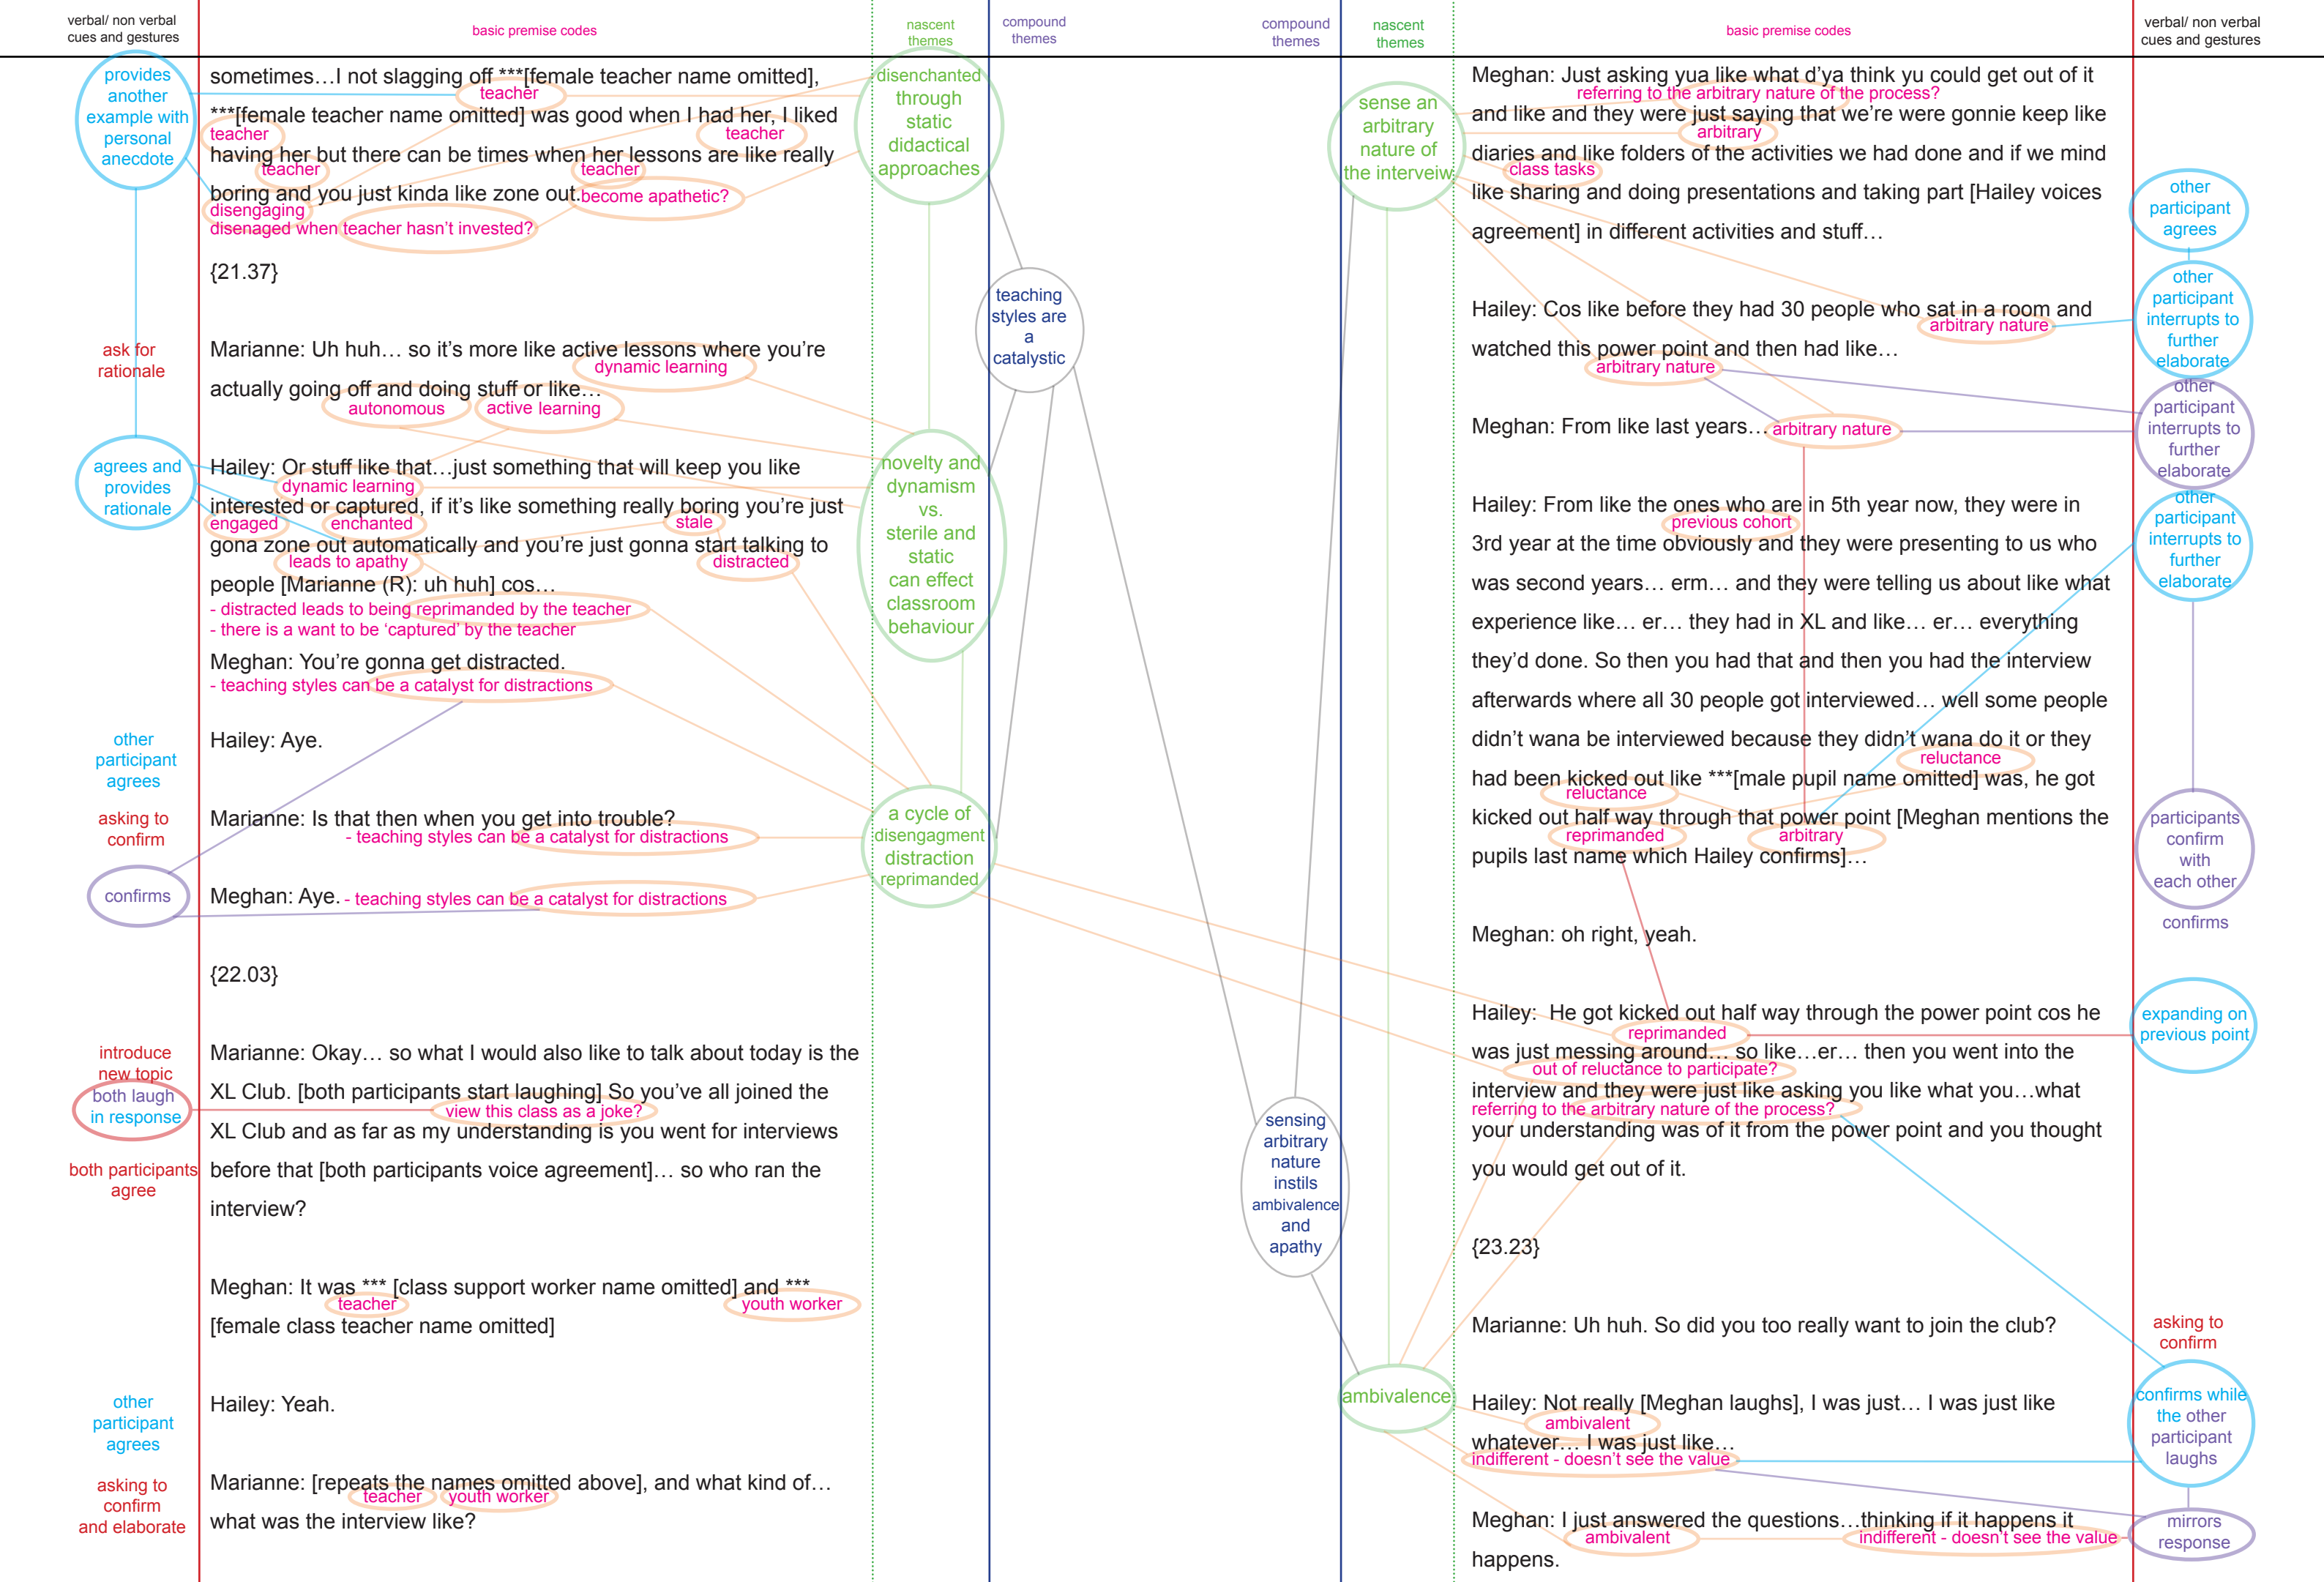

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Marianne: Right, okay.					Hailey: Yeah [Meghan voices in agreement also], the Drama teachers are like really supportive and trusting [Meghan again voices in agreement]. They're like, especially like, for all the people who take Drama, like, all the Drama students, like the Drama teachers they are like... you can rely on them so to speak a lot more than you could... probably rely on your pastoral care.	confirms other participant agrees rationale
other participant agrees echoes previous point	Meghan: There's a day in English where everybody, like [female pupil name omitted] sits behind me, she's pure, she's just, she just always has to make comments towards you [signalling to Hailey to which she voices agreement], and like...	antagonise targetted			feel privileged when they can trust and depend on a tracher gained through support	authority support trust creative peers creative dependable not dependable guidance authority creative more dependable	confirms other participant agrees rationale
	Hailey: And I'm always the one who gets into trouble for it.	unfairly reprimanded				Marianne: Really? Right	asking to confirm
other participant agrees	Meghan: I get pure annoyed by it because its basically bullying because the whole class just gangs up on Hailey, so like, if, when I say something, she's like just basically turning round, she's like, she's just like aw shout up and I'm just like oh didn't know what to dae [Hailey voices in agreement]. Its like...obviously feel the need to stand up for myself, but I don't want tae like pure, when I get pure annoyed, I get dead... I cannie control myself so like I just start mouthing off and I obviously don't want to get in too much trouble in class.	frustrated bullying targetted bullying helpless put up a defence frustrated provoked echoing bullying behaviour reprimanded	frustration powerless taking back power	taking back power through disruptive behaviour out of frustration	maternal/ paternal figures maternal/ paternal figures feel a sense of being privileged	Meghan: They don't even treat ya like pupils, they treat ya as if your like pure family and everything...	privileged closeness nurturing	confirms and elaborates
asking for rationale	{9.45}					Hailey: Aye, I know, they treat you as if your family or friend and its not just like they've come into work and they have to just get on with it and deal with you, [Marianne (R): Uh huh] like, they actually make like...make like a personal connection to you and everything...	agrees with other participant and expands encourage
confirms	Marianne: But do you feel there's times when you get into trouble for that, for defending your friend?		wrongly accused		feel a sense of being privileged	Marianne: Uh huh	encourage
further elaborates	Hailey: It gets to a point where, like, the teacher doesn't care to the point that you'll end up just shouting at the people and you'll be the one that gets into trouble for it...	authority misinterpreted reprimanding unfairly reprimanded		apathetic responses from teachers		Hailey: ... and, like, cos... there's like times, like, we've all meet like  [male teacher's name omitted] nephews and  [female teacher's name omitted] children and all this and like outside of school and everything, like, when we...[directed towards Meghan] where you there for the performance night?	further elaborates
encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.					Meghan: I think so.	further elaborates encourage
	Hailey: ...cos the teacher won't do anything to control her class until one of you ends up shouting or something.	authority apathy implement acts of authority extreme behaviour	tensions with authority/ leads to negative perceptions of authority figures			Hailey: Like where we all stayed in to do like our prelim and we did at the night, like they were all...  [female teacher] and  [male teacher] are actually like really good with ya [Marianne voices agreement] and its more of like a friendship than a teacher pupil relationship. not feel subordinate - conviviality - transpires in less conflicts?	further elaborates encourage
	{10.04}
	Marianne: Uh huh... Do you feel like there's certain teachers in the school that you can trust more than others?				trust equals repsect reciporcity teacher kinship convival relationships		enthusiastic encourage

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
hesitant	Hailey: It's like em...					Meghan: Aw right, yeah.	acknowledges other participant interrupts	Meghan: She's like... they help ya, they support ya if you've got any problems through school and outside...					Hailey: Yeah, right. She like kept on getting bullied by this one guy and he kept trying... calling a name that her nan used to say to her before her nan died, and it was like really affecting her, and she was like in tears every day and then he tried to push her down the stairs one day, and she went to her pastoral care about it, and her pastoral care was just like aw well... the... she like had... cos she had no evidence that he tried to push her down the stairs, her pastoral carer goes aw did you just fall or something?	continues with anecdote agrees	Hailey: Yeah, its like a lot of schools call them their counselling teachers or something.					{12.31}
further elaborates	Marianne: Right okay, yup.					Marianne: Right, okay, so there's not understanding...	asking for confirmation
	Hailey: Em... where you have like one for each House and like your meant to go them with, like, any problems you have or, like, any teachers, if they have problems with you they report it to, like, them. [Marianne (R): Right.] They're like the go to people, like, for personal things or for anything before it goes to, like, the year head or anything.					Hailey: She didn't really, like, care and didn't really do anything for her.	confirms and expands
	Marianne: Cool, okay.					Meghan: Aye, cause hunners of people who, like, say that pastoral care is became, like, pure useless and everythin [Hailey voices in agreement]. Like my mum came in at the beginning of the year, cos like last year I went to the school councilor for like anxiety and stuff and then em... my mum came in at the beginning of this year to try and get me back in tae it. She says we'll get ya back in as soon as possible, but it's basically nearly the end of this year she's still no done anything about it.	agrees and further elaborates asks for confirmation from other participant	{11.46}					Marianne: Right, okay. Just not keeping track then?	asking to confirm confirms	Hailey: But, like, they're like meant to be there to support you but a lot of the times, like, there's one girl in our year, I'm not gonna name her name but [directed towards Meghan] you know who I'm on about?					Hailey: The pastoral care's like... a couple of years ago they would have helped ya, like perfectly fine but I don't know what it is...	other participant answers
	Meghan: Think so.					Meghan: Aye, that's true.	interrupts to agree
interrupts to ask to confirm	Hailey: Right, she... she like kept on getting bullied by this one guy and he kept on making comments to her like every single...					Hailey: ...within, like, the last couple of years, it's kind of... faded and they've become, like, worse.	finishes previous point begins	Meghan: [directed towards Hailey] Is that who we're talking about naw?					Marianne: Do ya think they [pastoral care teachers] see, do they see every pupil in the school or is it just people who want go speak to	asking to elaborate futher interrupted	Hailey: Its...
	Meghan: I think I know who your talking about.
	Hailey: 's [female pupil name omitted] big sister.

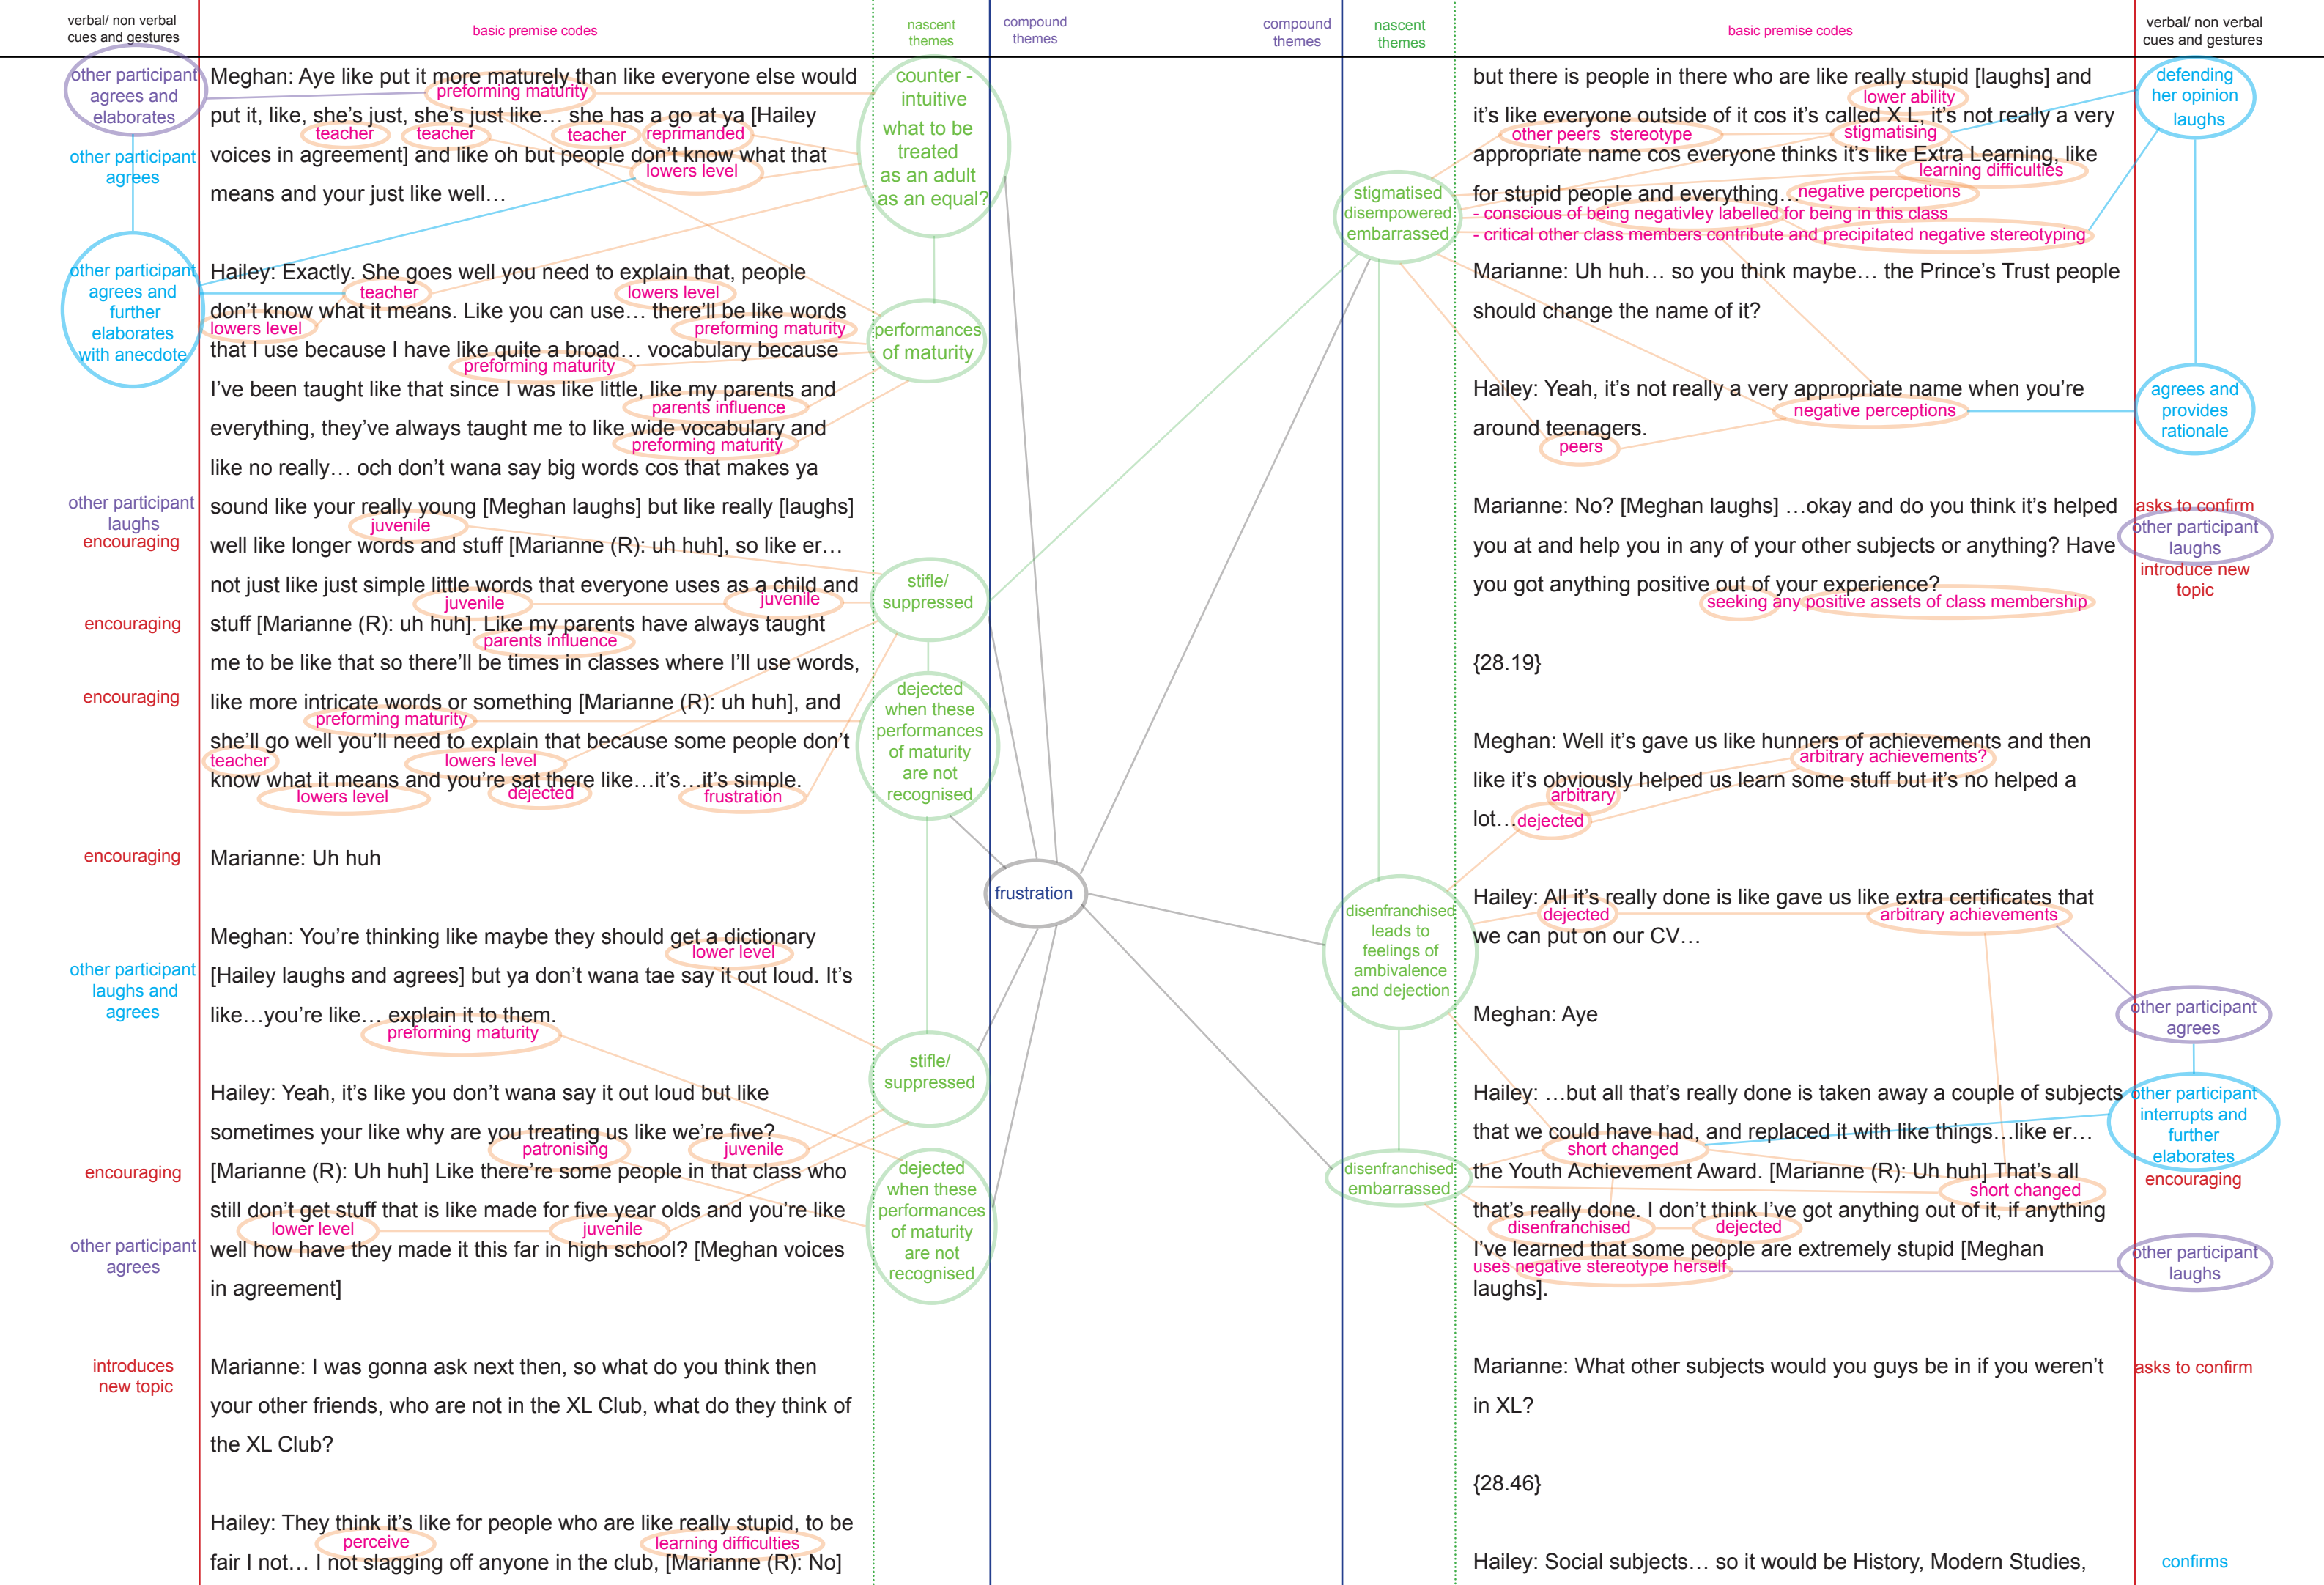

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
asks other participant further expands previous point encouraging other participant agrees introduce new topic encouraging empowered	to them, or do they have to look after everyone? Hailey: Like they have everyone in their House, like, I'm in  [House name omitted] so I have  [female teacher name omitted], and your in?... Meghan:  [House name omitted], so I have  [female teacher name omitted]. Marianne: Right, okay. Hailey: So, like, we, depending on which of the four Houses you in depends on what teacher you have... Marianne: Uh huh. Hailey: Em...so then, like, they're responsible for everyone in their House but, like, it's not like they go looking out for everyone in their House. In first year, you have a first year interview where you go to your pastoral care teacher, and they meet everyone in, like, that House and speak to them in their first year interview. But then it's only like if you have a problem in class or your teacher reports you to them or you go to them that you ever see your pastoral care teacher again. I think there's like people in our year who have, like, never spoken to their pastoral care teacher since like first year [Meghan voices agreement]. {14.02} Marianne: Right, okay. Em...so in terms of your different subjects that your doing, what kind of subjects do you prefer doing? So obviously you know you've got the kind of arty ones and then you've got the more academic ones like Math and English, so have you got of a kind of preference of what you prefer in terms of different kinds of subjects? Hailey: I think, like, everyone has their subjects that they prefer [Marianne (R): uh hun], and like for me it's like Music, Drama... like any subject that I'm really good at to be fair, because, like, there's	default carer default support default support in place default support in place default support in place arbitrary support neglect default action default carer default action inside school reprimanded default carer default carer default carer arbitrary viewed as simply going through the motions engage with creativity	cynical of supposed caring teacher roles perceived as not invested dischanteded	enacted when feeling a sense of achievement enacted when thinking about the future - aspirational enchanted aware that academia viewed as superior to creativity	a whole range, it's not like I can, I'm good at the academic ones but not at the preforming ones but then there's also like... it's like, it differs because there's like Maths which I'm really really good at, don't know how, but I am [Meghan laughs], but then there'll also be Drama which I'm really really good at so it's like... it's spread across. Marianne: So you enjoy subjects that your good at? Hailey: That I'm good at yeah. Marianne: What about you Meghan? Meghan: I like daeing aw different subjects, but like I concentrate like mare on ma English and stuff, like, the subjects I'll probably need more when I leave school and go to college and that. Hailey: I think that's what everyone has attached to it, like subjects that you need [Meghan voices in agreement]. Marianne: You need yeah? Hailey: But then there's also a lot of like courses you that you can go on and do that like, it just says like, you need like three Highers but there's no specific Highers. Meghan: Yeah, it can be any. {15.21} Hailey: Yeah but like everyone seems to think that there's like stigma attached to like erm... that, if you get English your gona look better [Meghan voices agreement] than a person who has like maybe Drama [Marianne (R): uh hum], but it's not necessary. Marianne: No...no your right. Erm... and do you think there's ever times where out of other people in your year, do you think there's times where in certain subjects even though you know some kids are really good at a subject, they'll pretend not to be? [Both	empowered other participant laughs empowered asking to confirm confirms invites other participant to contribute agrees both agree asking to confirm further elaborates agrees defending encouraging introduces new topic

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
further expands with rationale encouraging encouraging echoing previous point agrees other participant agrees asking for emotive reflections agrees and expands asking for further elaboration hesitant mirrors and expands further elaborates encouraging dejected tone dejected tone	Hailey: I was just answering their questions cos like if I didn't get this then I could have been doing History which I absolutely love [Marianne (R): uh huh]... so it didn't really matter to me. [Marianne (R): right okay]. It was the same with  [female pupil name omitted], she didn't wana join it but ended up joining it. Meghan: There was a lot of people in there that were like I don't know if I wana be in it and then like they ended up in it anyway. Hailey: Aye. But then there were like people who really wanted to be in it and didn't get into it. [Meghan voices in agreement] Marianne: Right...okay. So how do you feel then XL... about XL as a whole then? So you've done nearly two years of it, is that right? Hailey: Yeah. So We'll finish it at the end of this year. Marianne: So how do you feel about it in general then, do you think it's been useful or.... Hailey: Not... not really to a point... Meghan: Its helped at points but... at other times like, if ya think like you could have bin daeing like a subject that coulda helped you, like... when yu leave. Hailey: Like, I don't really find a lot of fun in XL, or they'll be like times, cos at the end of 3rd year me and you both wanted to leave it but we had to take it on for this year as well. [Marianne (R): Right, okay.]... like [long sigh] its just like really... ya get treated like your about 5 years old with some of the stuff you do in there and I understand some people in there, like, don't understand things but it goes to an extent where she makes it like for dummies, like it goes to an extent where she's treating you like your back in nursery again the way she speaks to you or the way her lessons are designed or anything and your sat there and your like you know the answers, its something you've done in primary school but...fff[sounds fed up]... some reason your going over it again as if you don't shouldn't know it.	ambivalence ambivalence ambivalence ambivalence ambivalence disenchanted through feeling they are being undermined through patronising nature of the class frustration leads to feelings of dejection	sensing arbitrary nature instils ambivalence and apathy teaching styles are a catalytic	being patronised leads to feelings of frustration and thus disengagement and disenchanted what to be treated as an adult - as an equal? disenchanted through feeling they are being undermined through patronising nature of the class seeking respect and empowerment	Meghan: There's a lot of teachers that dae that, they just talk dae ya as if yur like what wee babies and yur just like [Hailey voices in agreement], that's why a lot of people get annoyed and don't like coming to school because they want to be treated as if they're more grown up and that's why a lot of people decide tae leave. Marianne: And go to college then? Meghan: Uh huh, that's why like I'm leaving cos like I get pure annoyed when I come in school cos they treat ya like children and your just like I prefer to be treated like an adult... Hailey: Yeah there some class where like they have to really dumb things down on you, and your like well we're not stupid, we're in high school, your like, this is stuff we would have done in primary school [Meghan voices in agreement] and your... the way they word things it's as if like, like undermining your intelligence... Marianne: Uh huh, have you got any examples? Hailey: There was that one lesson with like XL, what was it... er... where she put something up on the board and me and Meghan were both sat there, we both knew the answers and it was really simple what she was putting up... Meghan: [inaudible]... it was when we were doing the sectarianism bit [Hailey: was it?]... and we were daeing aw the research stuff. Hailey: I don't, I don't know when it was and there would still be people, and she'd speak to ya like, and if ya sat there going well this is kinda undermining our intelligence or this is like really simple stuff that everyone should know. It's kinda like common sense [Marianne: Uh huh]. Like she'll pure have a go at ya! Meghan: Like if ...she asks you the answer and you put into more like...tryna think how to put like... Hailey: Like intricate words. the use of sophisticated vocabulary as a display	builds on other participant's point asking to confirm confirms and provides rationale other participant agrees and elaborates further other participant agrees asking for an anecdote provides anecdote other participant interjects other participant asks to confirm dismisses other participant's contribution encouraging provides rationale confirms rationale

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
inviting other participant to contribute agrees acknowledgegs and introduces new topic both participants laugh other participant agrees both participants laugh echoes other participant interrupts to elaborate other participant laughs participant laughs other participant agrees	Geography and Business. Marianne: Right, okay. Are you [directed to Meghan] the same, would you be in one of those subjects as well? Meghan: [nods] Marianne: Right, okay, cool. So we'll move on now to the final section I want to talk about is your future, when you leave school and what your plans are. [Both participants begin giggling]. Erm... what do you think young people most look forward to abut leaving school? Hailey: Leaving school. Meghan: Aye, leaving school. [both participants laugh] Hailey: Just being out of here. Meghan: There's some people that, like, like the idea of leaving school and then there's other people that just think... Hailey: But as you get closer to it, [Meghan: aye] you get, you really see the difference cos like at the start like when your like in first year or second year, you have everyone who's like och my god I hate school I wana leave. But as you're getting closer to it, you have those people who are still on that like I really really want to leave, this is like my time to leave. Then you have people who like steer off in the direction of... I'm kinda scared to leave cos we're going out into like the big wide world then and it's gonna be a lot different than school, but then there's a lot of people who are in that they really want to leave, they don't realise that it's gonna be the big wide world and it's not gonna be like school. Cos...I don't wana call them the dumb people but it's like the dumb people [Meghan laughs] who are like [starts laughing]...who are like they just wana leave school and they don't realise that they can't be treated like babies once they get out there like some teachers speak to them now. They can't be treated like that, they're gonna be treat as adults [Meghan voices agreement]. So like if they don't understand the stuff that's	disenchanted school as a safety net - a shield from the real world	handling transitions as a sign of maturity	school as a safety net to be in a place that signals maturity is a privilege school as a safety net	happening in school and they don't get the way some teachers are speaking to them in school, they're not gonna manage the outside world. - school is a safety net and isn't a representation of life after school {30.18} Marianne: Uh huh Meghan: Aye cos like those people that were given the chance to go to like college and stuff to tae extra stuff there, and there's like... she's a pal of mine erm... she's like aw I wish I never choose it [going to college] and I was like you've been given a chance, right there's hundreds of people that had choose to do this subject and... she was wan of they people that got chosen to go to college so like you were given the chance out of like so many people and you don't wanna dae it anymore, and like I was speaking to my mum about it and my mum was even saying she's obviously not mature enough to be that place if she's just like [Hailey voices agreement] pulling out and like she's not all... Hailey: A lot of people realise that they think it's gonna be some big massive fantasy and they think they're still gonna be taught like they are here... - will need to grow up/ mature quickly when they leave school - school is a safety net and isn't a representation of life after school Meghan: She doesn't always go either. Hailey: ...but then they get there and they realise that it's not as good as it was and they had it really easy at school. - school is a safety net and isn't a representation of life after school Marianne: Uh huh. Do you know people who have gone to college and have found that ...that it was actually a lot more difficult than they thought it was? {31.07} Meghan: She... she hardly ever goes anymore. Like she'll go maybe like wance a week, like she only goes like two days a week, and I was like well it's only two days a week. There's other people that go's basically nearly every day, or even like, or even just three	encouraging agrees and elaborates further provides anecdote other participant agrees participant interrups with rationale finishes off other participant's sentence continues previous point asks for an example continues previous anecdote

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
encouraging other participant agrees participant further elaborates other participant agrees encouraging other participant agrees other participant agrees introduces new topic consults with other participant laughs laughs	days for the while day or whatever [Marianne: Uh huh] and she’s like aw but... she only goes for like the afternoon on a Tuesday and a Thursday [Hailey: Aye] and she hardly ever goes any more and I’m just like you obviously no mature enough, you obviously only mature enough for the high school environment. Hailey: And it’s...and it’s even like, its not even like its proper college classes, these are specifically made for people who come out of [Meghan: Aye], who take a couple of periods out of school to go to college instead, it’s not even like it’s proper college classes [Marianne: uh huh]. Meghan: And then there’s like people that actually want tae leave school, like, I feel like...I...I feel like I’d prefer to be in a mere mature environment like in college cos they dae treat ya like adults, and like I’d prefer tae be treated as equals. [Hailey voices in agreement] Hailey: And I prefer not to be spoke to like a baby. Meghan: That’s what gets me pure angry like [Hailey: I know] at the teachers when they treat ya like children and ya just have to say something but then you don’t... Hailey: You’re like I’m in my forth year of high school now, I don’t care whether those people like [sighs]... oh my god... I don’t know how some people have made it this far... {32.21} Marianne: Erm... so in terms of after your exams, what are your plans, after the Summer holidays? Hailey: Erm... you wana go first or me? [directed at Meghan] Meghan: You can go cos I can’t.... [laughs] Hailey: Right okay [laughing]...er...well like I wana go into acting but because I don’t turn 16 until Christmas, I have to stay on half of 5th year anyway so instead of like just wasting that half a year, I’m	perception of maturity maturity trivialising the classes trivialising the classes juvenile environment perception of maturity maturity want to be treated as an adult as an equal? respect wants to be respected pratronised infantile frustration patronised juvenile catylst for disruptive behaviour viewed as deserved of respect dejected dejected - critical of other peer's lack of matuity - demonstration of her higher degree of maturity aspirational goal orientated	reciprocity performances of maturity aspirational	goal orientated	gonna stay on for like the whole of 5th year [Marianne: Uh huh] and just do the exams cos there’s no point in doing the work for half the year and then not sit any exams [Marianne: Uh huh]. So gonna do that... erm... but on the sidelines of that, Iv got an audition with the  [Acting Institution in the city centre] which is for like a Saturday course that runs throughout the year as well which...er... gives you a transition to getting into the actual, like, proper BA acting [Marianne: great], which like what I want to do like after 5th year cos I’m gonna get... cos I only need three Highers, and it can be any Highers and I think it’s at a B or above for, to get onto the actual BA but sometimes they take you without those if your really good at acting [Marianne: right]. So like that would be like my actual goal at the moment. Marianne: Cool, so that’s kinda like your two year plan then? Hailey: Yeah. Marianne: And what about you Meghan? Meghan: Like I’m like stayin the noo tae like obviously to dae my exams and stuff [Marianne: Uh huh] and like I won’t be 16 till like October but...erm... but like cos my mum and that has obviously spoke tae the school and what they says is if like my mum gives me permission and if I get accepted in the college course I want tae do, they may be able to gie me like permission tae leave early... Hailey: Yeah it’s like your still on the school register [Meghan: uh huh] but you’re not actually going to school. Meghan: So basically, I would be like, if I got accepted in tae a course just now which I’ve basically already have, I just need the school’s permission, I can leave in August so... Marianne: And then start at college? Hailey: Yeah but you’d have to... Marianne: What course is it?	assessments goal orientated assessments in her free time goal orientated in her free time goal orientated determined goal orientated goal orientated goal orientated asks to confirm confirms invites other participant to contribute encouraging other participant interrupts to explain other participant agrees self empowered privileged privileged asks to confirm other participant answers directed at other participant

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Meghan: Eh...Psychology.					Hailey: Er... in some people they will let it effect them like really much, like if people were like er really cool in high school and were always liked and everything [Marianne: Uh huh], they'll kind of think like when they like get out into the big wide world it will be like that as well and then they'll end up like crashing and failing and probably ending up in jail and a junkie and everything [Marianne: Uh huh]. So like people will let it affect them like that because they've seen school like this so they'll think the world's going to be like that and then it turns out not to be [Marianne: Uh huh]. But then they'll see like some people will be like well school was like not that good for me so I'm gonna try and be like better than that.	hesitant enthusiastically responding	Marianne: Great! Okay.				failure	failure failure failure failure failure without the school saftey net naive	encouraging approves and laughs	Hailey: That's actually quite good [laughs].praises level of course					school saftey net naive	encouraging
	Meghan: I have tae do two or three years at college, then I need tae go to University tae do Criminology and then obviously if that fails then I've still got my Psychology and I can do like counselling and stuff like that [Marianne: Uh huh].	transitions	taking responsiblty for your own future and handling transitions as a sign of maturity			aspirational	encouraging
	{34.15}
enthusiastically responding	Marianne: Brilliant, well it sounds like you two have got pretty good goals set then...erm...	performances of maturity					encouraging
	Hailey: Like certain people like have nothing that they want to do demonstrating their higher degree of maturity - uncertainty equates to immaturity with their life but like with my parents, they've always told me that like from a young age they've wanted me to do the best I could cos like from when I was like really young, I don't know why but I've been like really smart [starts laughing as does Meghan]...erm... I don't know how! But I just have and it's like my parents like when I was younger cos I got like a really score in like this IQ test that we did in primary school [Marianne: Uh huh]. I got like a really high score on it so they ended up moving my up a year in primary school anyway and then when I started high school, they wanted to move me up another year but because of the SQA system, I couldn't be moved up another year [Marianne: Uh huh, right]. So it's like my parents have always expected like high stuff from me so they've always made me like from 1st year have my plan set in place...cos the school have told them that I've got a lot of potential so they're like...they don't want me to waste it.	parental influence		failure equated with naivety, immaturity and risky behaviour		immature signals of maturity escapism failure	other participant interrupts
both participants laugh						- acts viewed as antecedent to failure	other participant interjects encouraging							asking to confirm encouraging					reputation for failure	escapism	confirms
	Marianne: Uh huh...well that's good. Great so Iv got two final questions....erm... my first is how much do you think school affects the adult that your going to become? Do you think has an influence on who you become when you leave school?					- aware their school has a bad, possibly notorious, identity - possible some wear this reputation as a badge of honour?
encouraging and introduces new topic						escapism	asking to confirm confirms escapism	asking to confirm and reassures due to senitive nature of the topic
	{35.30}

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
other participant interrupts other agrees echoes previous point agrees provides rationale elaborates further by anecdote consults other participant confirms asking to confirm confirms by anecdote confirms further elaborates other participant confirms asking to confirm	Hailey: They smoke weed and everything [Meghan: aye], all up at the bushes up there and like no one even notices.no one seems to cares? Marianne: Right, okay. Meghan: Like how bad it the reputation for this school now like... - aware their school has a bad, possibly notorious, identity - possible some wear this reputation as a badge of honour? Hailey: I know.reputation of failure Meghan: ...like we've been in the papers for pupils being taken into hospital for taken legal highs and like that's how the police ended up coming in and doing presentations and stuff. Hailey: A lot of them ended up like taking legal highs but there's a lot of them who do like illegal stuff as well. I'm not gonna name his name but you know who I'm on about [directed at Meghan]...hangs around with [male pupil name omitted] from the XL... Meghan: Aye, aye I know who your talking about. Hailey: Yeah, well he... he does a lot of drugs and doesn't bother coming in. Marianne: Right, okay so is it's like during...when he's meant to be at school? Meghan: There's a few people...there's a boy that comes tae this school, he's actually been stabbed because he's been involved in stuff like that... Hailey: Yeah... [male name omitted]. Aye. Meghan: And like he's actually showed people like... he put a picture up on Facebook and stuff... his wound and that [Hailey: aye] once it had all stitched up... aw it was horrible. Marianne: Was this a boy in your year?	reputation for failure failure equated with naivety, immaturity and risky behaviour danger, violence and harm		empowerment sought in work and teacher validation engage when empowered positive attention from the teacher enchanted when empowered	Hailey: Yeah. Marianne: Right, okay. Hailey: He had been stabbed but he was... I think it was they got into an argument or something and both parties were high at the time or something, and he ended up getting stabbed. {37.27} Marianne: Right.... okay. Well my final question is erm... can you give me an example of ...when is it at school when you fell a sense of achievement or when you feel proud and doesn't have to have anything to with the XL Club. Just when do you feel sense of achievement? Hailey: Like.... Megan: Like when your passing like all you classes, like you doing good in all your classes. Hailey: Yeah, or if your teacher realises that your like...erm... that you're good at something or if your like get praised upon something or you can sit there and if you understand something you'll like feel proud of yourself, you'll be like aw I actually do get that and it's a good feeling I guess. [Marianne: Uh huh] Meghan: Aye, it's like I don't know how to describe it... like if your sitting in class and everybody else is like I don't get it, and you get it you feel dead proud of yourself. Hailey: Yeah. End	confirms further elaborates on anecdote introduces final topic hesitant other participant interrupts agrees and further elaborates encouraging agrees and further elaborates other participant agrees

Collated Distilled Themes:

Sam

Steven

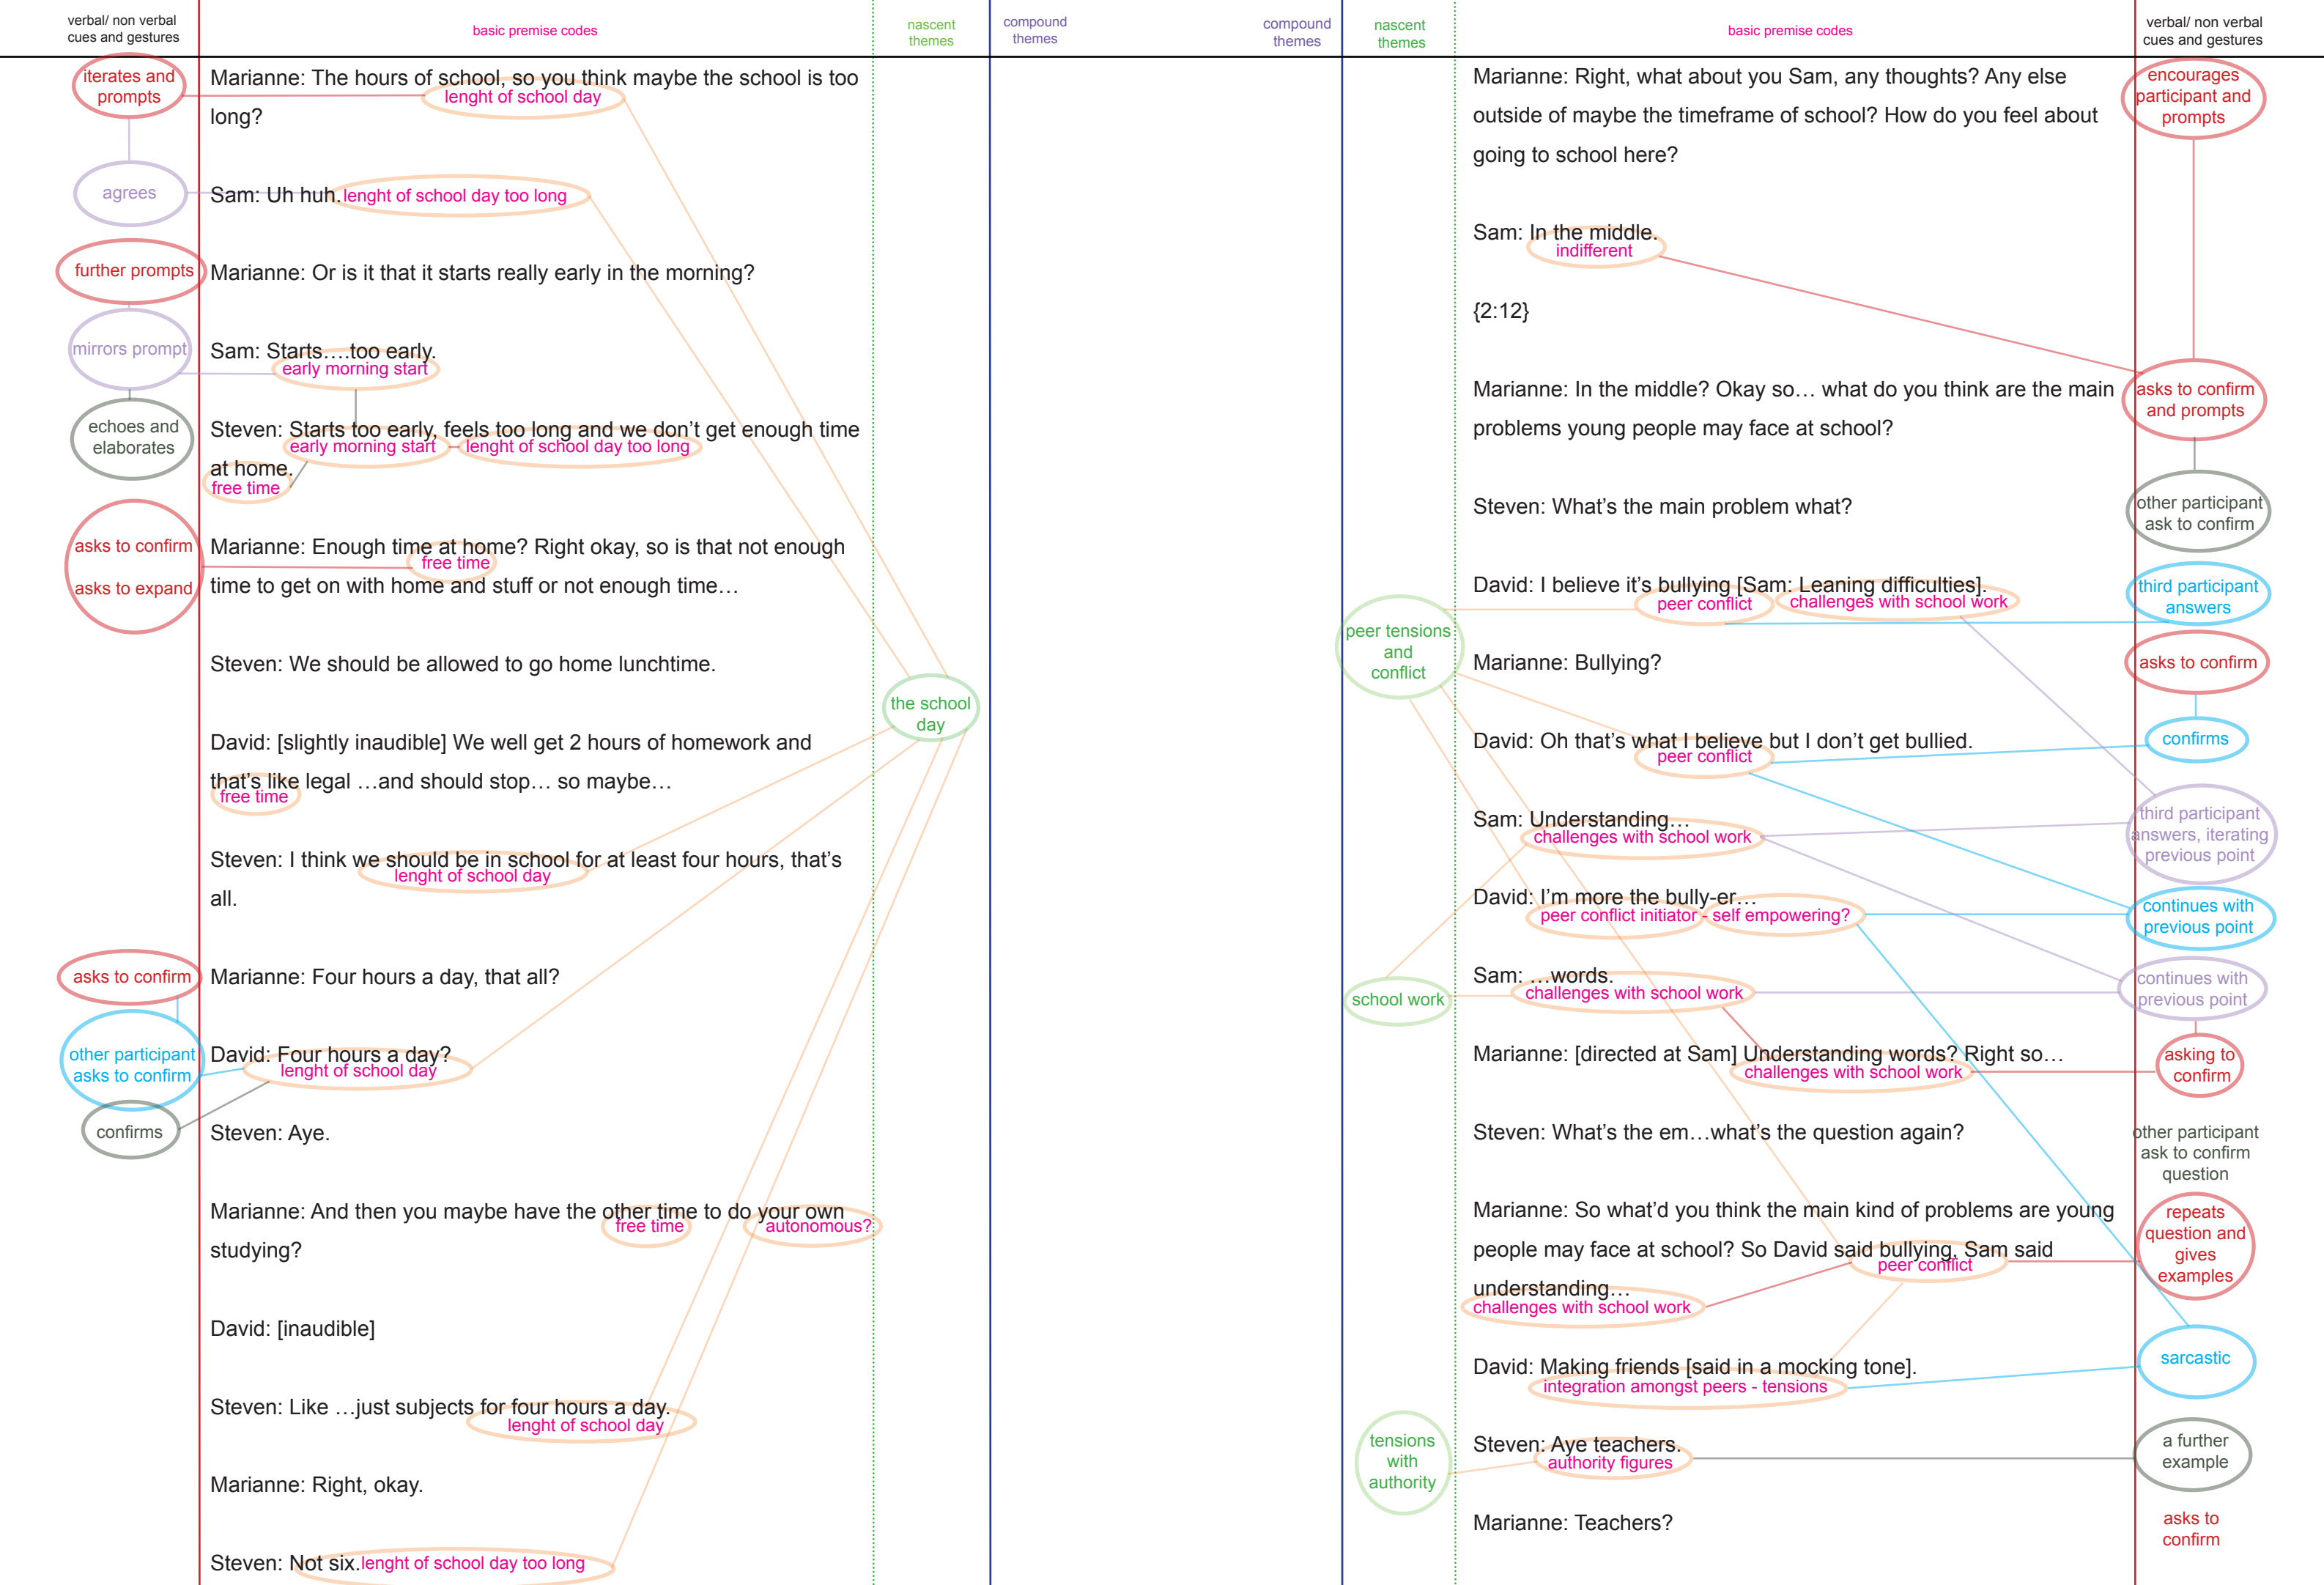

David

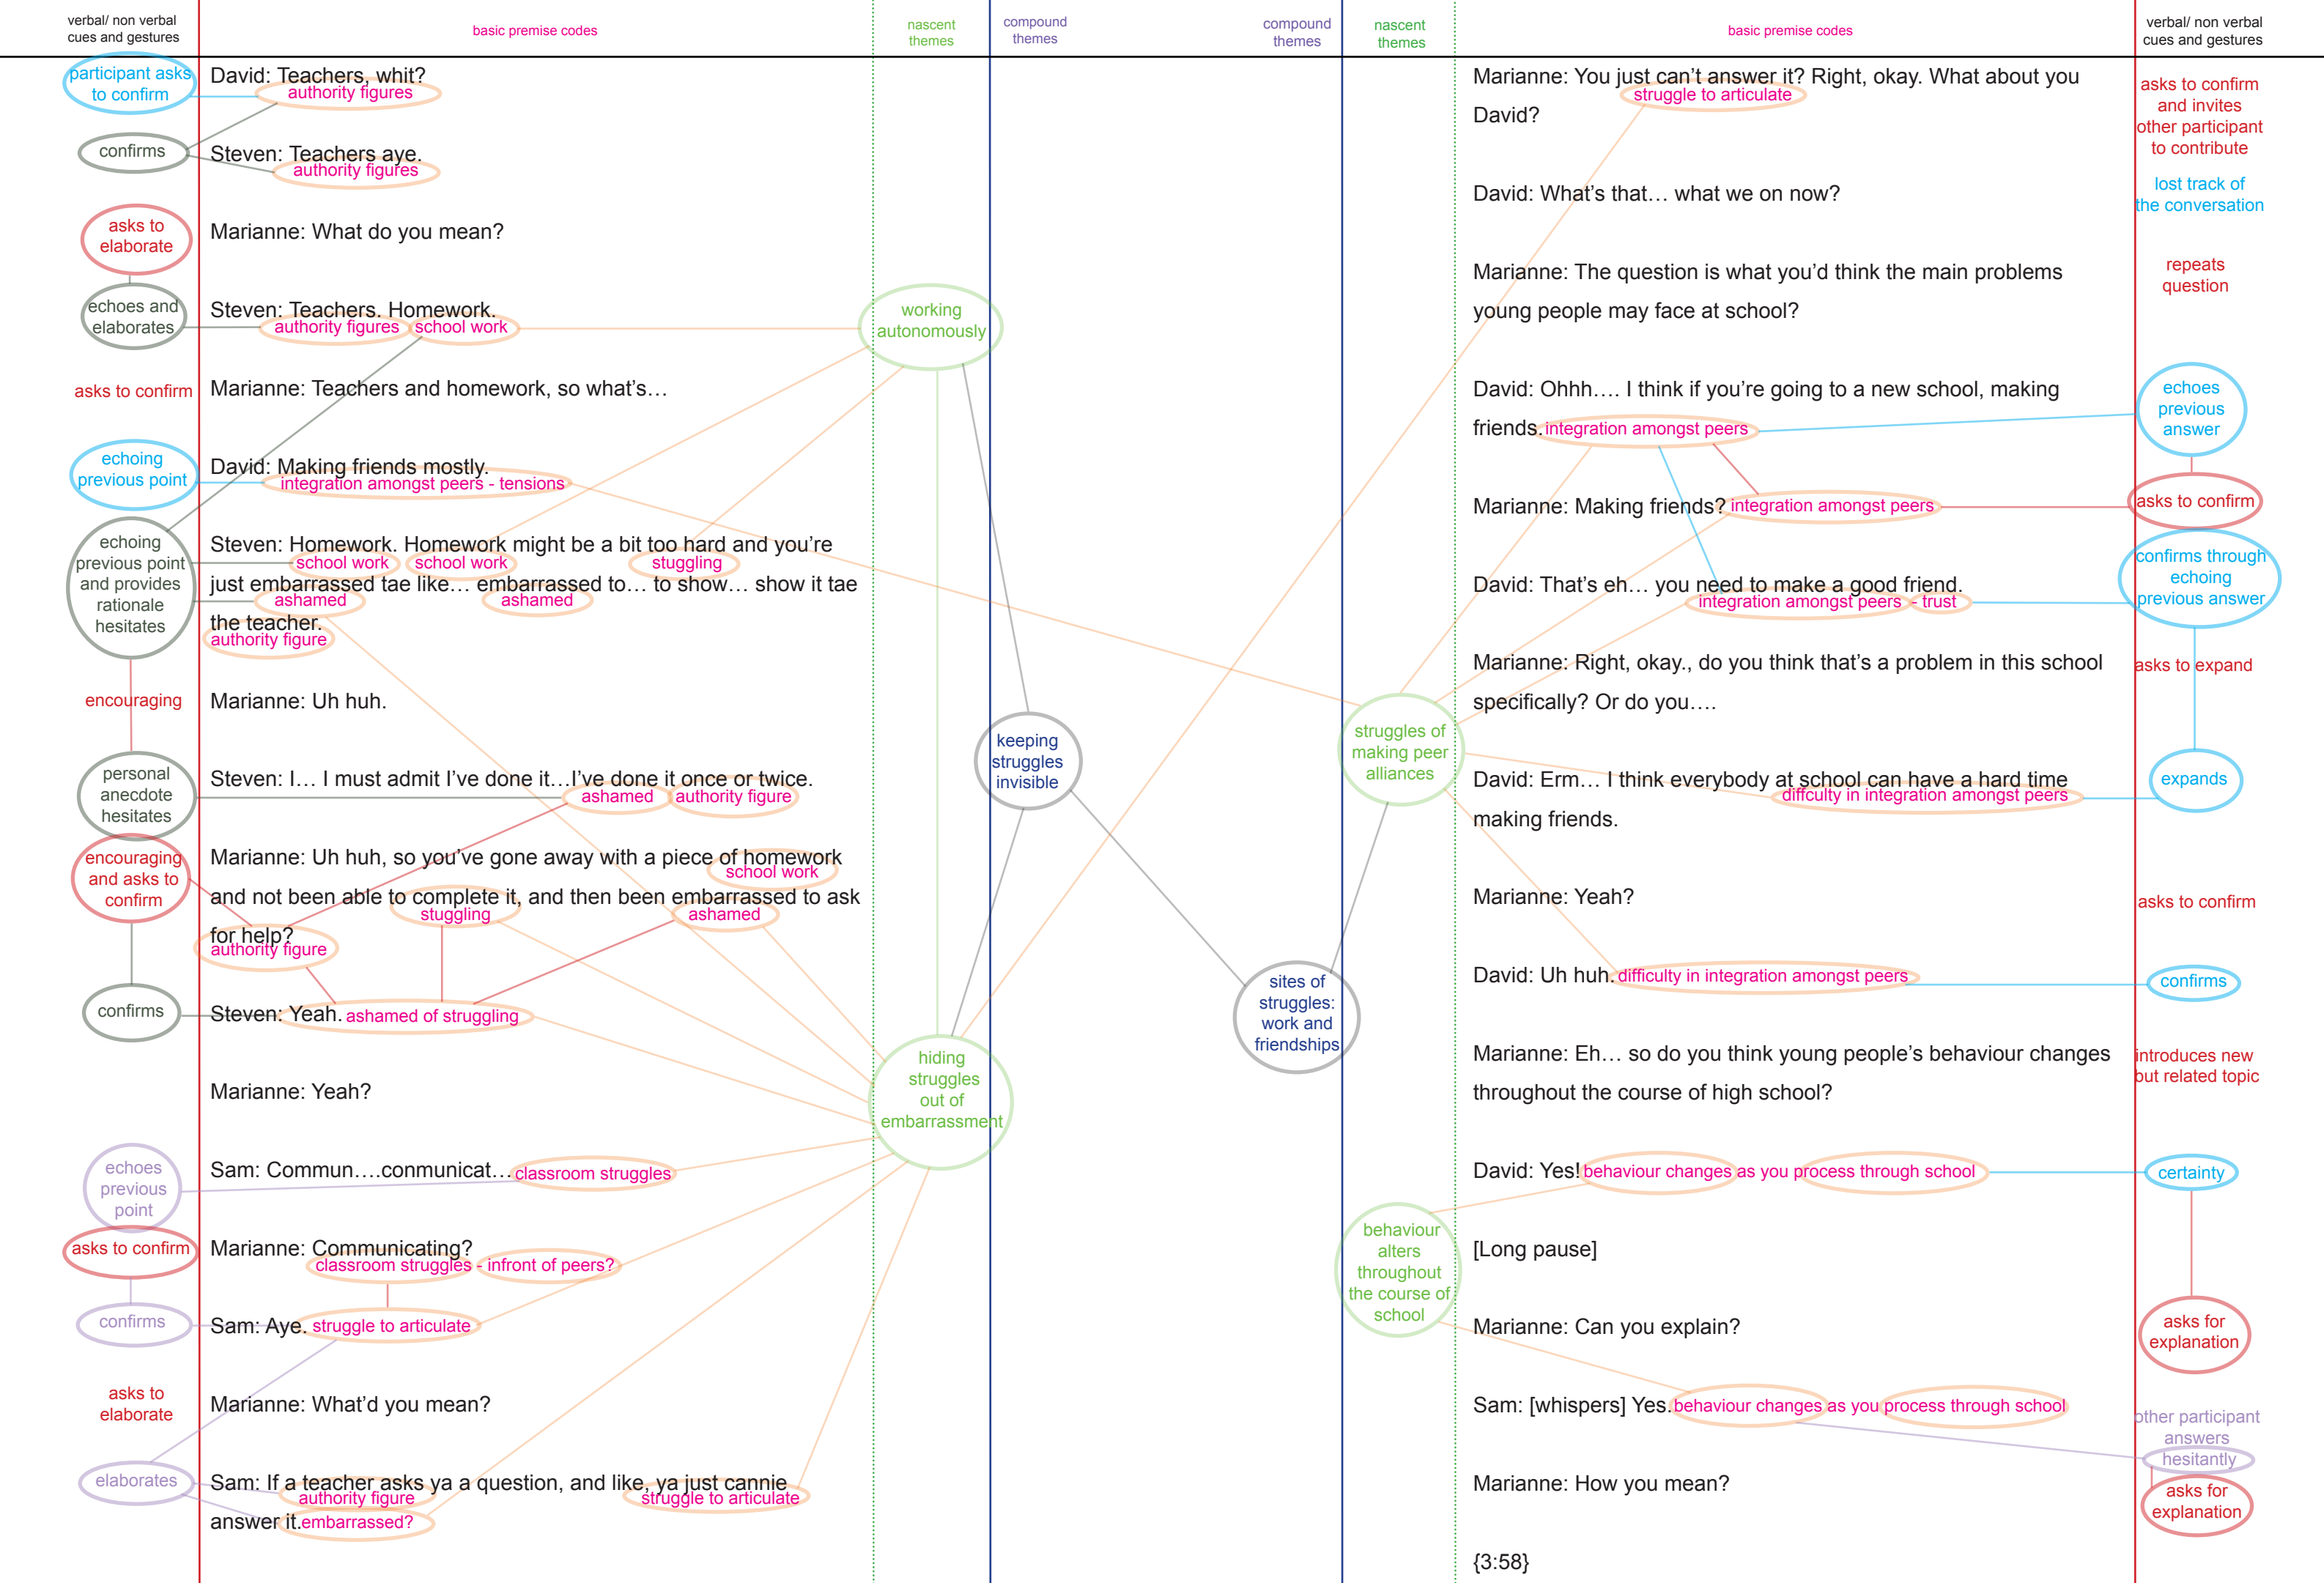

Marianne

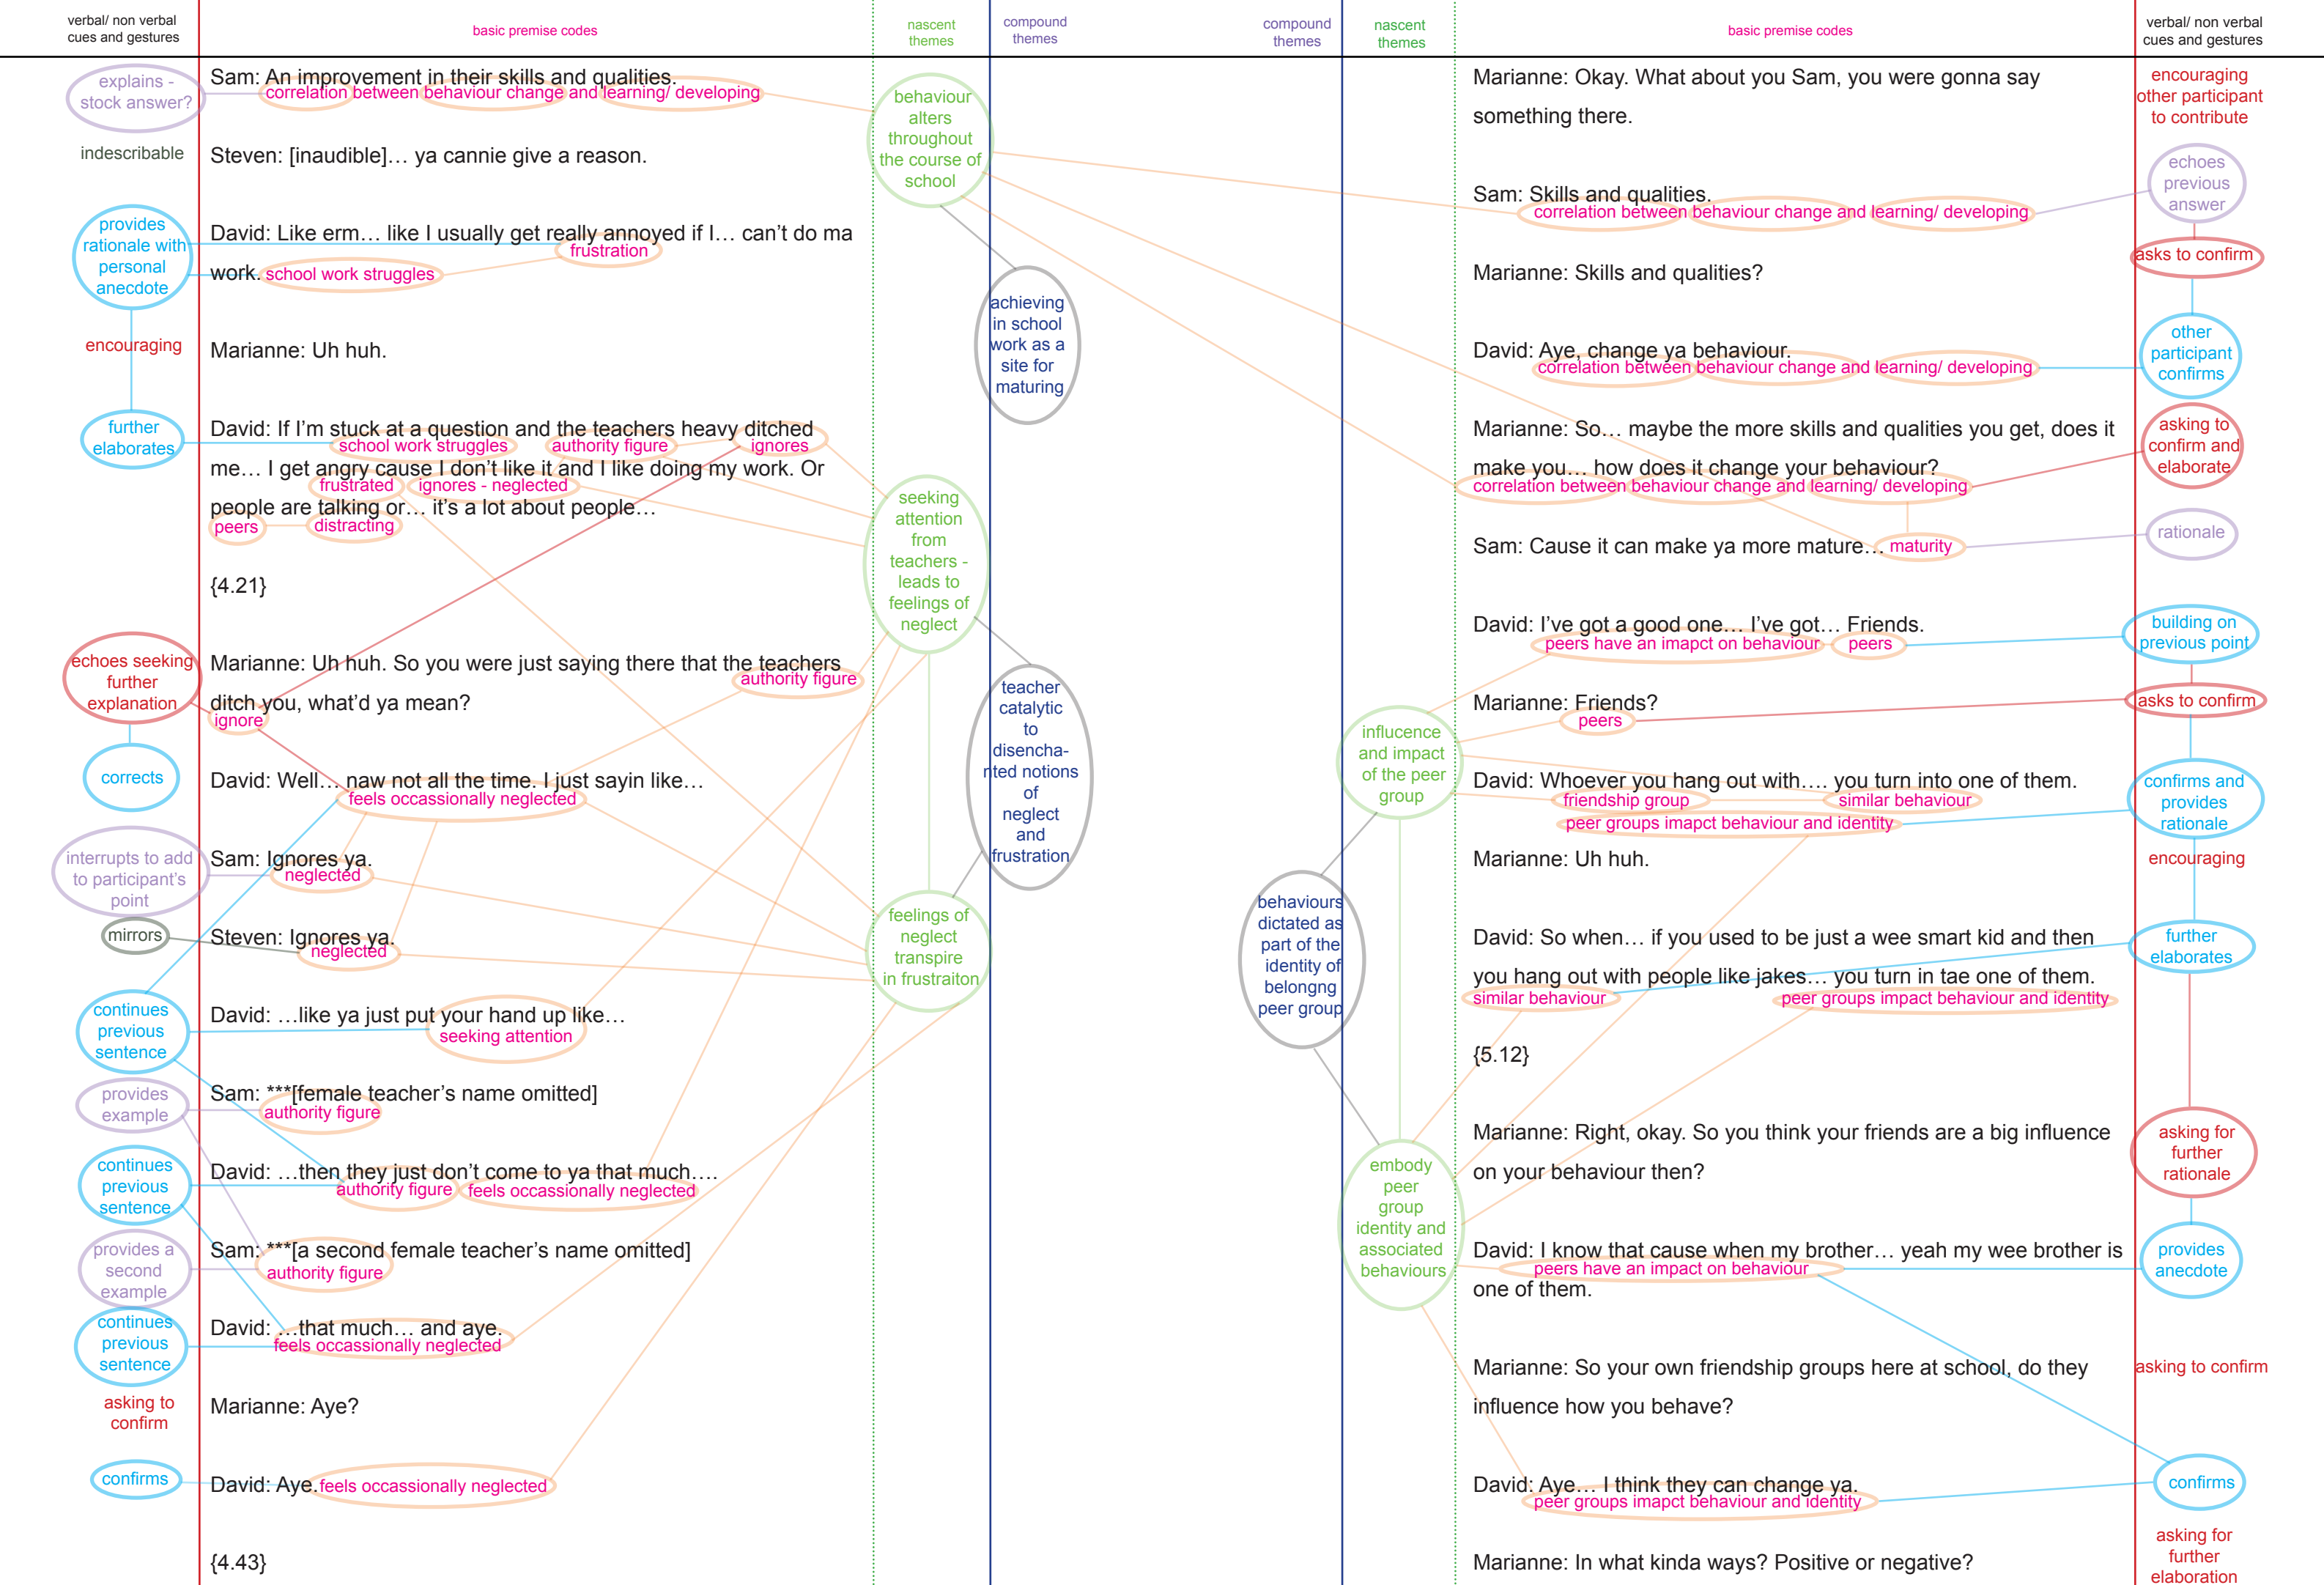

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes
	Marianne: So guys, the first sort of series of questions I wana ask you is to start thinking about your experiences of school. So the first question is...er... what do you think most young people feel about going to school?
	Steven: Aw...erm exhausted....yeah tired. physically tired asking to confirm with prompt	Marianne: Yeah? Exhausted yeah? What's that from? Is that from the times your in at school? The early mornings?
confirms	Steven: Yeah, the day's too early. early morning start participant asking to confirm	David: What was the question again?
repeats question	Marianne: The question was David, how do you feel most young people feel about going to school?
echoes previous point	David: Hmmm....I'm guessing that people feel bad for waking up so early in the morning... early morning start recognition for agreeing	Steven: Thank you.
contradicts	David: ...but I don't cause I like it.
	Marianne: You like it? So you're an early morning person?
	David: Uh huh, I enjoy waking up in the morning. I'm... I'm the only person. I wake up at five or six...
	Steven: See cause I'm always tired... [directed at Sam] anyway physically tired Sam say something.
invites other participant	Marianne: What you feel Sam?
echoes invitation	David: What'd ya feel Sam?!
echoes topic	Steven: About young people getting up so early.
hesitant	Sam:....[mutters]

the school day

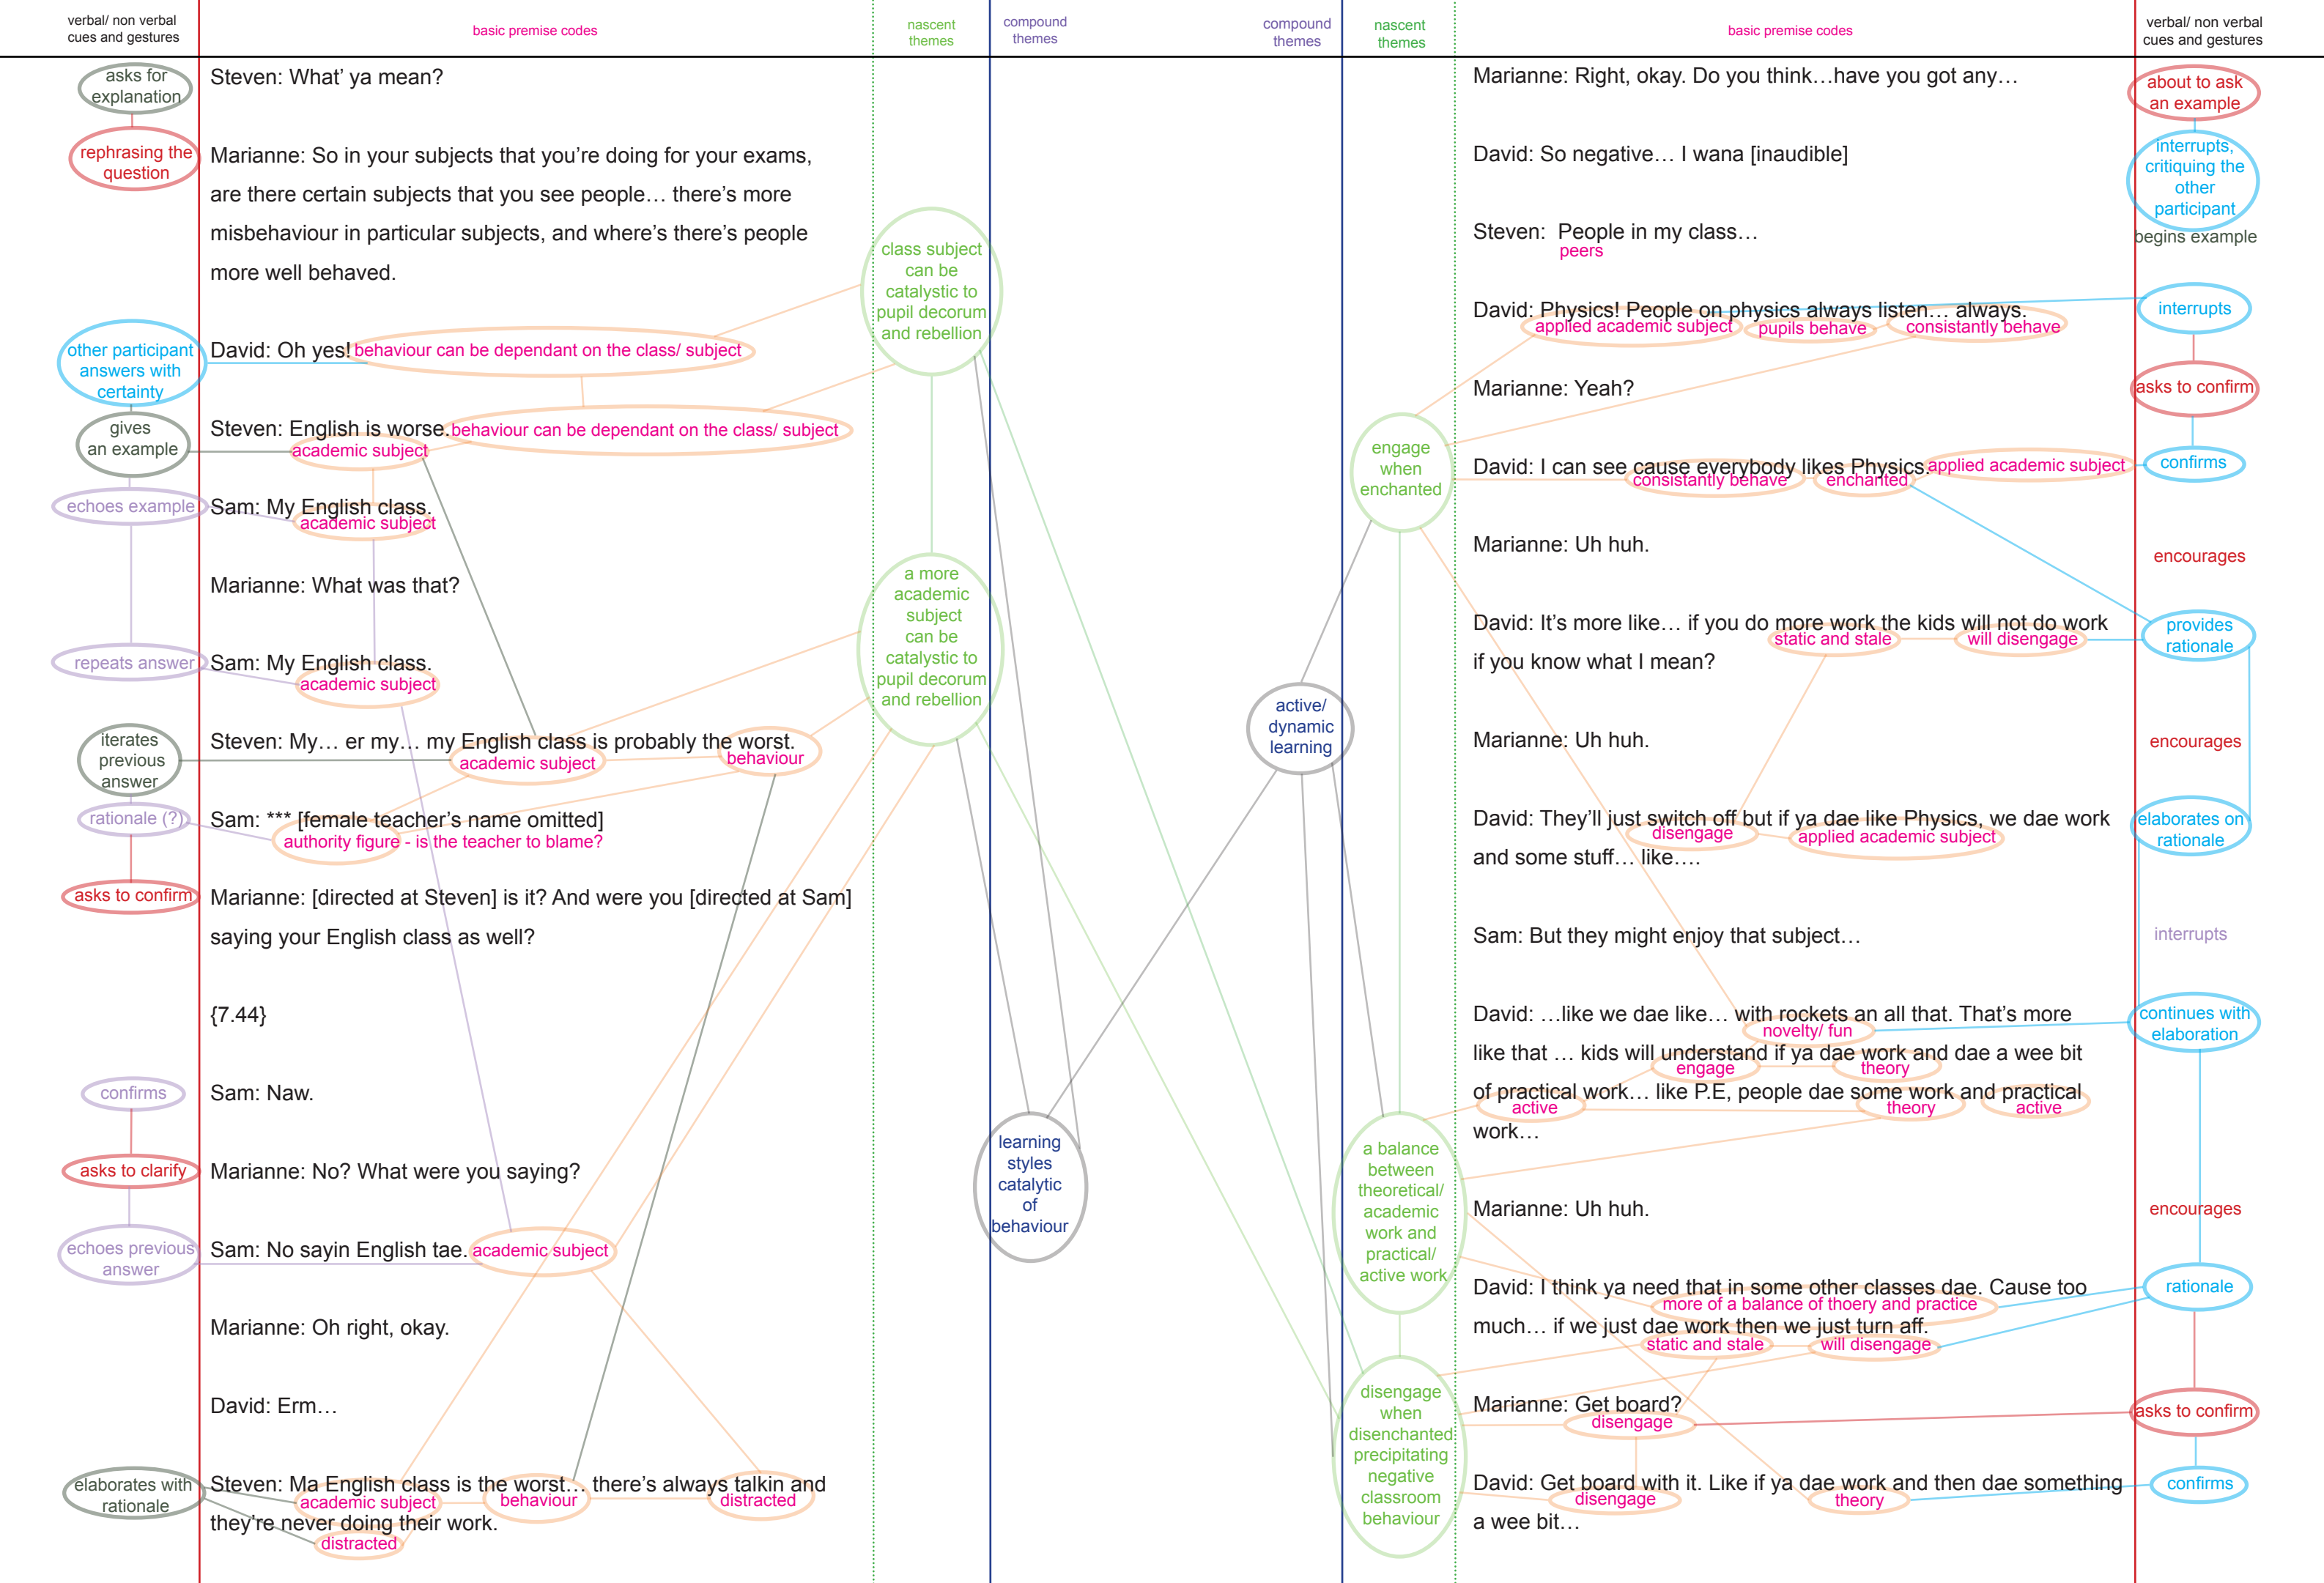

feeling lethargic

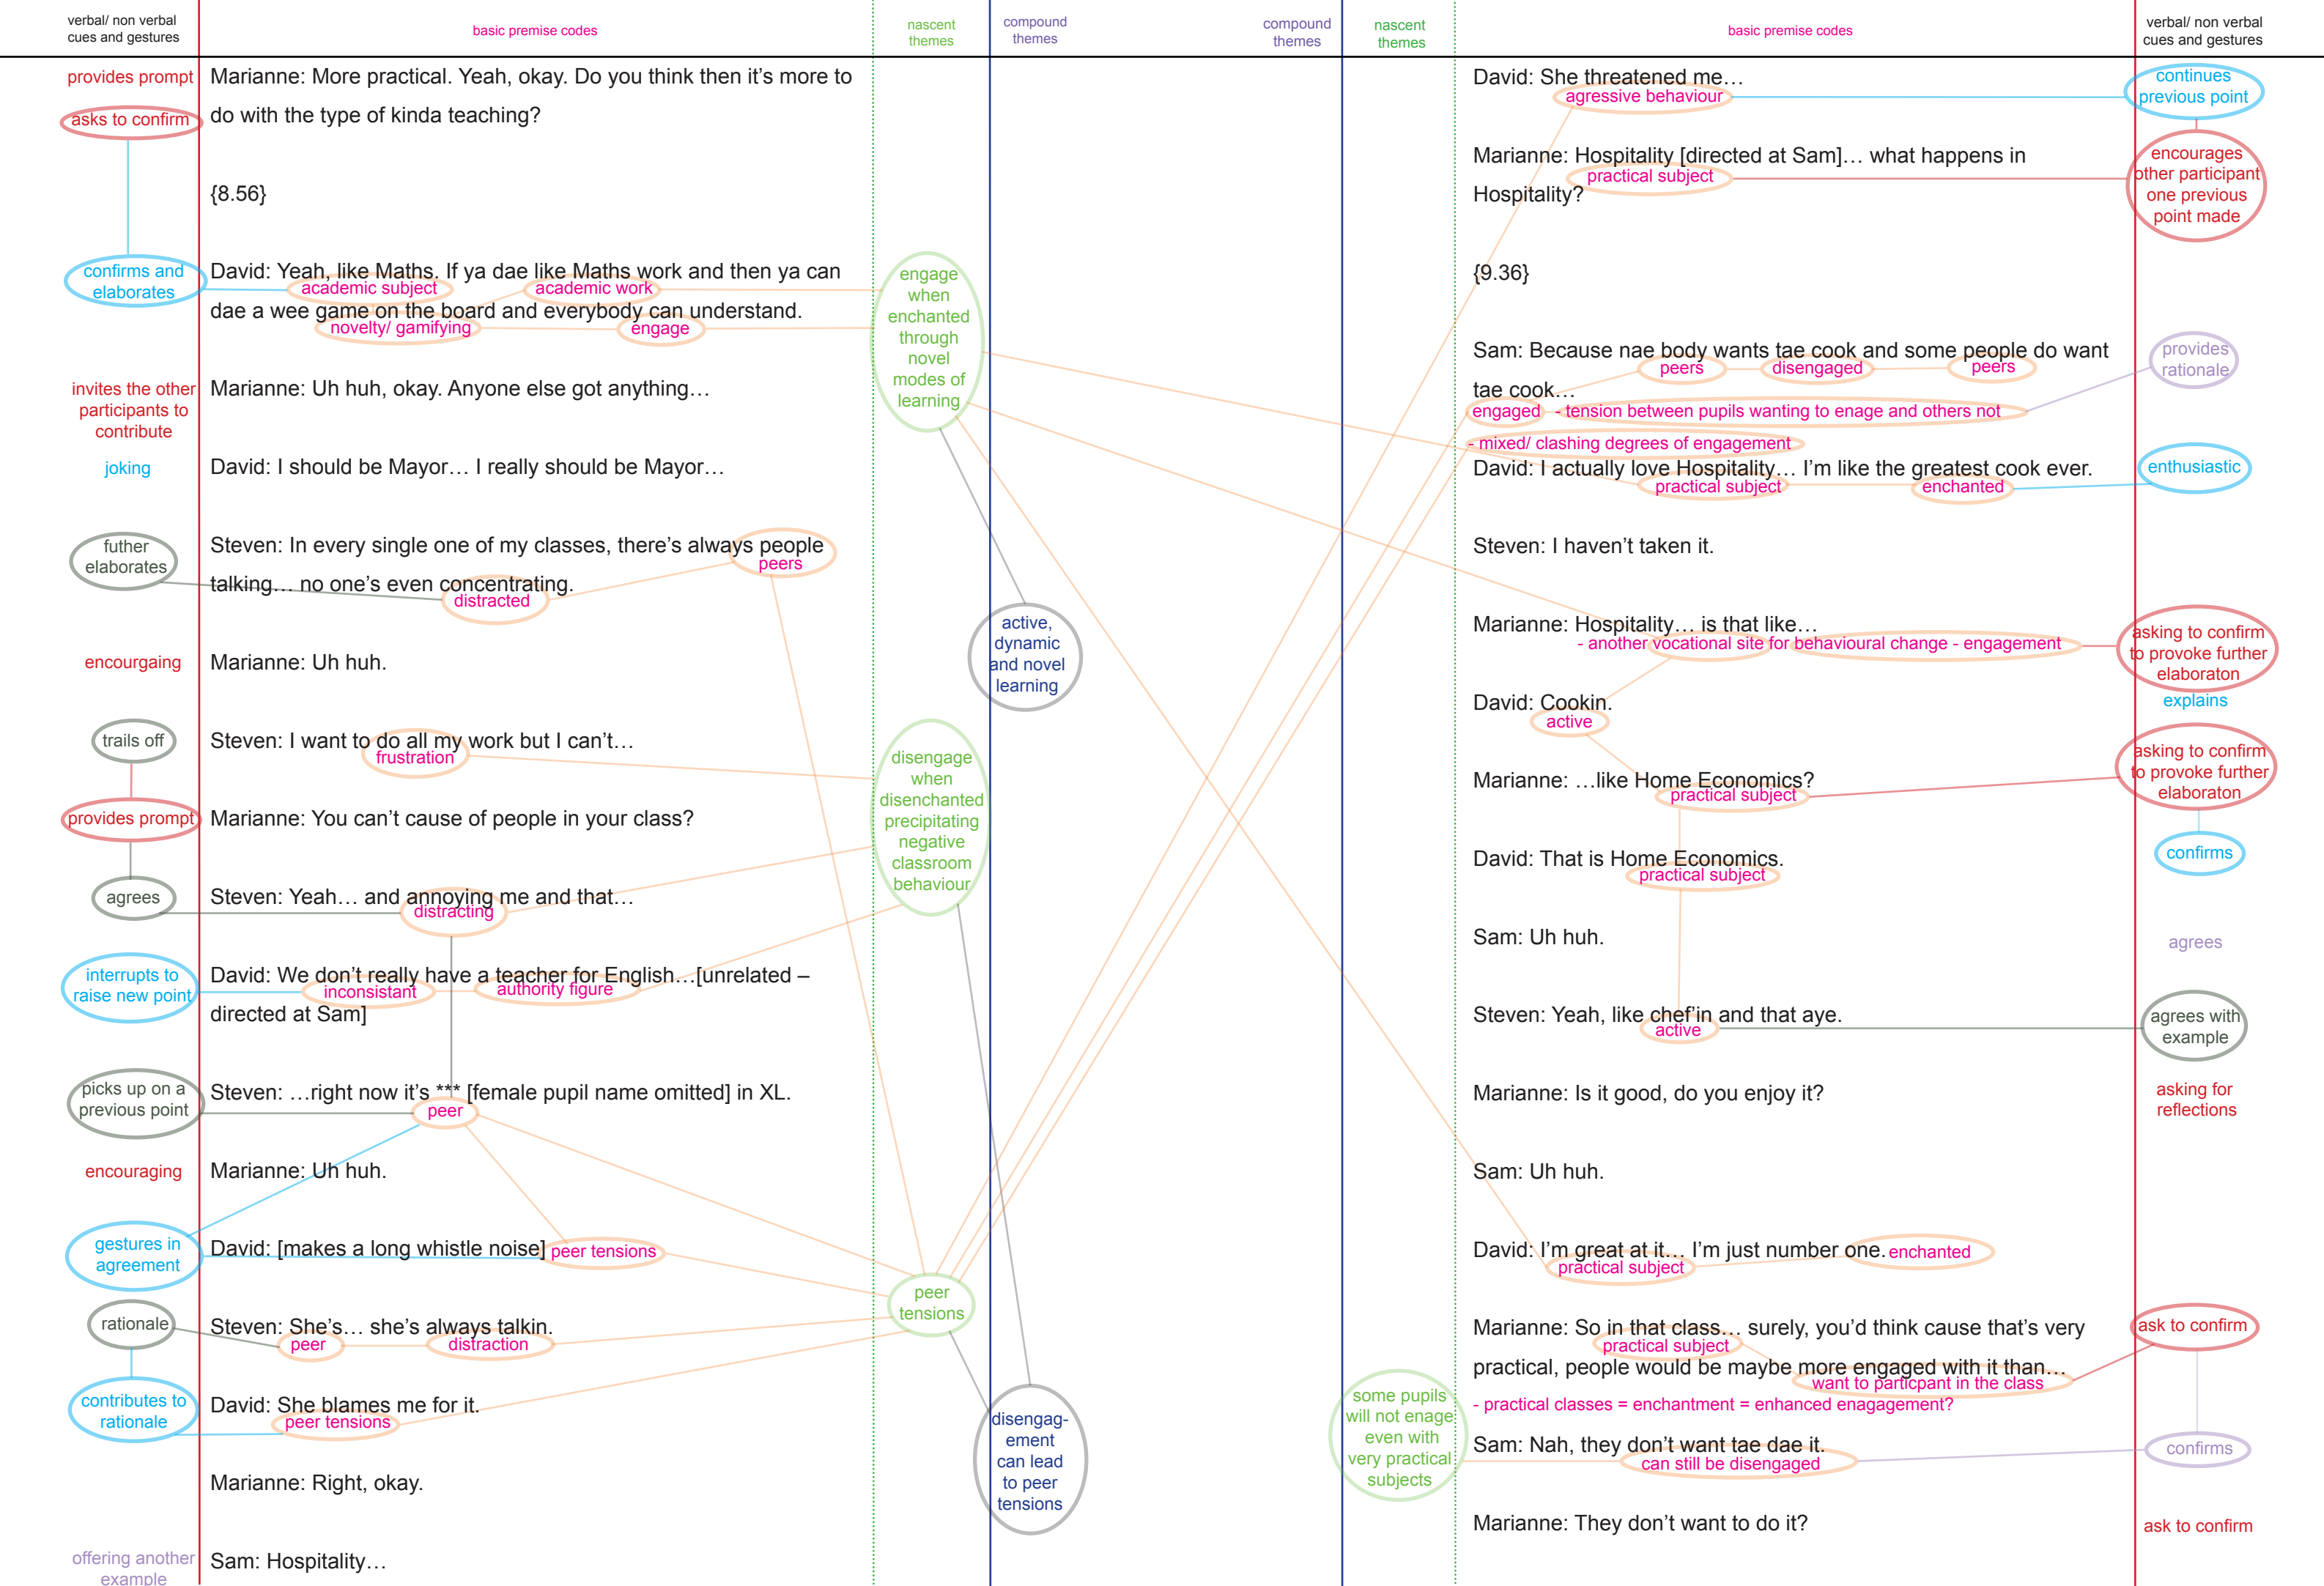

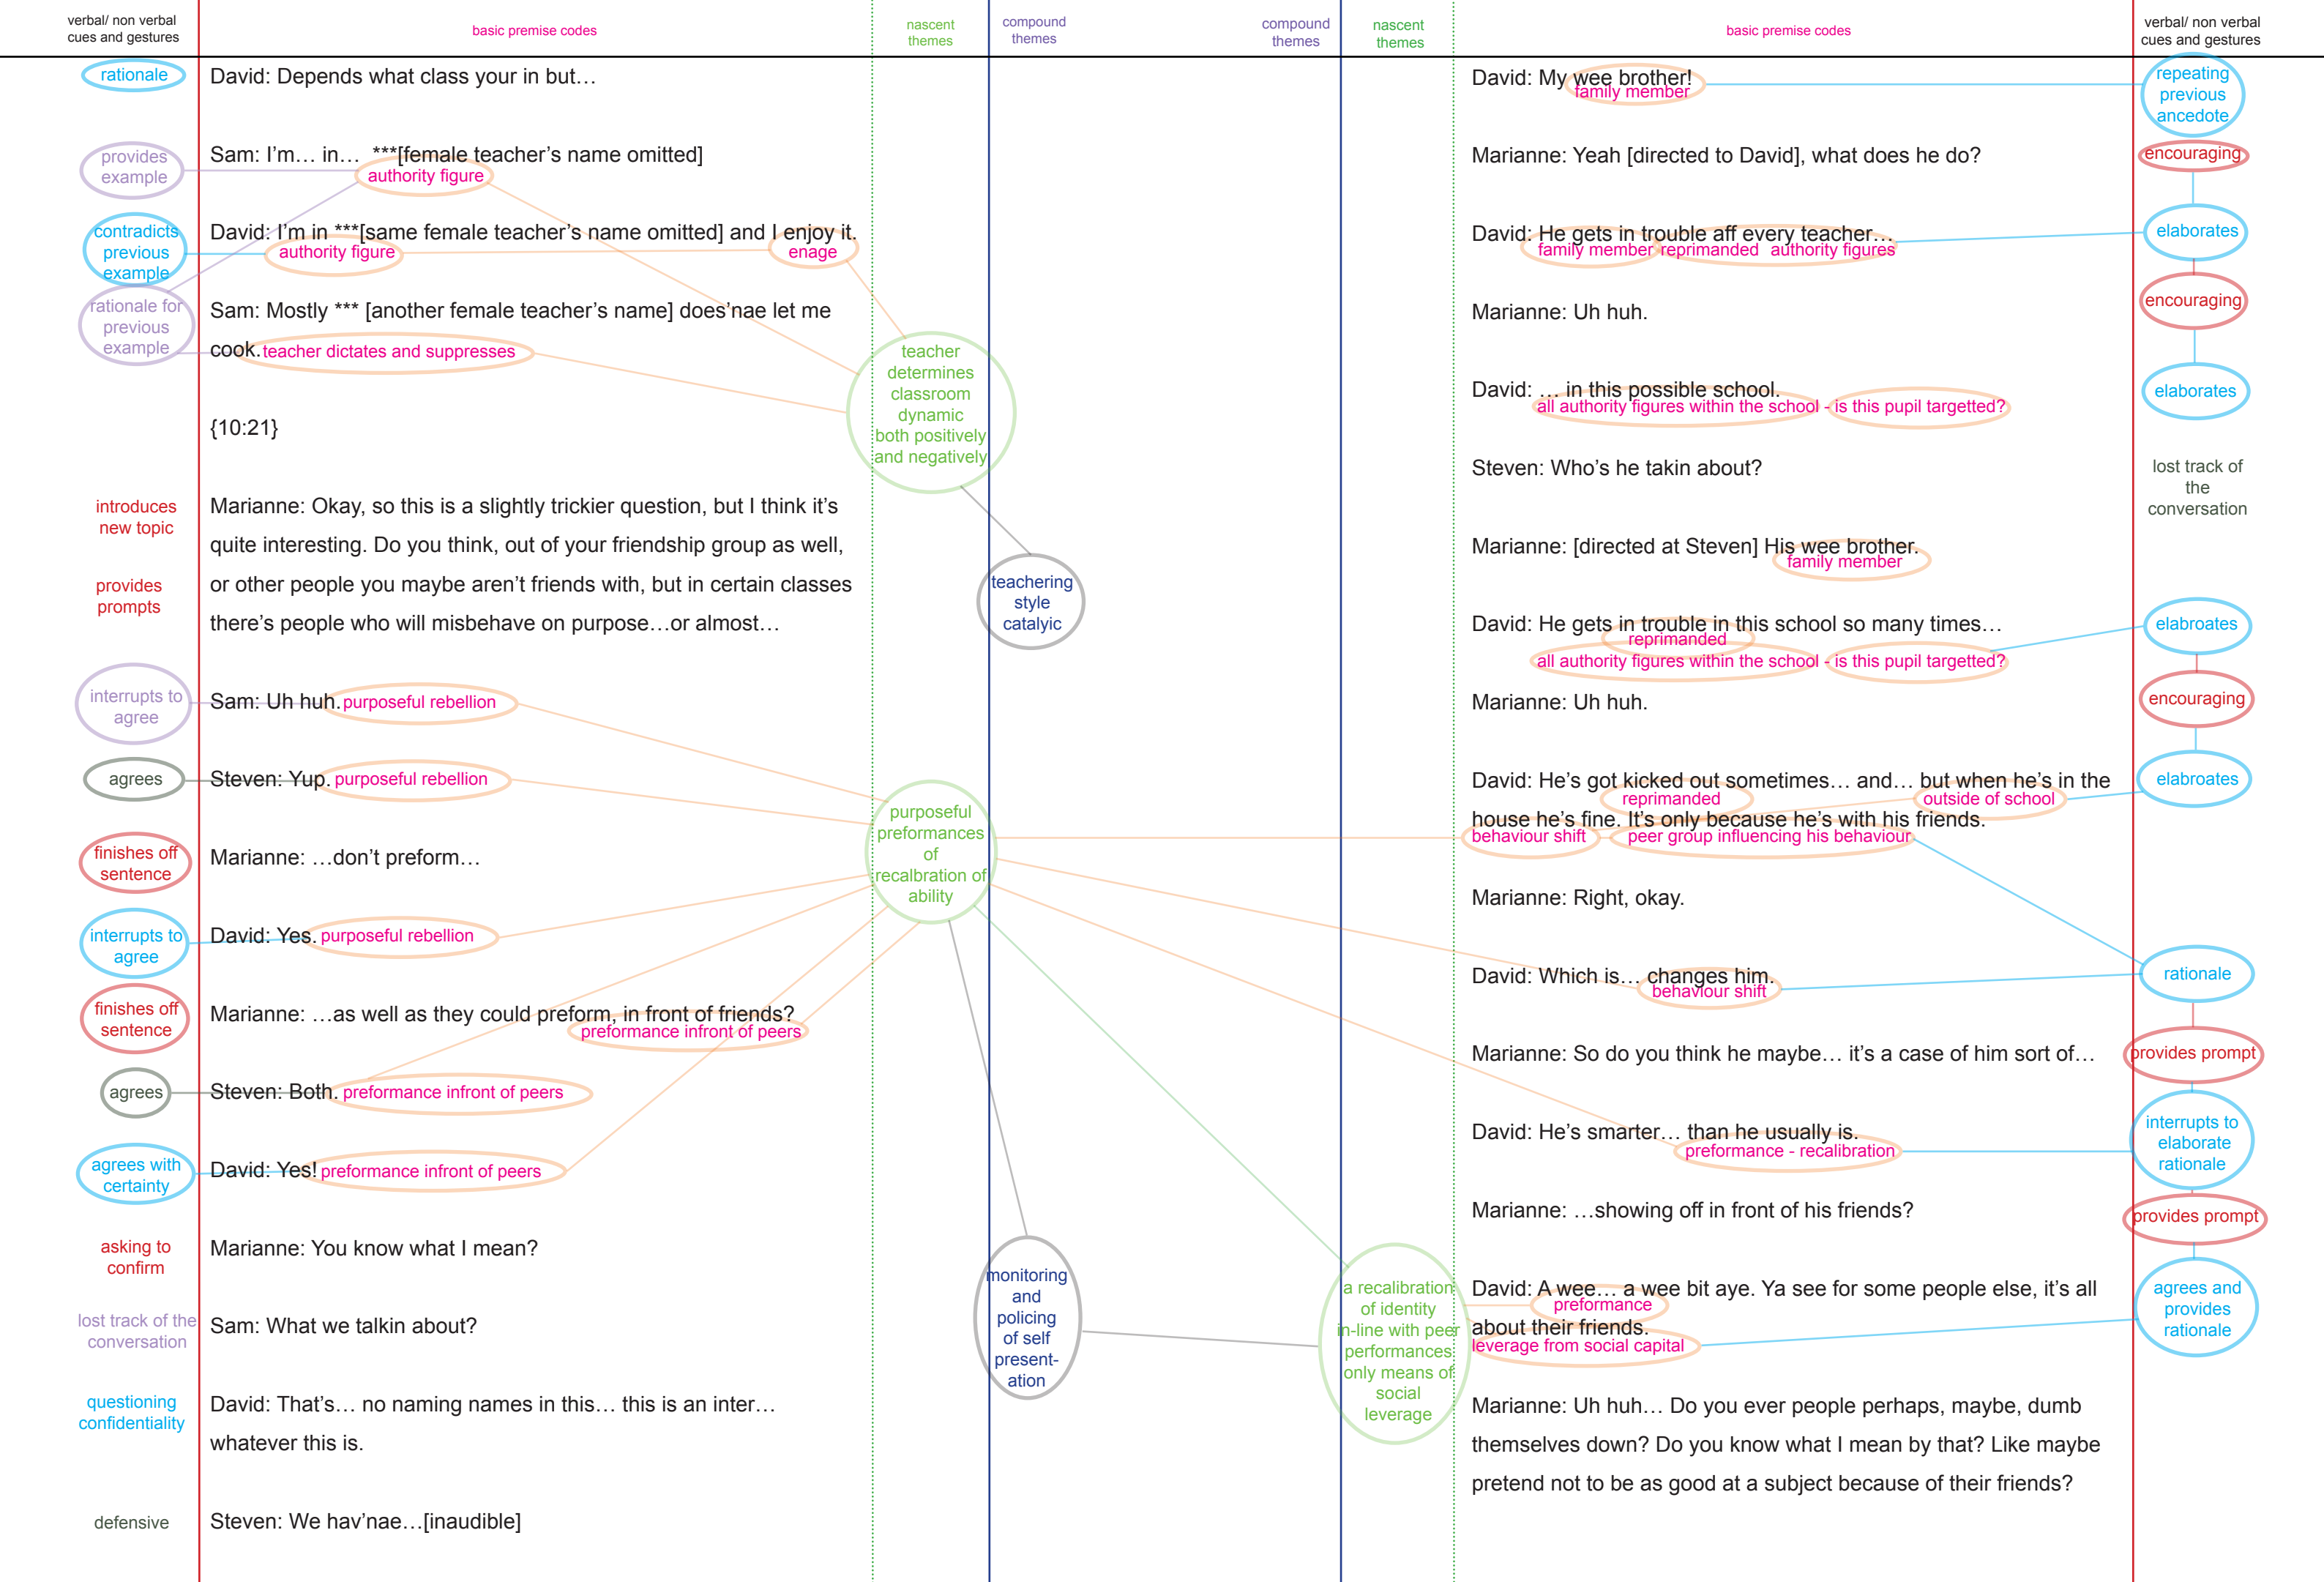

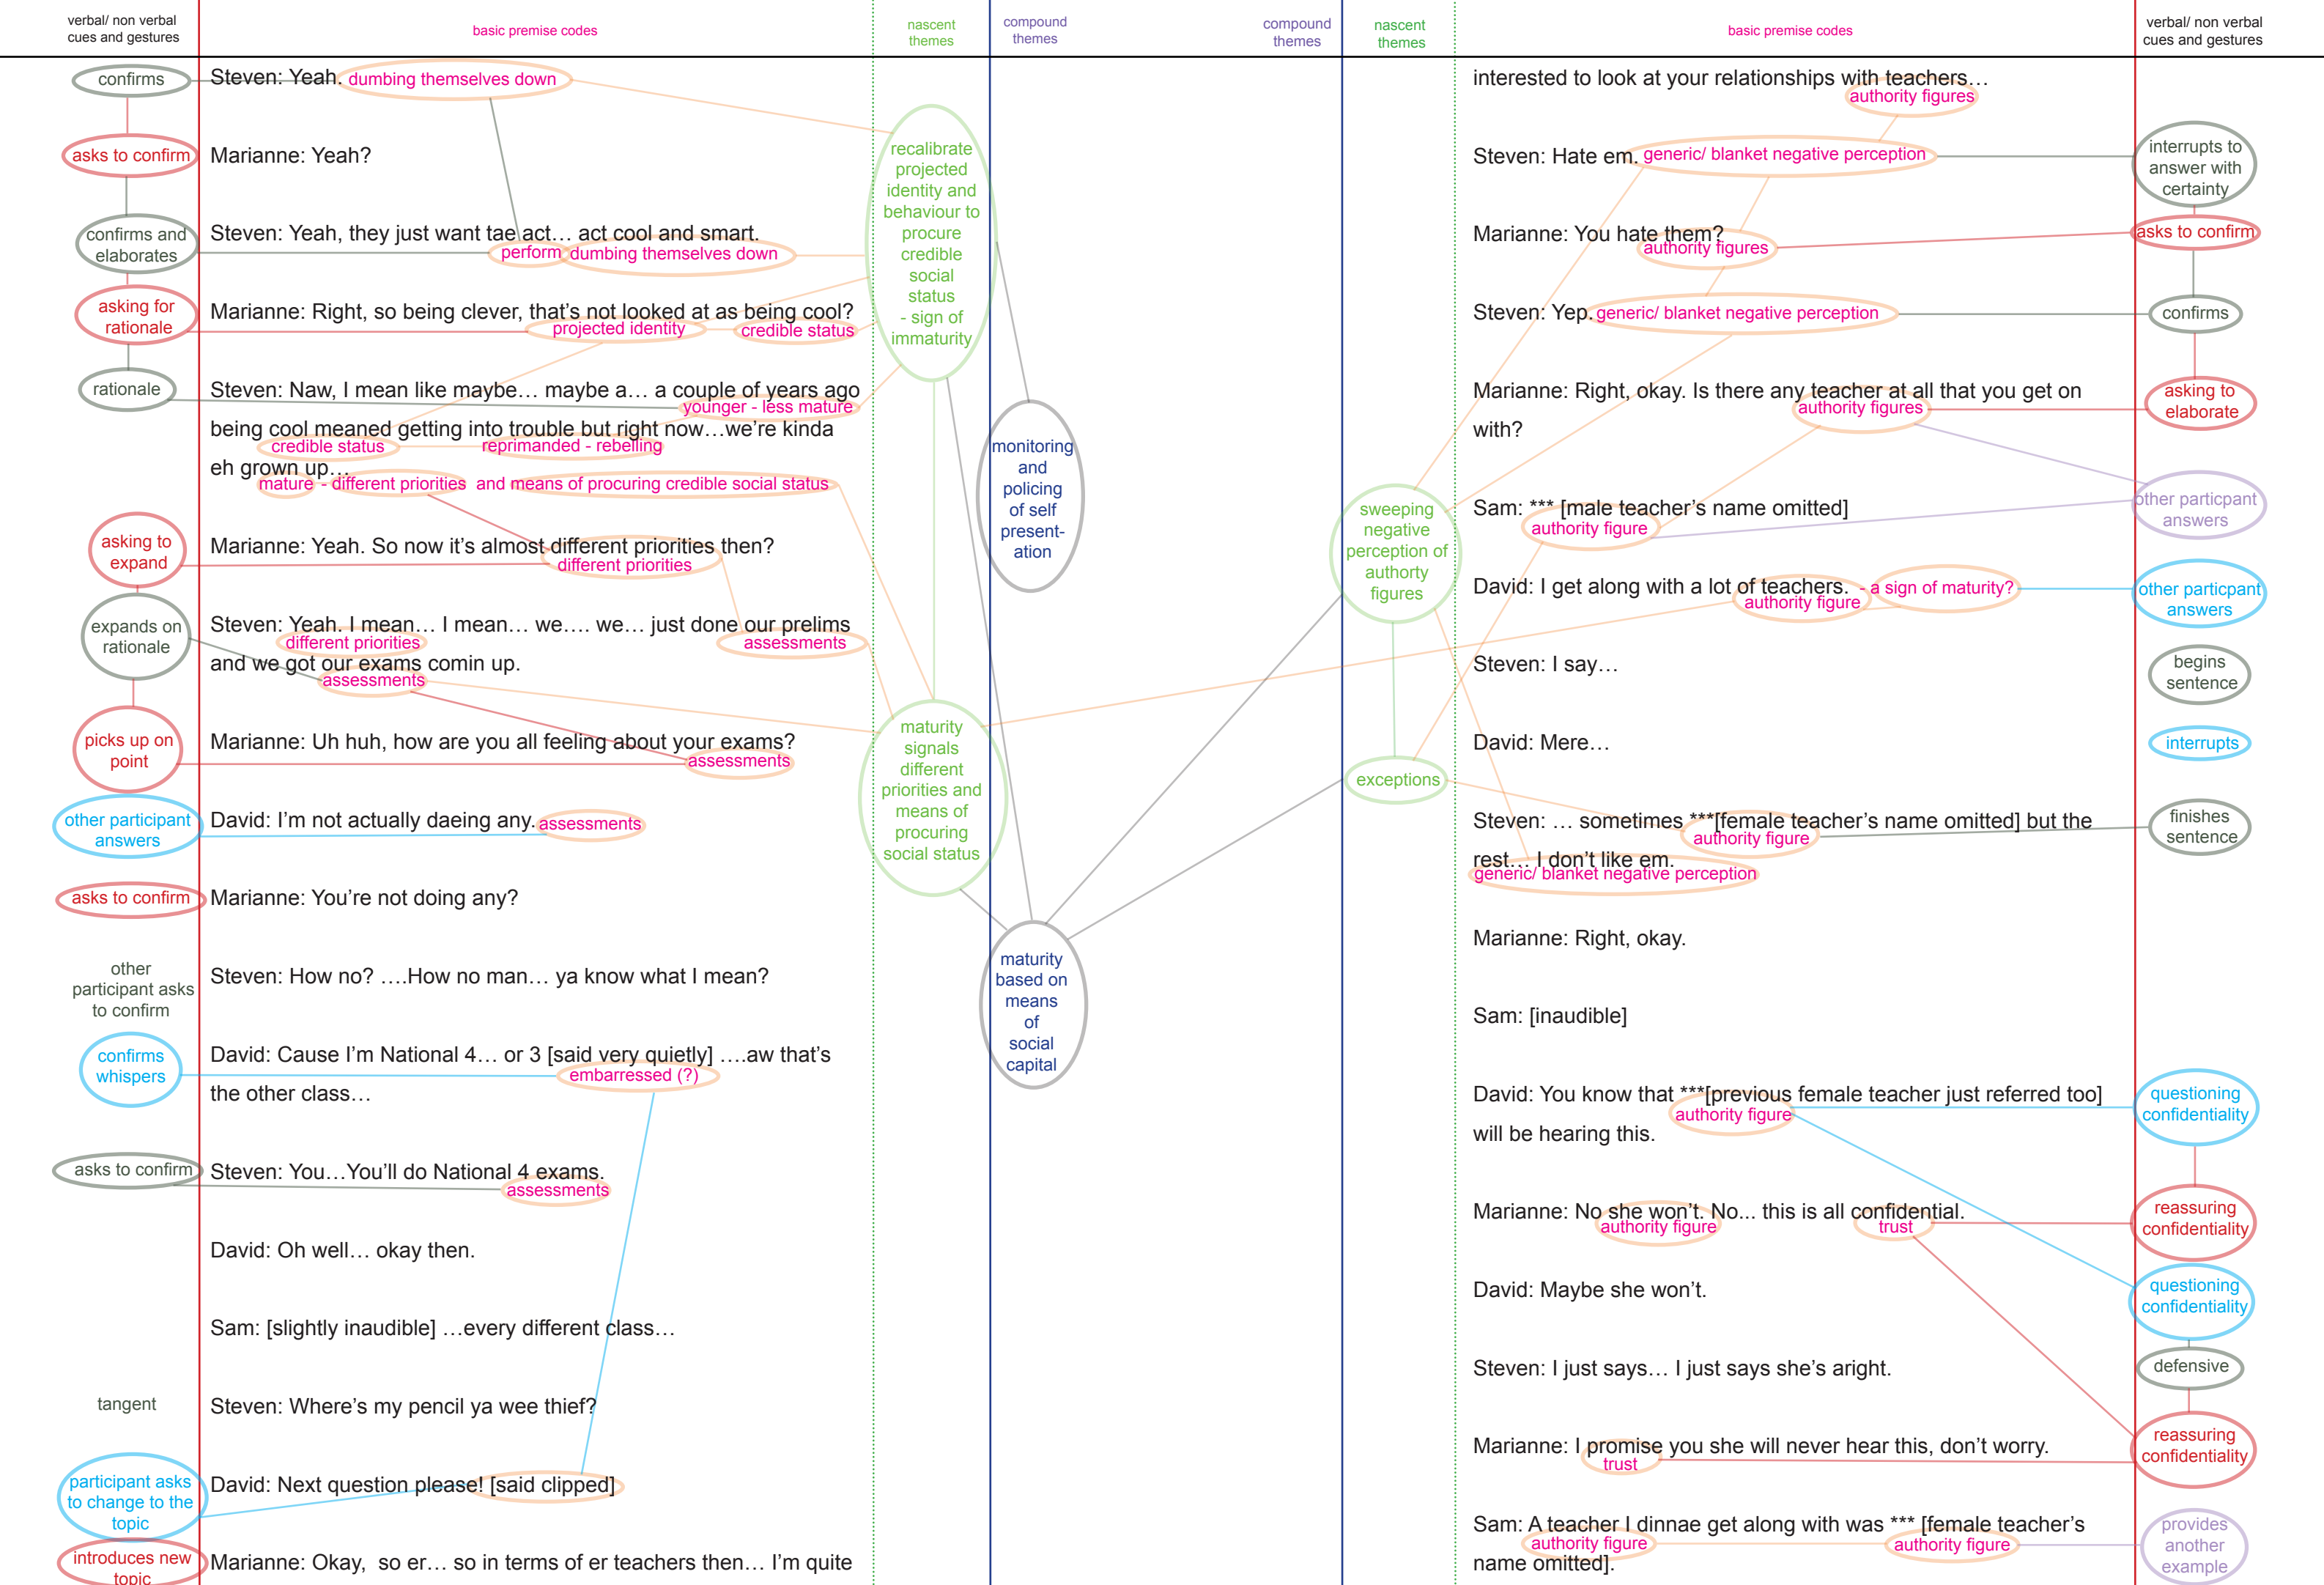

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	David: Both pretty much... peer group has both positive and negative influences on its members					just... and you just... he wants me to join in but I don't want to. peer pressure resists pressure
interrupts makes a joke	Sam: Negative [points to David whilst smiling].					Marianne: Uh huh, right okay. Do you think it's sometimes quite difficult to maybe... if your friends are... do you maybe feel pressure to join in with stuff if your friends are doing it?	encourages and ask to confirm
reacts to joke	David: ...especially if.... why ya pointing at me?
laughs at reaction	Sam: Haha.					Steven: Yeah.... I hav' nae... I hav'nae smoked by the way. peer pressure resists pressure experimenting	confirms but defensive
continues with previous point	David: Both. Pretty much both, it depends you hang about with. peer group has both positive and negative influences on its members					Marianne: No you haven't, but you think maybe your friends have and you feel maybe...	acknowledges
encourages other participant	Marianne: Right, okay. What do you think Steven?					Steven: It will... it will happen. inevitability
lost track of the conversation	Steven: About what?				inevitability of yielding to peer pressure	Marianne: Yeah? Okay. You [directed towards Sam] got any examples Sam at all?	asks other participant to contribute
iterates points raised and topic of discussion	Marianne: About em... friends influencing your behaviour? Do you think friendship groups, who you hang out with can make you behave more positively or perhaps negatively? negative effects	influence and impact of the peer group				Sam: Hmm...no.	indifferent
	Steven: Yeah... negative actually. negative influence		the influence of peers and the transpiring negotiations and struggles			Steven: [directed towards Sam] You need to speak into that thing [indicating the voice recorder].	directs other participant
other participant provides example	David: Drugs and all that... they'll make you...erm... drink and take drugs and smoke and that will affect you in the future... and you'll become a junkie or a drug addict... maybe worse. taking risks peer pressure experimenting peer pressure effecting your future negative effects with negative outcomes	peer pressure - taking risks				David: That's nice.
	Steven: [inaudible]...its what did.					Marianne: Have you got any more erm... Steven just said about smoking, so you think there's anything else that... experimenting	encourages other participant with prompt
asks to repeat	Marianne: What was that?					Sam: Drinking. experimenting	gives an example
echoes previous point	Steven: Nah., just sayin. I would probably say negative. negative influence					Marianne: Drinking? experimenting	asks to confirm
	{6:14}					David: I don't wana say anything about that.	defensive
asks to confirm with an example	Marianne: Negatively? Have you got any examples?					Marianne: That's okay, you don't have too. It's fine. Okay...	reassures participant
defensive	David: I just said them. negative effects with negative outcomes					{7:09}
grateful and encourages other participant	Marianne: No, no great. I was just asking Steven.					Marianne: So at this school, are there certain subjects that you see people behaving better or worse in?	introduces new topic
	Steven: Like like erm... you say one of ma pals smokin and he taking risks

162

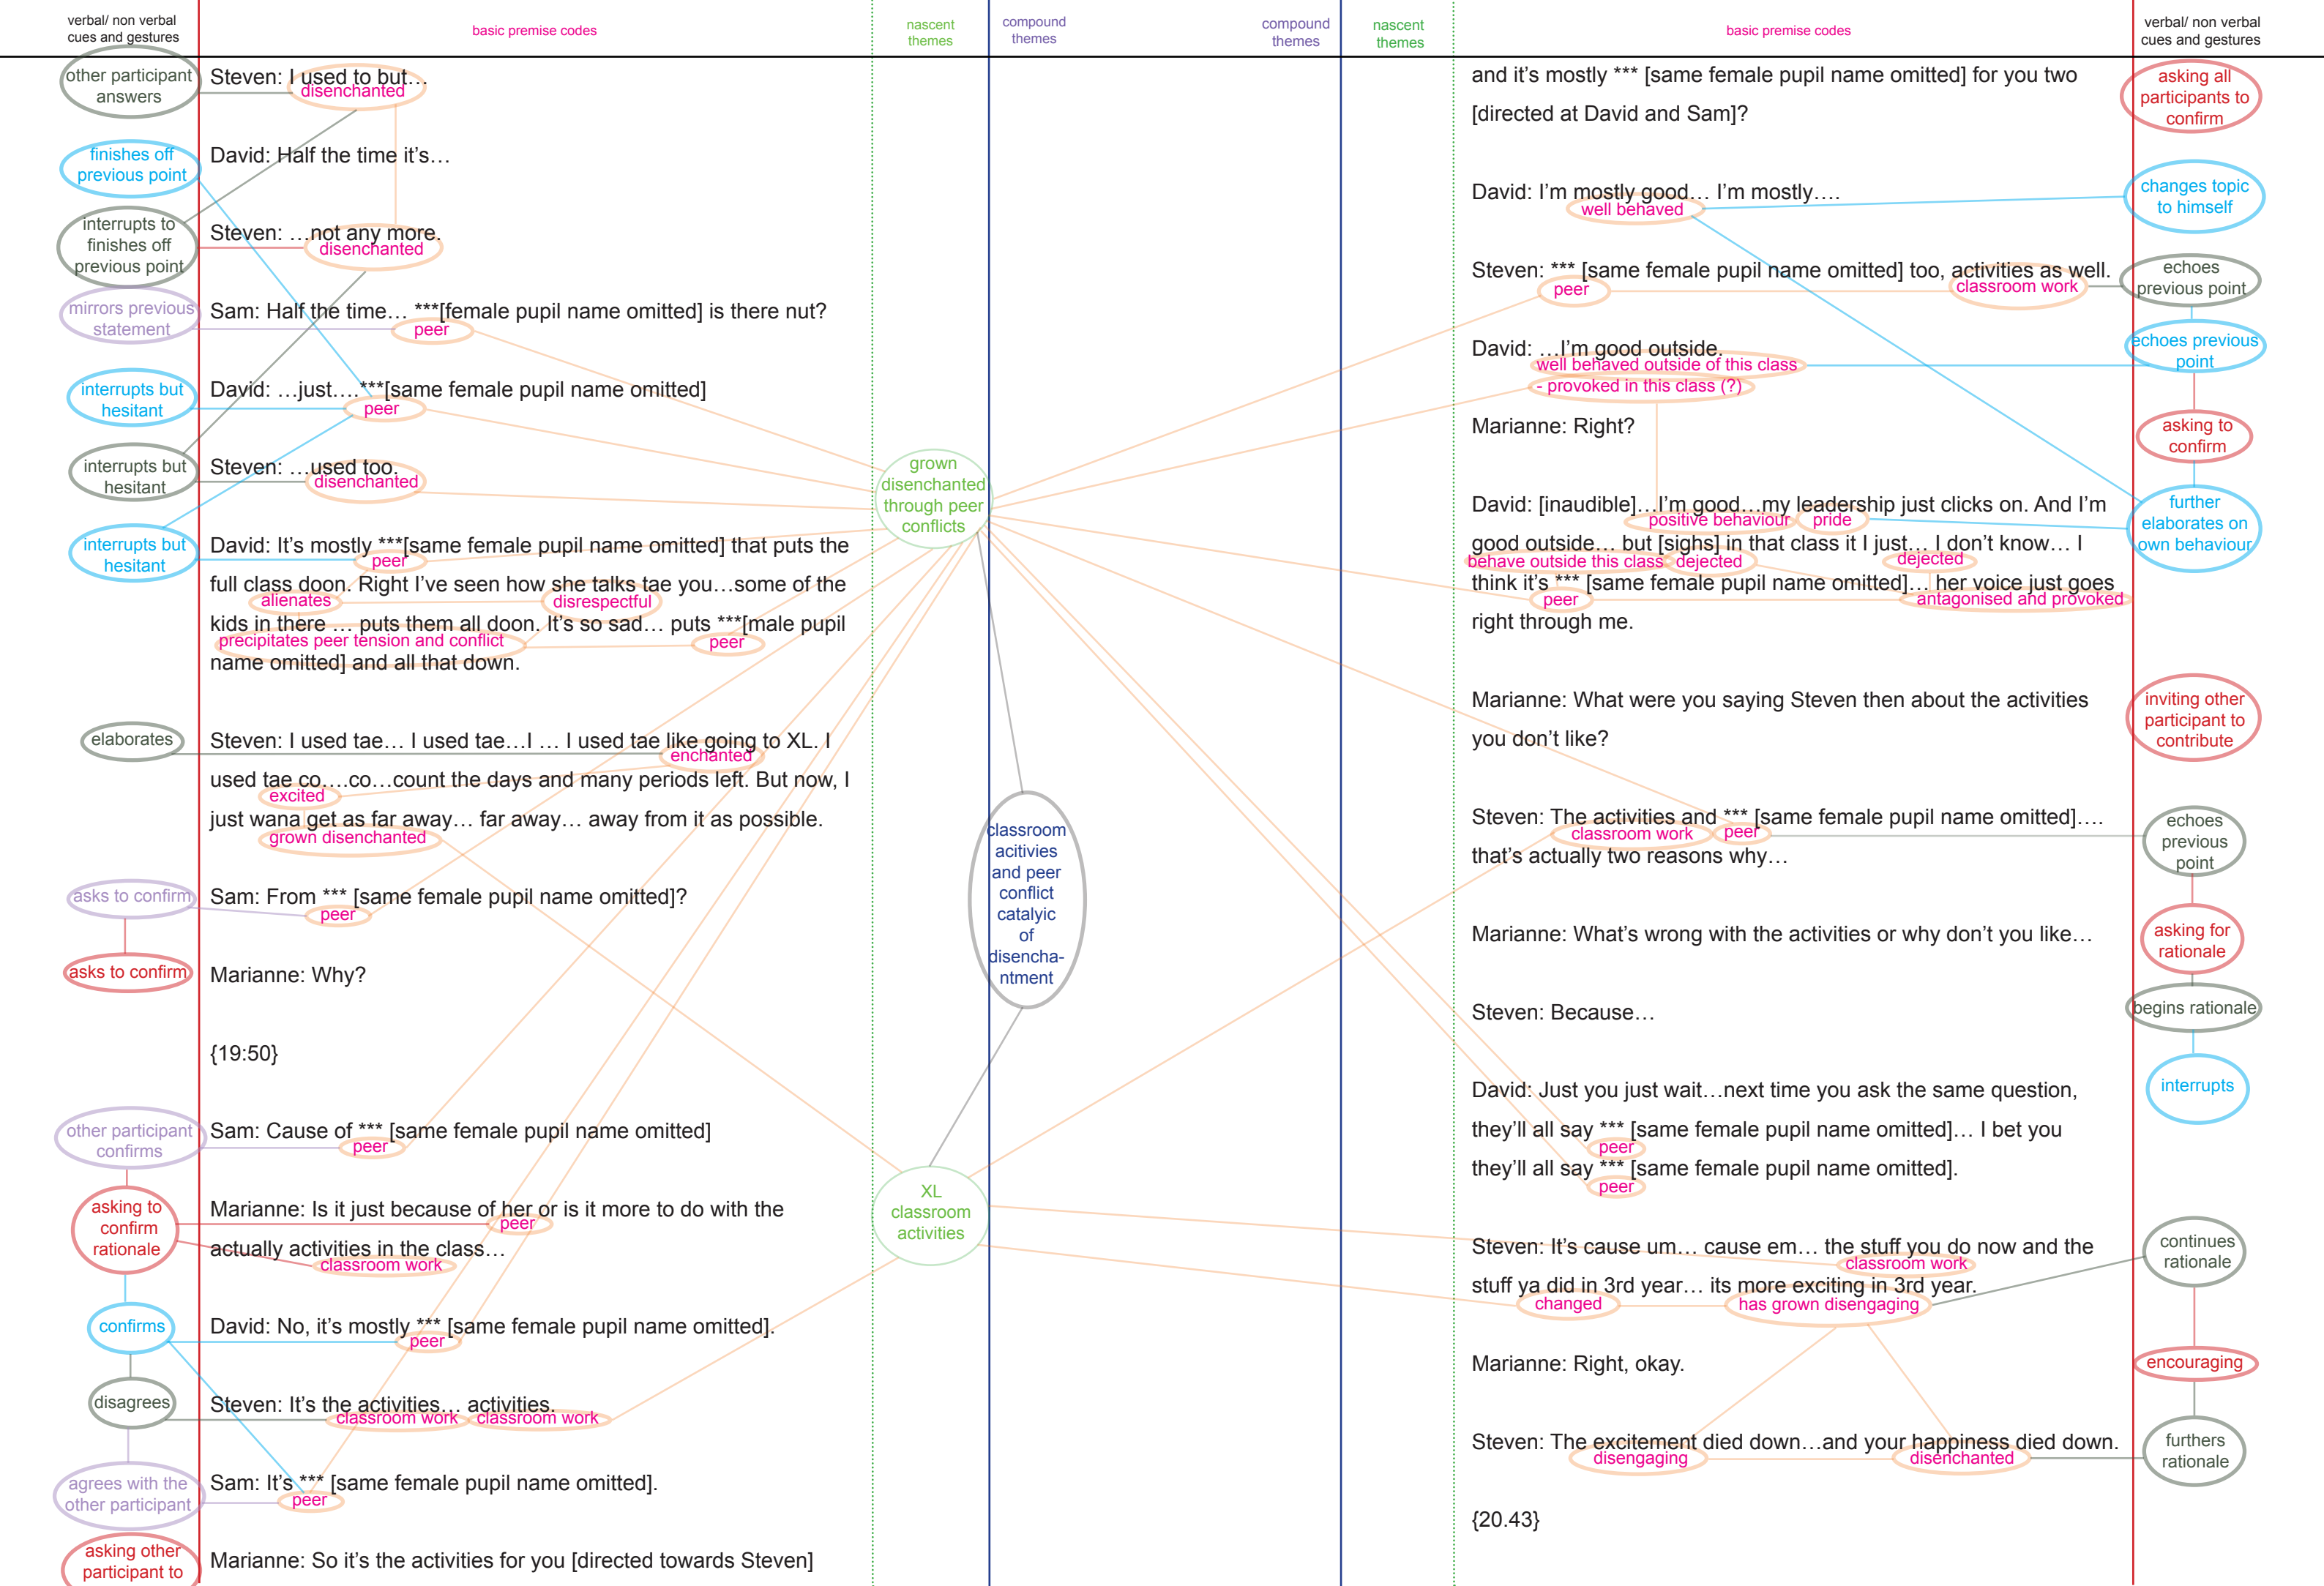

163

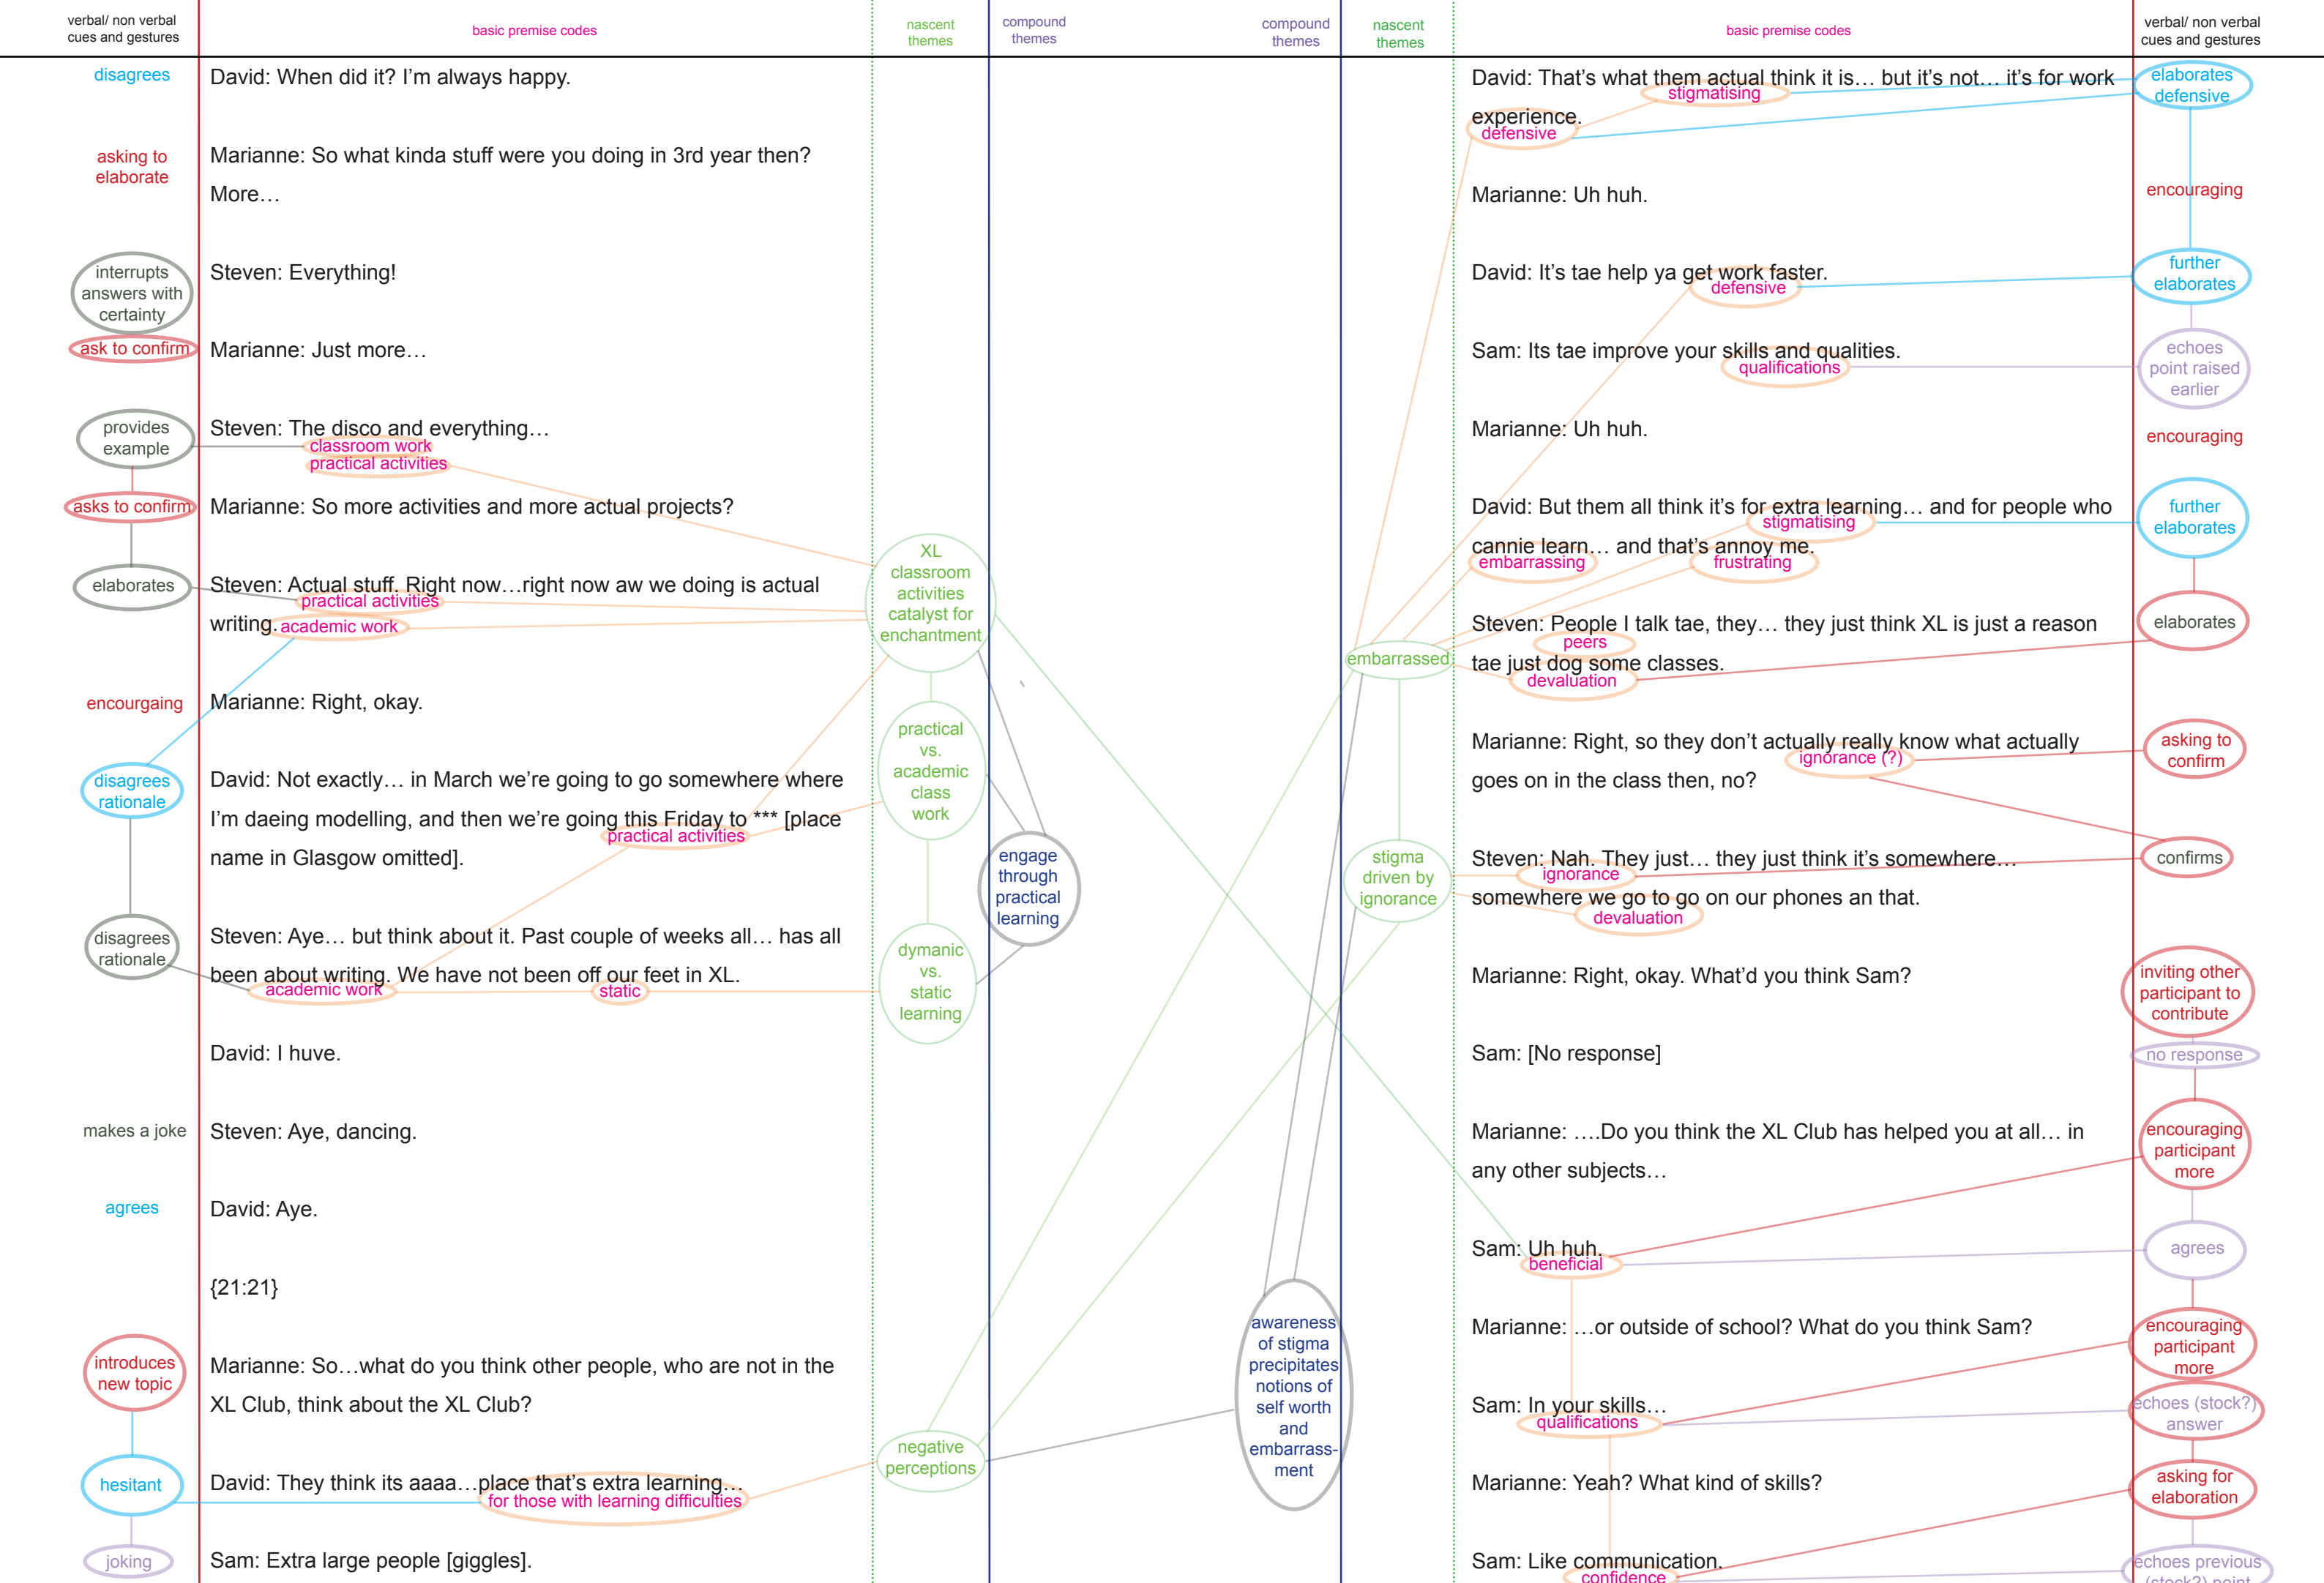

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	to... aye and everybody hates it... they get more attention. resentment neglected					others?
asking for rationale	Marianne: So why are they the favourites... why do they get to be the favourites?					Steven: Yeah! trust particular teachers over others	agrees with certainty
rationale	David: Because they're better at everythin... they listen maybe... higher achievers display more positive behaviour (?)					Marianne: Yeah?	asking to confirm
rationale	Sam: And they actually bring in their P.E kit. display more positive behaviour					Sam: Uh huh. trust particular teachers over others	other participant confirms
rationale	David: And they actually dae stuff. display more positive behaviour					Steven: Pastoral care. trust council teacher	other participant give an example
	Marianne: Right okay.				trust	Marianne: Pastoral care? So you have a good...	asking to confirm but interrupted
elaborates	David: But we would dae stuff if you could show us some bits... you know... you... us....you care... that you can dae it. But that they just stay with the same people. invest/ nurture attention attention neglected	feeling neglected when other peers are more invested in by teachers - leads to feelings of resentment				David: [some inaudible] ...partly, aye that's it! trust particular teachers over others	other participant interrupts to agree
	{15:15}					Steven: [female teacher's name omitted] number one.  [another female teacher's name omitted] will be number two....and that's all. trust particular teachers over others	other participant provides more examples
provides prompt	Marianne: So if they maybe showed a little bit more...					Marianne: Right, okay.	encouraging
interrupts	Steven: Attention. neglected		teachers catatylc to feelings of neglect and resentment amongst peers			David: There's only one teacher I really don't like... my pastoral care teacher... doesn't trust (?) council teacher	elaborates
asking to expand	Marianne: Attention to you, you would give that... you would return that back to them? reciprocity (?)					Marianne: Do you not?	asking to confirm
elaborates with personal anecdote	Steven: My... I never got helped in Maths at all and I was actually that bad and not getting attention, I had to do a one [inaudible – affecting work neglected neglected affecting work possibly saying 'appeal'] with a... another teacher.				distrust	David: She...she really does my nut in... frustrating	elaborates
encourages	Marianne: Right, okay.					Steven: Who does?	participant asks to confirm
echoes previous point	Steven: It was actually... it was... it was actually that bad I had tae ask to get one [inaudible] ... affecting work	neglect from teachers leads to feelings of worthlessness and affects school work				David:  [female teacher's name omitted] council teacher	gives name
interrupts	David: What? I don't like teachers... its fine. dismissive generic/ blanket negative perception					Steven: She's aright.	disagrees
introduces new but related topic	Marianne: So one last question about teachers then. So are there any particular teachers at this school that you trust more than					David: She's terrible. doesn't trust (?) frustrating	disagrees
						Marianne: So you wouldn't go to her? trust her (?) council teacher	asking to elaborate
						David: Nah I would not go to her. I asked her for so many things... help and aw that... doesn't trust (?) let down	elaborates with rationale

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.					Steven: PSE teacher...naw it's Miss... Miss....erm... Miss  [female teacher 's name omitted]	other participant answers
further elaborates	David: ...if she can get me a scribe, she says she can't dae anything...perceived as unreliable					Marianne: [still directed at Sam]...is there any particular teacher that you would go to if you had a problem?	other participant answers
interrupts with another example	Sam: I don't trust  [male teacher's name omitted]untrustworthy					David: [directed at Steven] Aye, I'd go to her.trust	other participant answers in agreement continues previous point	David:...like, but you're put in charge, you're the one that helps the people. So I just don't listen to her and don't care about her.frustration/ contempt irreverence reciprocity					Marianne: [in response to Sam shaking his head]...not really? What about your pastoral care? [Sam shakes his head again] ...no? [directed to the other participants] So is it about these two teachers then that you... so you mentioned your pastoral care, what is it about them that you feel you can...ambivalent ambivalent	encourages other participant to answer responding to participant's reaction encourages other participants to answer asks for further elaboration	Marianne: Is there another teacher that you would go to then instead?					Steven: Yeah because erm...it's ... cause when I was in first year, at the start of the year... I got bullied like every second of every day. So she was the person I could actually turn to cause I never knew any...anyone else...target of persistant peer conflict confide in only option	agrees and provides rationale elaborates	David: It's the trust... I would probably go to a lot of teachers.trust is crucial can trust many of his teachers					Marianne: Uh huh.	encouraging asks to confirm encouraging	Marianne: Quite a few of them? That's good.					Steven:... and I'd met with  [female teacher's name]... I'd met wi ma pastoral care at...erm... at ma primary school.prolonged engagement	furtheres rationale other participant asks to confirm	Steven: ? [female teacher's first name from before omitted]					Marianne: Right okay, so you had quite a long... like you known her then for quite a long time?	asks to confirm
	David: Uh huh.... What's that?					Steven: Yeah, Iv never had... I never knew her 100% but I knew her more than any other teachers there. And she was actually the only person I could turn to and actually helped.trust built up over time didn't trust anyone else dependable	furtheres rationale other participant asks to confirm	Steven: You...you'd probably go to  [female teacher's name omitted].					Marianne: Right, okay. And what about you [directed at David], so the teachers that you trust more, is there particular reason... {17:57}	encouraging other participant disagrees	David: No, actually she's busy. No I'd go to Miss....what's her name....  [another female teacher's name omitted]?doesn't want to be a burden					David: Em...[sighs] it's hard...because erm...you need to earn ma trust.dejected dubious hard to trust secure trust	rationale participant asks the other to confirm	Steven: Who?
confirms	David:  [female teacher's name omitted]...pastoral care?council teacher
other participant asks to confirm	Sam:  [iterates the say female teacher's name as above] confirms	David: Aye... I'd go to her.trust council teacher invites other participant to contribute	Marianne: What about you Sam...

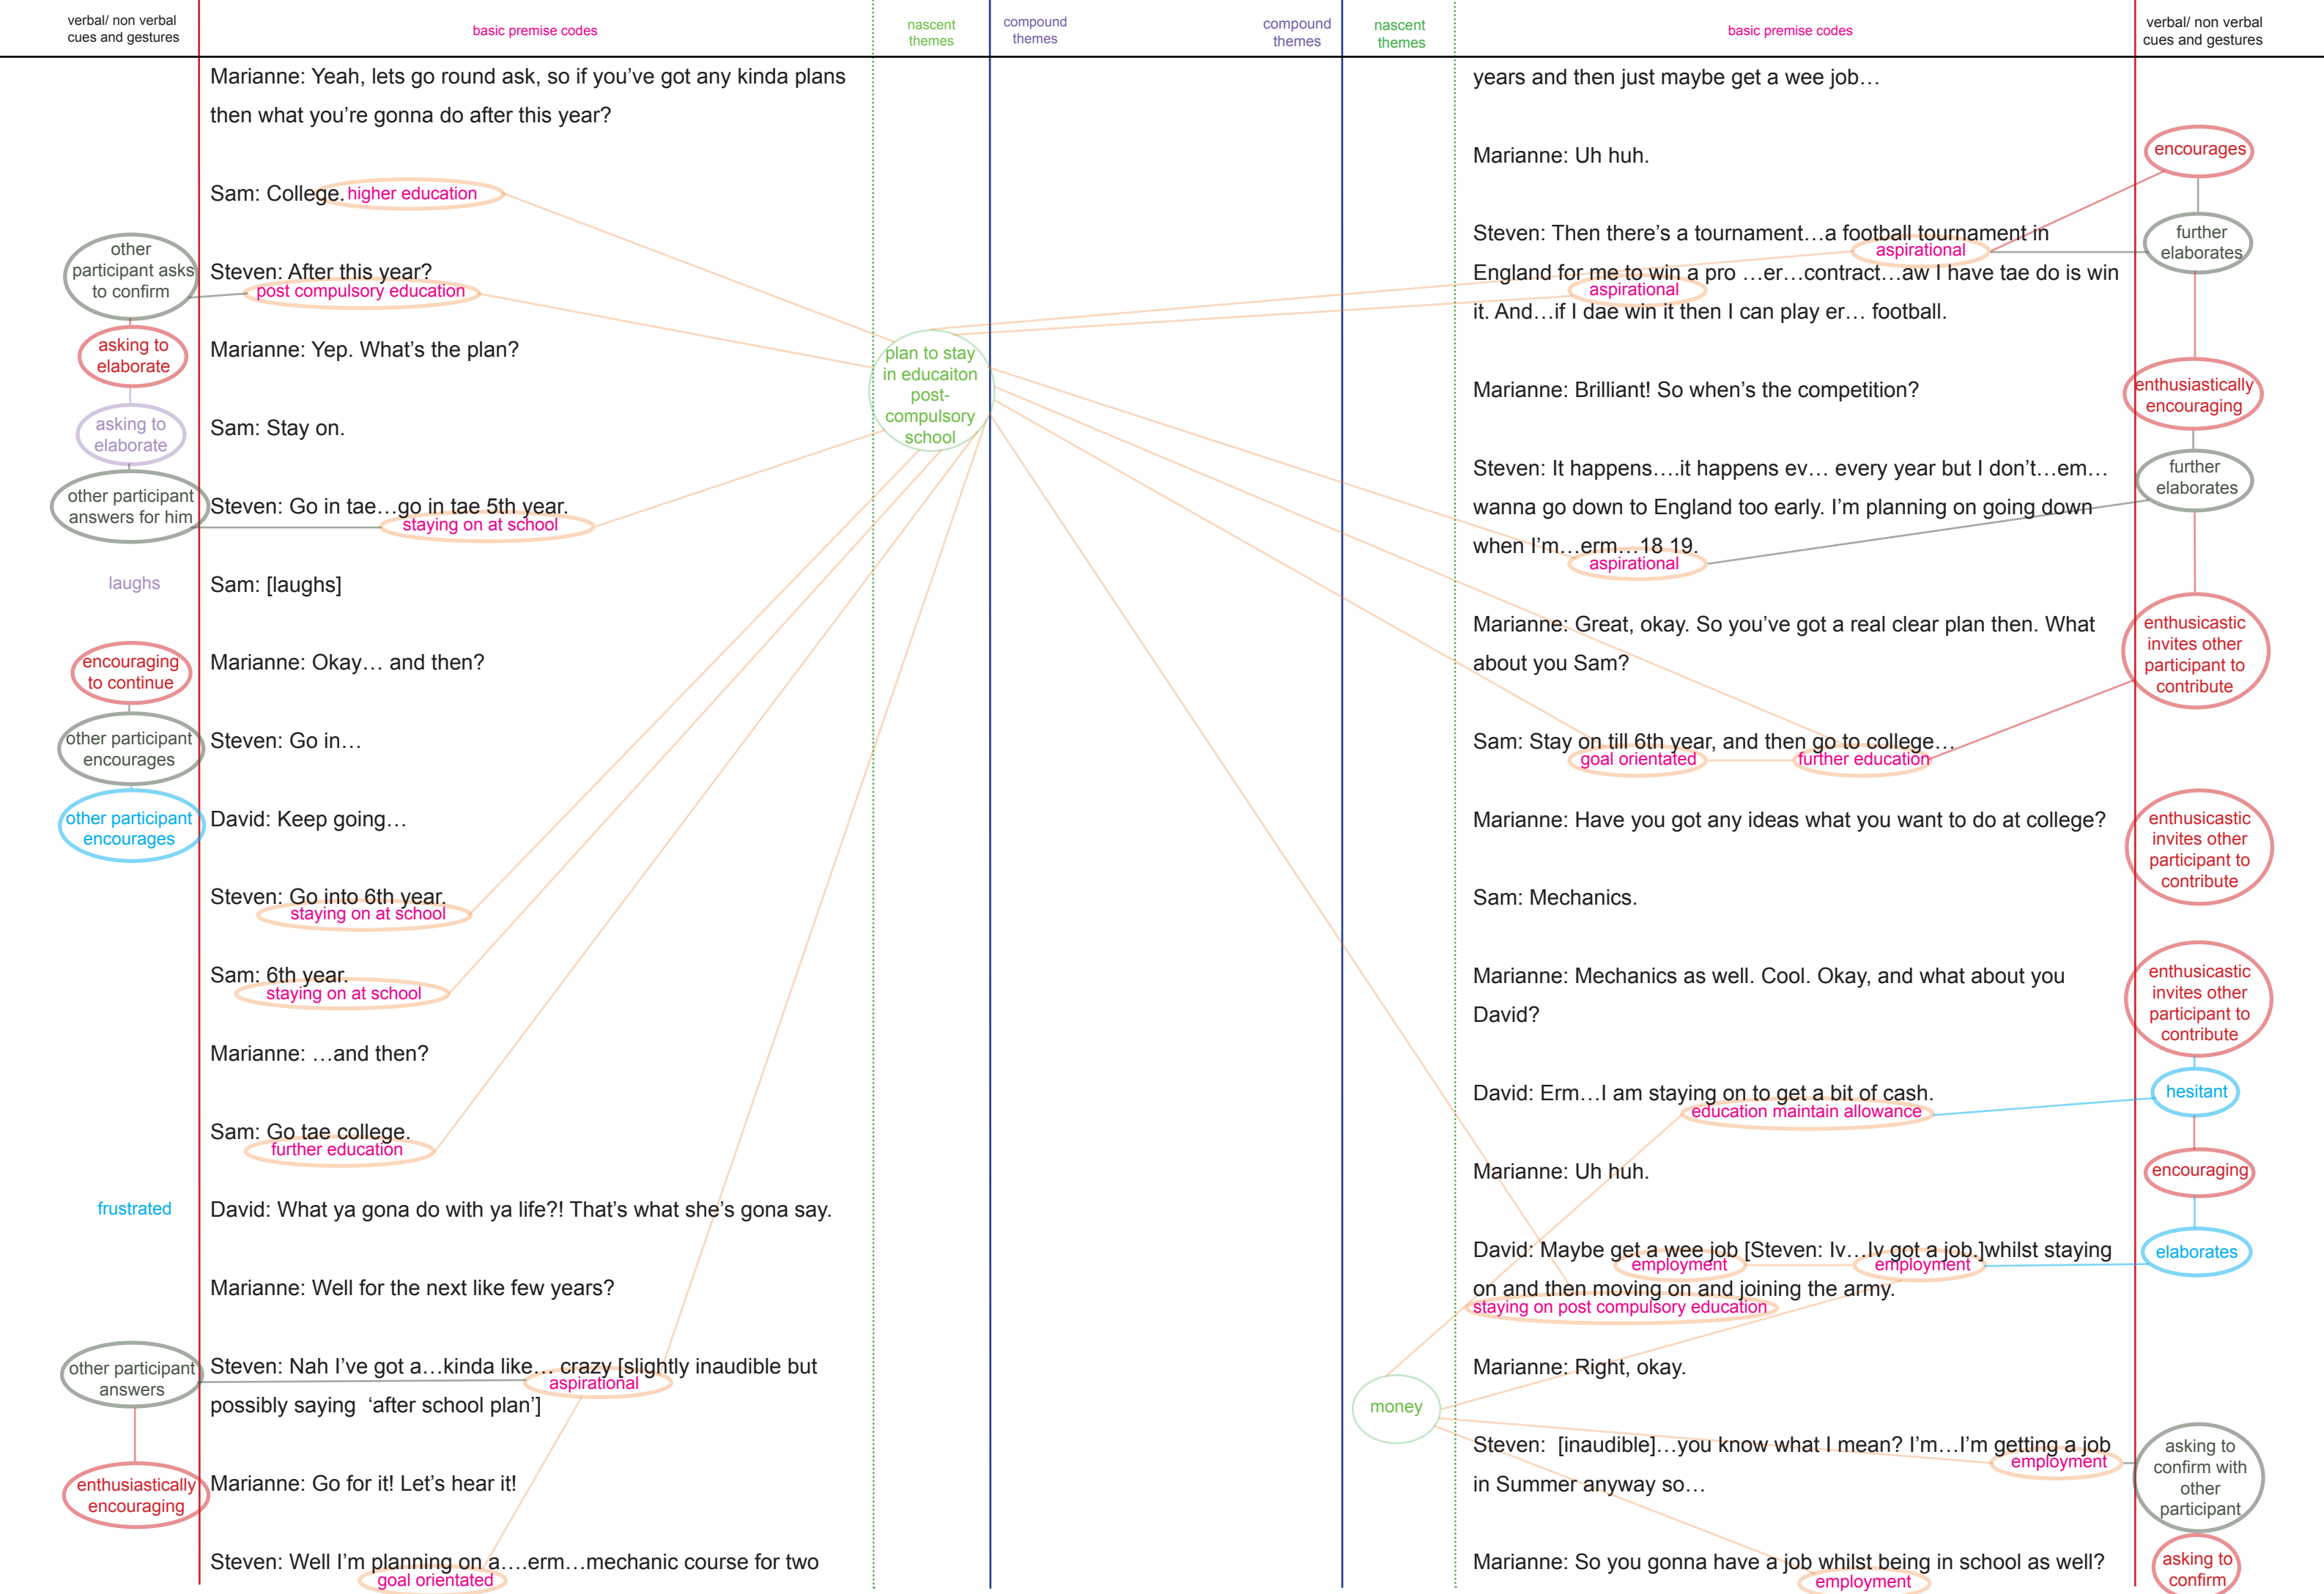

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
asking to confirm interrupts to confirm participant interrupts to make a joke asking to confirm laughing at his joke asking to confirm interrupts to repeat the quesiton confirms other participant answers other participant answers encourages hesitant asking for further elaboration sensing despondence introduces new topic dejected response asks to repeat the question confirms laughs	Marianne: Okay, so it's a case for you then... David: I really don't trust anyone. I really like... Sam: He does'nae trust his self... Marianne: So for you it's having... Sam: [laughs] Marianne: How would someone then gain your trust in terms of the teachers...is it them... David: How they'm gain ma trust? Marianne: Yeah. Steven: Help. David: I don't know actually...I never figured it out. Marianne: Its quite a difficult question. David: Just... they just need to. Marianne: Just be there?... [long pause] Okay, cool. So the next section I want to talk to you guys about is the XL Club. {18:38} Sam: Och... Steven: Is the what? Marianne: The XL Club. David: [laughs] Steven: XL... aright anyway.... [inaudible]	cautious of and to trust	cautious and cynical	dismepowerment has led to a sense of dejection	Marianne: So why did you guys...why did you choose... David: We did'nae choose it! - were not apart of the decision making process disempowered - defensive out of embarrassment (?) Marianne: Okay... David: We got picked.- were not apart of the decision making process Marianne: Okay, so can you tell me how that all came about then. David: Your pastoral care teacher puts ya in it and you go for a wee interview type thing... an arbitrary process (?) Marianne: Uh huh. David: ...and then she'll pick who goes so... Sam: I did'nae get in at first... somebody got kicked out then I went in it... David: We... dinnae actually know what the... what it was and then she told us what it was and all that so... I really dinnae really care. Its gets me out of school anyway so... Marianne: Right. So... David: That's why I'm the only one... that's why I'm staying... that's why I stay. Marianne: So do you guys want to be there? {19:23} Sam: Hmmm... David: Half the time no... Marianne: No?	defensive explains asking for elaboration elaborates encouraging futher elaborates provides personal anecdote provides personal anecdote defensive hesitant asking to confirm

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
gestures dejection asking for further elaboration provides example asks to confirm and invites other participant to contribute asks to repeat question rephrases the question agrees asking for elaboration difficult to articulate asking to confirm confirms encourages and invites other participant to contribute provides personal reflection asking for elaboration gives example	David: [sighs] Marianne: Yeah? Do you feel maybe some of the activities has given you sort of more confidence? Sam: Teamwork. stock answer (?) Marianne: Teamwork? What do you think David? David: What? Marianne: Do you think the XL Club's done anything positive for you? David: Aye, I guess so. ambivalence Marianne: Like what? David: Don't know what.... I just feel different... a wee bit. ambivalence changed Marianne: In a good way? David: In a good way. enriched Marianne: Cool, okay. What about you Steven? {23:00} Steven: To be honest... I don't really think its changed... changed me. I still got... I still lack in confidence sometimes. unrates insecure Marianne: Uh huh. Do you think maybe its any of the projects... do you find any of the projects interesting? Steven: One. classroom work Marianne: Which one? Steven: Reach for the Stars, when's that? When we had to go to the classroom work	general feeling of ambivalence about what they have gotten out of being in this class	enchant-ment gained through empowerment which is catalytic of harnessing agency		disenchanted when having to harness agency - insecurity enchanted through harnessing agency	 [Glasgow place name omitted] library... Sam: Sectarianism. class project Steven: ...aye that one. Marianne: That was good yeah? David: I dinnae really like that. apprehensive or insecure (?) Marianne: With that one I heard you, did you not... did you go to a primary school and do some workshops with young people...like with kids in a primary school? What project what that? Sam: That was sectarianism project. class project Marianne: Right, was that good? Did you enjoy that? David: I dinnae go. Marianne: Did you not? David: I went the first time but I dinnae go the full... Steven: He was aff. David: No I was in. Steven: Oh aye, the first time was a wee practice one tae....tae check out what was happening. The second wan was when the kids came... in a mentoring role David: I just dinnae want tae do it... aye and [male pupil name omitted] dinnae go also... apprehensive (?) Steven:...great day that was. enchanted Marianne: [directed at Steven] Yeah?	other participant interrupts agrees asking to confirm other participant offers reflection asking to confirm so to elaborate echoes answer echoes previous question other participant answers asks to confirm explains other participant explains disagrees/defensive elaborates rationale personal reflection asking to confirm

- enthusiastic
- repeats question
- provides prompts as examples

{30.38}

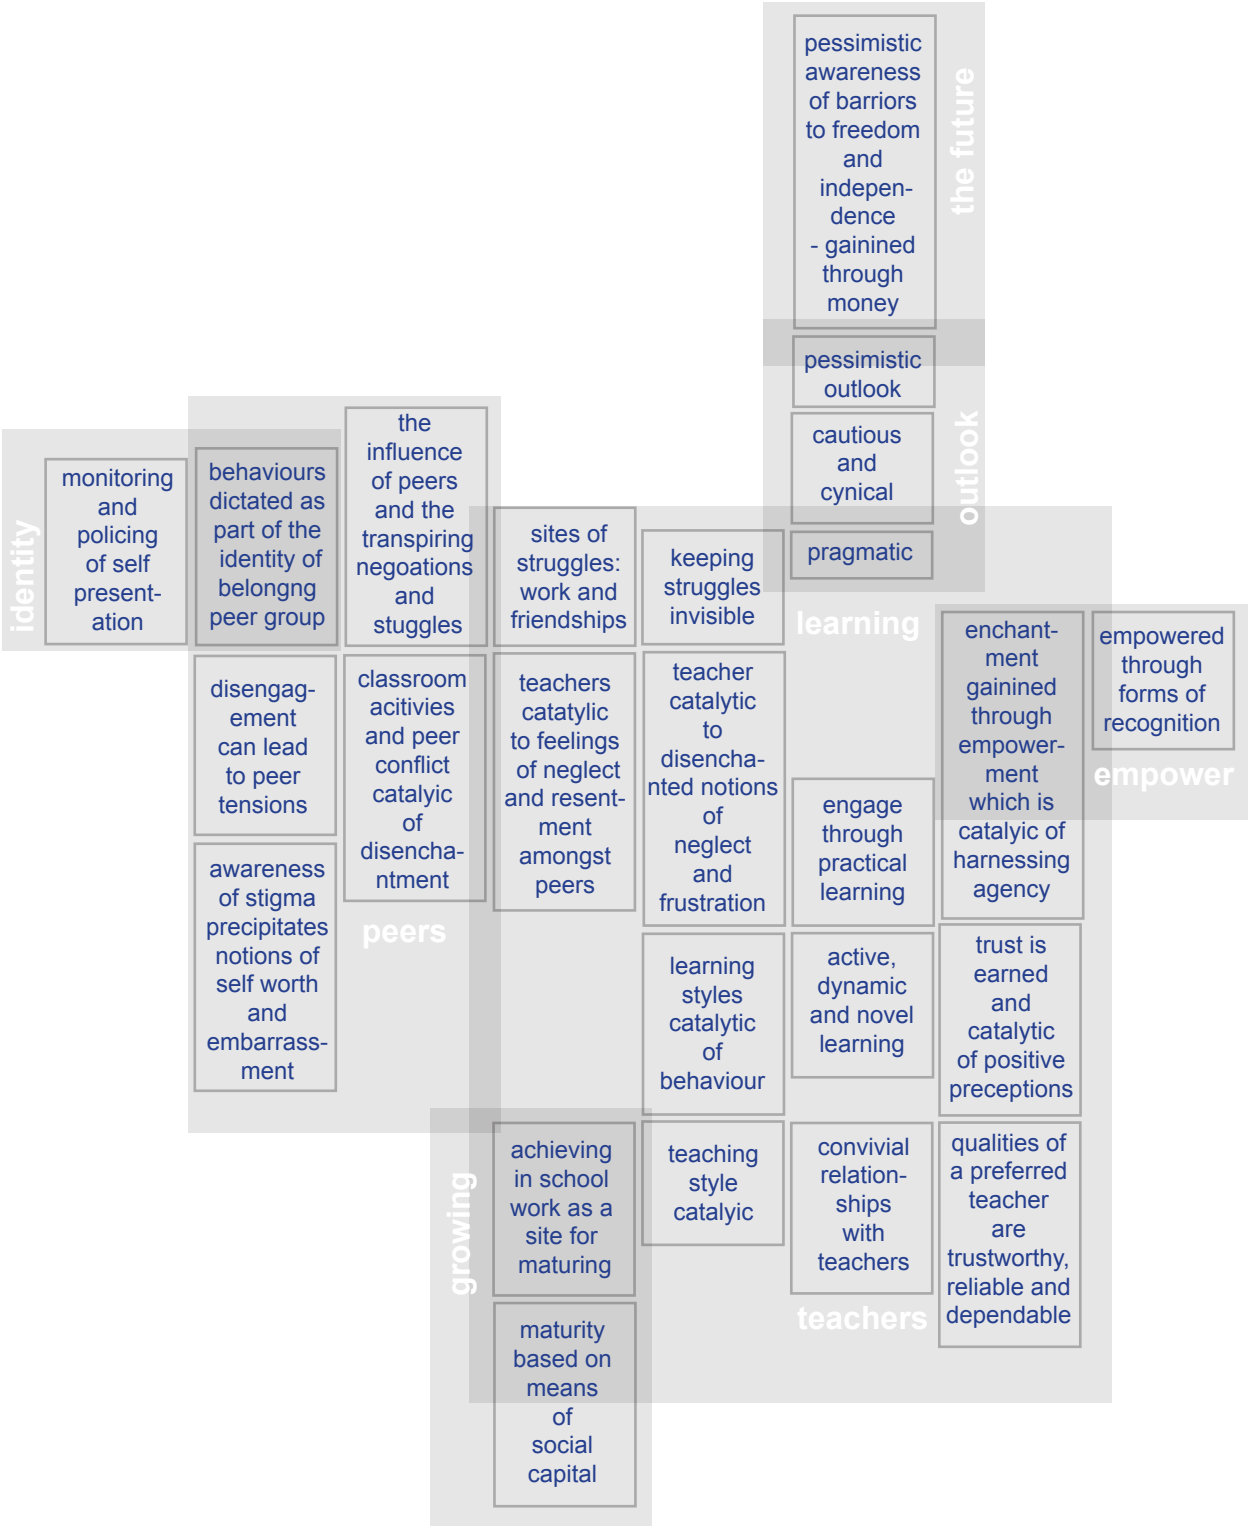

pragmatic

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
personal reflection	Steven: Dreams. aspirational					you only get like 4 right. Cause he's very smart. comparing him self to other peers asking to confirm	Marianne: Dreams?					Steven: Yeah...like there's a whole group of smart people...then there's me... so dumb. self-deprecating	agrees and further elaborates
expands with rationale	Steven: I mean I always have dreams about becoming an actual f...footballer one day... and that kinda gets me excited but it juts kinda hold...holding me back at the same time at looking at something else... aspirations enchanted cautious/ skeptical restricting	cautious of aspirations				Sam: There's some people that dae use calculators and you get wan person that does'nae use a calculator and they get all the questions right. self-deprecating	further elaborates encouraging and invites other participant to contribute	Marianne: Right, okay. What about you Sam? What motivates you?					David: People use calculators for Maths and they dinnae get it...no one passed. failure	builds on above point personal reflection	David: I kinda have weird dreams...		pessimistic outlook			Marianne: Right. So can guys describe a time or times when you feel a sense of achievement, like when you feel proud? And it doesn't have to be in school, it can be anything in your lives.	introduces new topic asking to confirm	Sam: Physics. school subject					David: Eh... when I get promotion... in ma army. acknowledged	hesitant continues	Marianne: Physics?					Marianne: So is this cadets?	asking to confirm continues	David: Like after Iv been watching American Psycho...					David: Yes.	confirms agrees	Marianne: So are you gonna keep doing Physics in 5th and 6th year? Do you enjoy it?					Steven: What's the... eh question again?	asks what the quesiton is other participant asks a quesiton	Sam: Uh huh. staying on at school					Marianne: So can you give me an example...	interrupts to reply other participant answers	Steven: Why? Hard is it no? challenging					David: Of when you feel good?	iterates question with example other participant answers	David: It's the hardest class in school... most challenging					Marianne: ...when you feel a sense of achievement or when you feel proud of yourself. And it doesn't have to be in school, it can be out of school, just like David said he gets a promotion at cadets... so[directed to David] what happens then...do you have to do certain tests to get that or how does that happen?	asks other participant to further elaborate
	Steven: [directed at Sam] Simple...easy?				empowered through recognition
	Marianne: Do you find it quite easy?				empowered when acknowledged
	Sam: Sometimes.					David: Just get higher... aye pretty much, ya just need to work towards it. Takes ya about... years. Took me 3 years. acknowledged recognition for working hard recognition of investing for a long period of time - showing deadication - perseverance	elaborates
echos previous point	David: It's the hardest class in school. most challenging					Marianne: Is it like a reward...or more responsibility?	asks to confirm asks to confirm	Marianne: Is it?
elaborates	David: Like people are so smart...like out of so many questions...

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
confirms	David: Responsibly. - displaying dedication recognition					Sam: [laughing]	laughing encourages and invites other participant to answer	Marianne: Cool, okay. What about you Sam?					Steven: Like... excited. I mean its actual... its actually a pure thrill. It's the trill and adrenaline...and when you do punch him you just feel proud. - pride - empowered	rationale encourages and invites other participant to answer	Sam: When you pass your tests and exams and that... achieve in school assessments					Marianne: Are there quite a lot of fights that happen at this school?	asking to expand
	Marianne: Yeah? Cool and what about you Steven?					Steven: No.	confirms
	Steven: Cannie think of anything...					David: No...that would be Strawberry mansion in America...	tangent
	Sam: When ya win awards. achieve in school	feeling proud derived from achiving in school				Steven: Naw...not many fights.	echoes previous answer asks to confirm	Marianne: [directed at Sam] When you win awards yeah? So I suppose like in XL ...					David: Most dangerous school in America.	tangent confirms	Sam: When we won the Reach for the Stars... achieve in the class - sense of accomplishment		empowered through forms of recognition			Sam: In the world basically...naw not in the world.	tangent
	Steven: I have wan...when I eh...when I batter...when I eh battered somebody. fought fought					David: There's over 90 cameras all over the school.	tangent
laughs	Sam: [laughs]					Steven: It's very rare to hear of a fight happening in [school name omitted] -rare occoassions to physcially gain empowerment	continues previous point encouraging	Marianne: Right, okay.					Marianne: Right, okay was this outside of school then?	asking to confirm rationale	Steven: Naw... I mean like when your fighting and the guys down ya just kinda feel like I'm proud of ma'self... physical peer conflicts pride - empowered	empowered through gaining pride and glory sought through phycial means				Steven: Outside of school aye...the last fight I seen was last year... the fight I was in was in the summer holidays...naw wait the fact was...naw it was Christmas... -rare occoassions to physcially gain empowerment	confirms and provides personal anecdote asking to elaborate	Marianne: Was this in front of loads of people...					Sam: Aye he was daeing a wee bit of boxing and he punched a guy [joking].	making a joke
other participant answers	Sam: Aye obviously... he battered through 20 cops ... in front of an audience - performance					David: What's the next question?	becoming board - asking for new topic
answers to the other participant	Steven: Naw I did'nae batter any cops, I just punch [inaudible] ... and won.- an achievement/ glory					Marianne: Well I think we're nearly done, it's actually nearly the end of the period. So is there anything else anyone wants to make a comment about in terms of experiences of school, the XL club or your future?	wrapping up the interview
laughing	Sam: [laughs]						asking for final comments
asking to confirm	Marianne: So you battered someone and that made you feel...like...

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes
wrapping up the interview	Steven: Will we...will we...will we be daeing that again?
asking to confirm	Marianne: Er...re-doing the interview?		empowered through forms of recognition
	Steven: Naw...mean like can we like mere questions?
	Marianne: Well our time's up I'm afraid.
reflecting on taking part in the interview itself	Steven: That's a shame...I was ...I was actually... I was actually enjoying that.	enchanted by the opportunity to take part in this interview - a platform giving him voice - participants' opinions activity sought and valued thanking participants	Marianne: Were you? Cool! Well I 'll be hopefully staying on and doing another project so aye maybe we'll have another chance to do another interview. That was really good guys...thank you very much.
	End

Collated Distilled Themes:

Dan

Mat

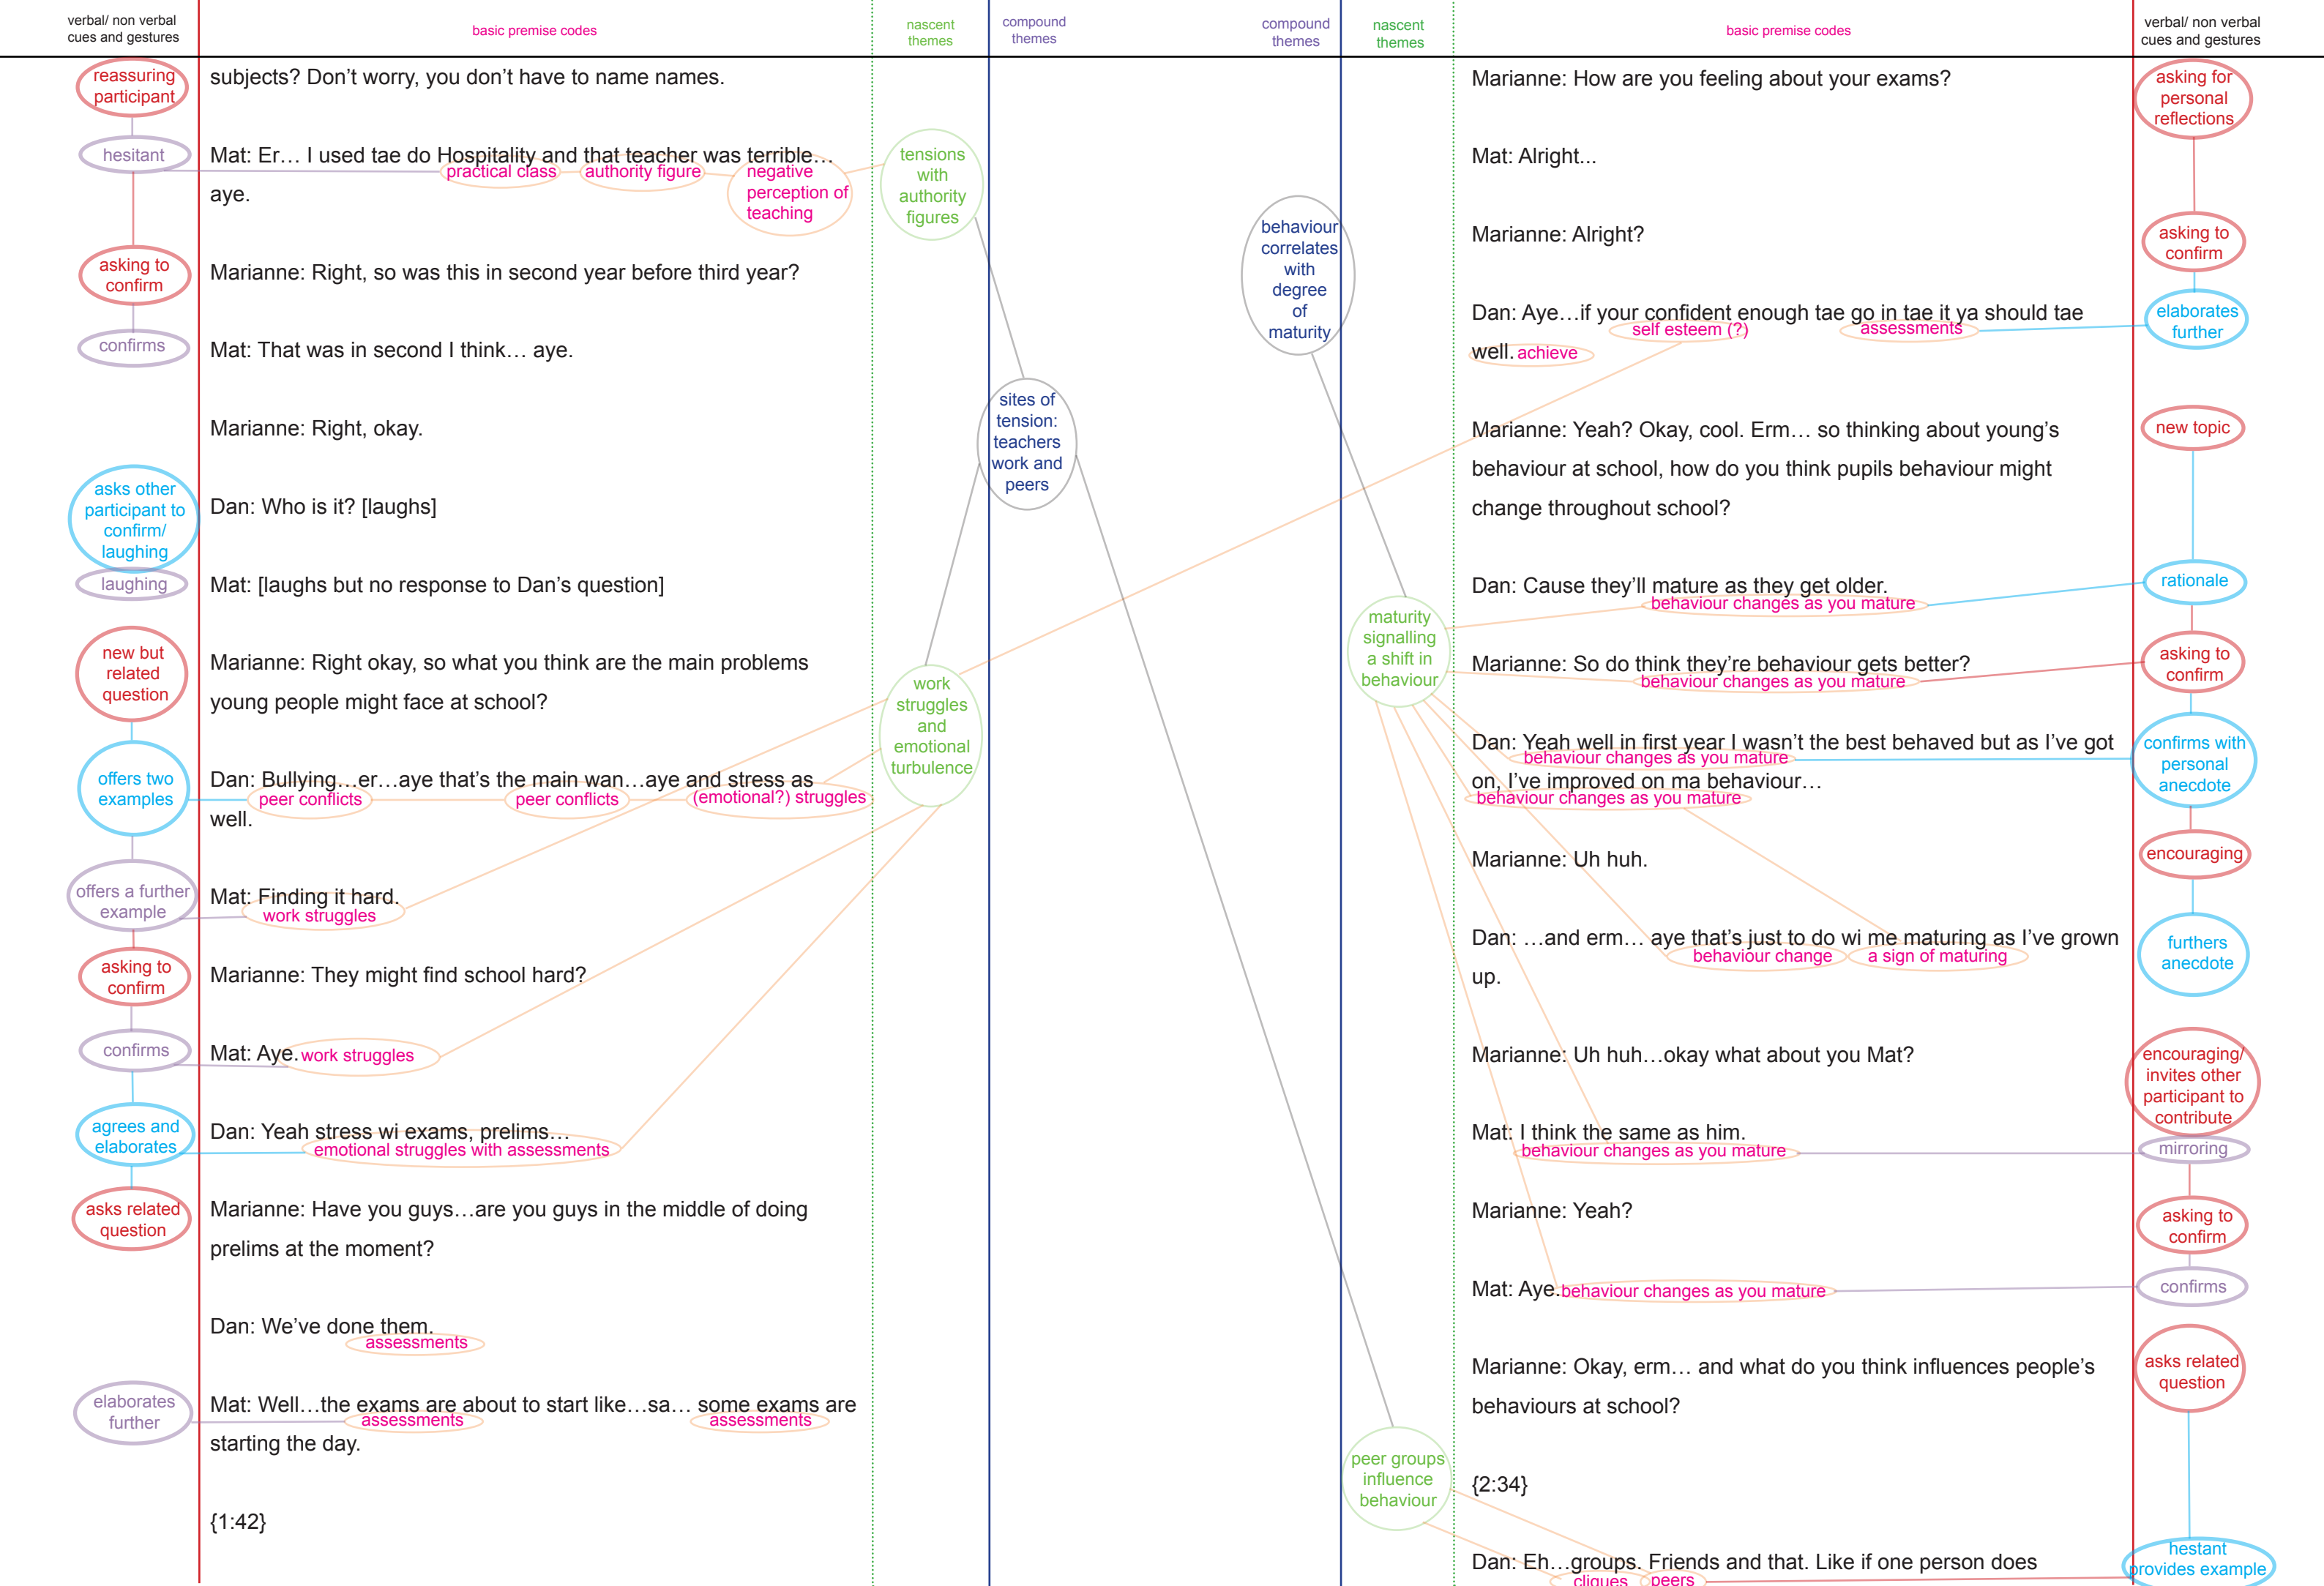

Marianne

verbal & nonverbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	distilled themes
	Marianne: So...erm...lets start off then by asking how do you think, in general, most young people feel about going to school?
hesitant	Dan: Well...a lot of people don't really like school...	peers	disenchanted
encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.
rationale	Dan: ...because there's a lot of work and they're just lazy...	school work	disaffected
encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.
	Dan: ...but I... I enjoy school...	enchanted
asking to confirm	Marianne: Yeah?
confirms and elaborates	Dan: I like gon tae school and... building myself a good future.	enchanted	goal orientated/ responsible for own future (?)
asking to confirm	Marianne: Yeah?
confirms	Dan: Aye.
asking to confirm	Marianne: So you feel quite confident about school and enjoying it in terms of getting qualifications?
confirms	Dan: Yeah. It'll help me in the future.	goal orientated asking related topic	Marianne: Is there anything about school you don't enjoy?
	Dan: Well some classes but I have to put up with it so...
inviting other participant to contribute	Marianne: Okay, what about you Mat?
	Mat: I like school tae but just some teachers...	enchanted	authority figures encouraging	Marianne: Yeah?
	Mat:... they're monnie and... [pause]	authority figures	aggravating asking for example	Marianne: Right okay, any particular teachers or any particular

enchanted endeavours for the future aspirational

tensions with authority figures

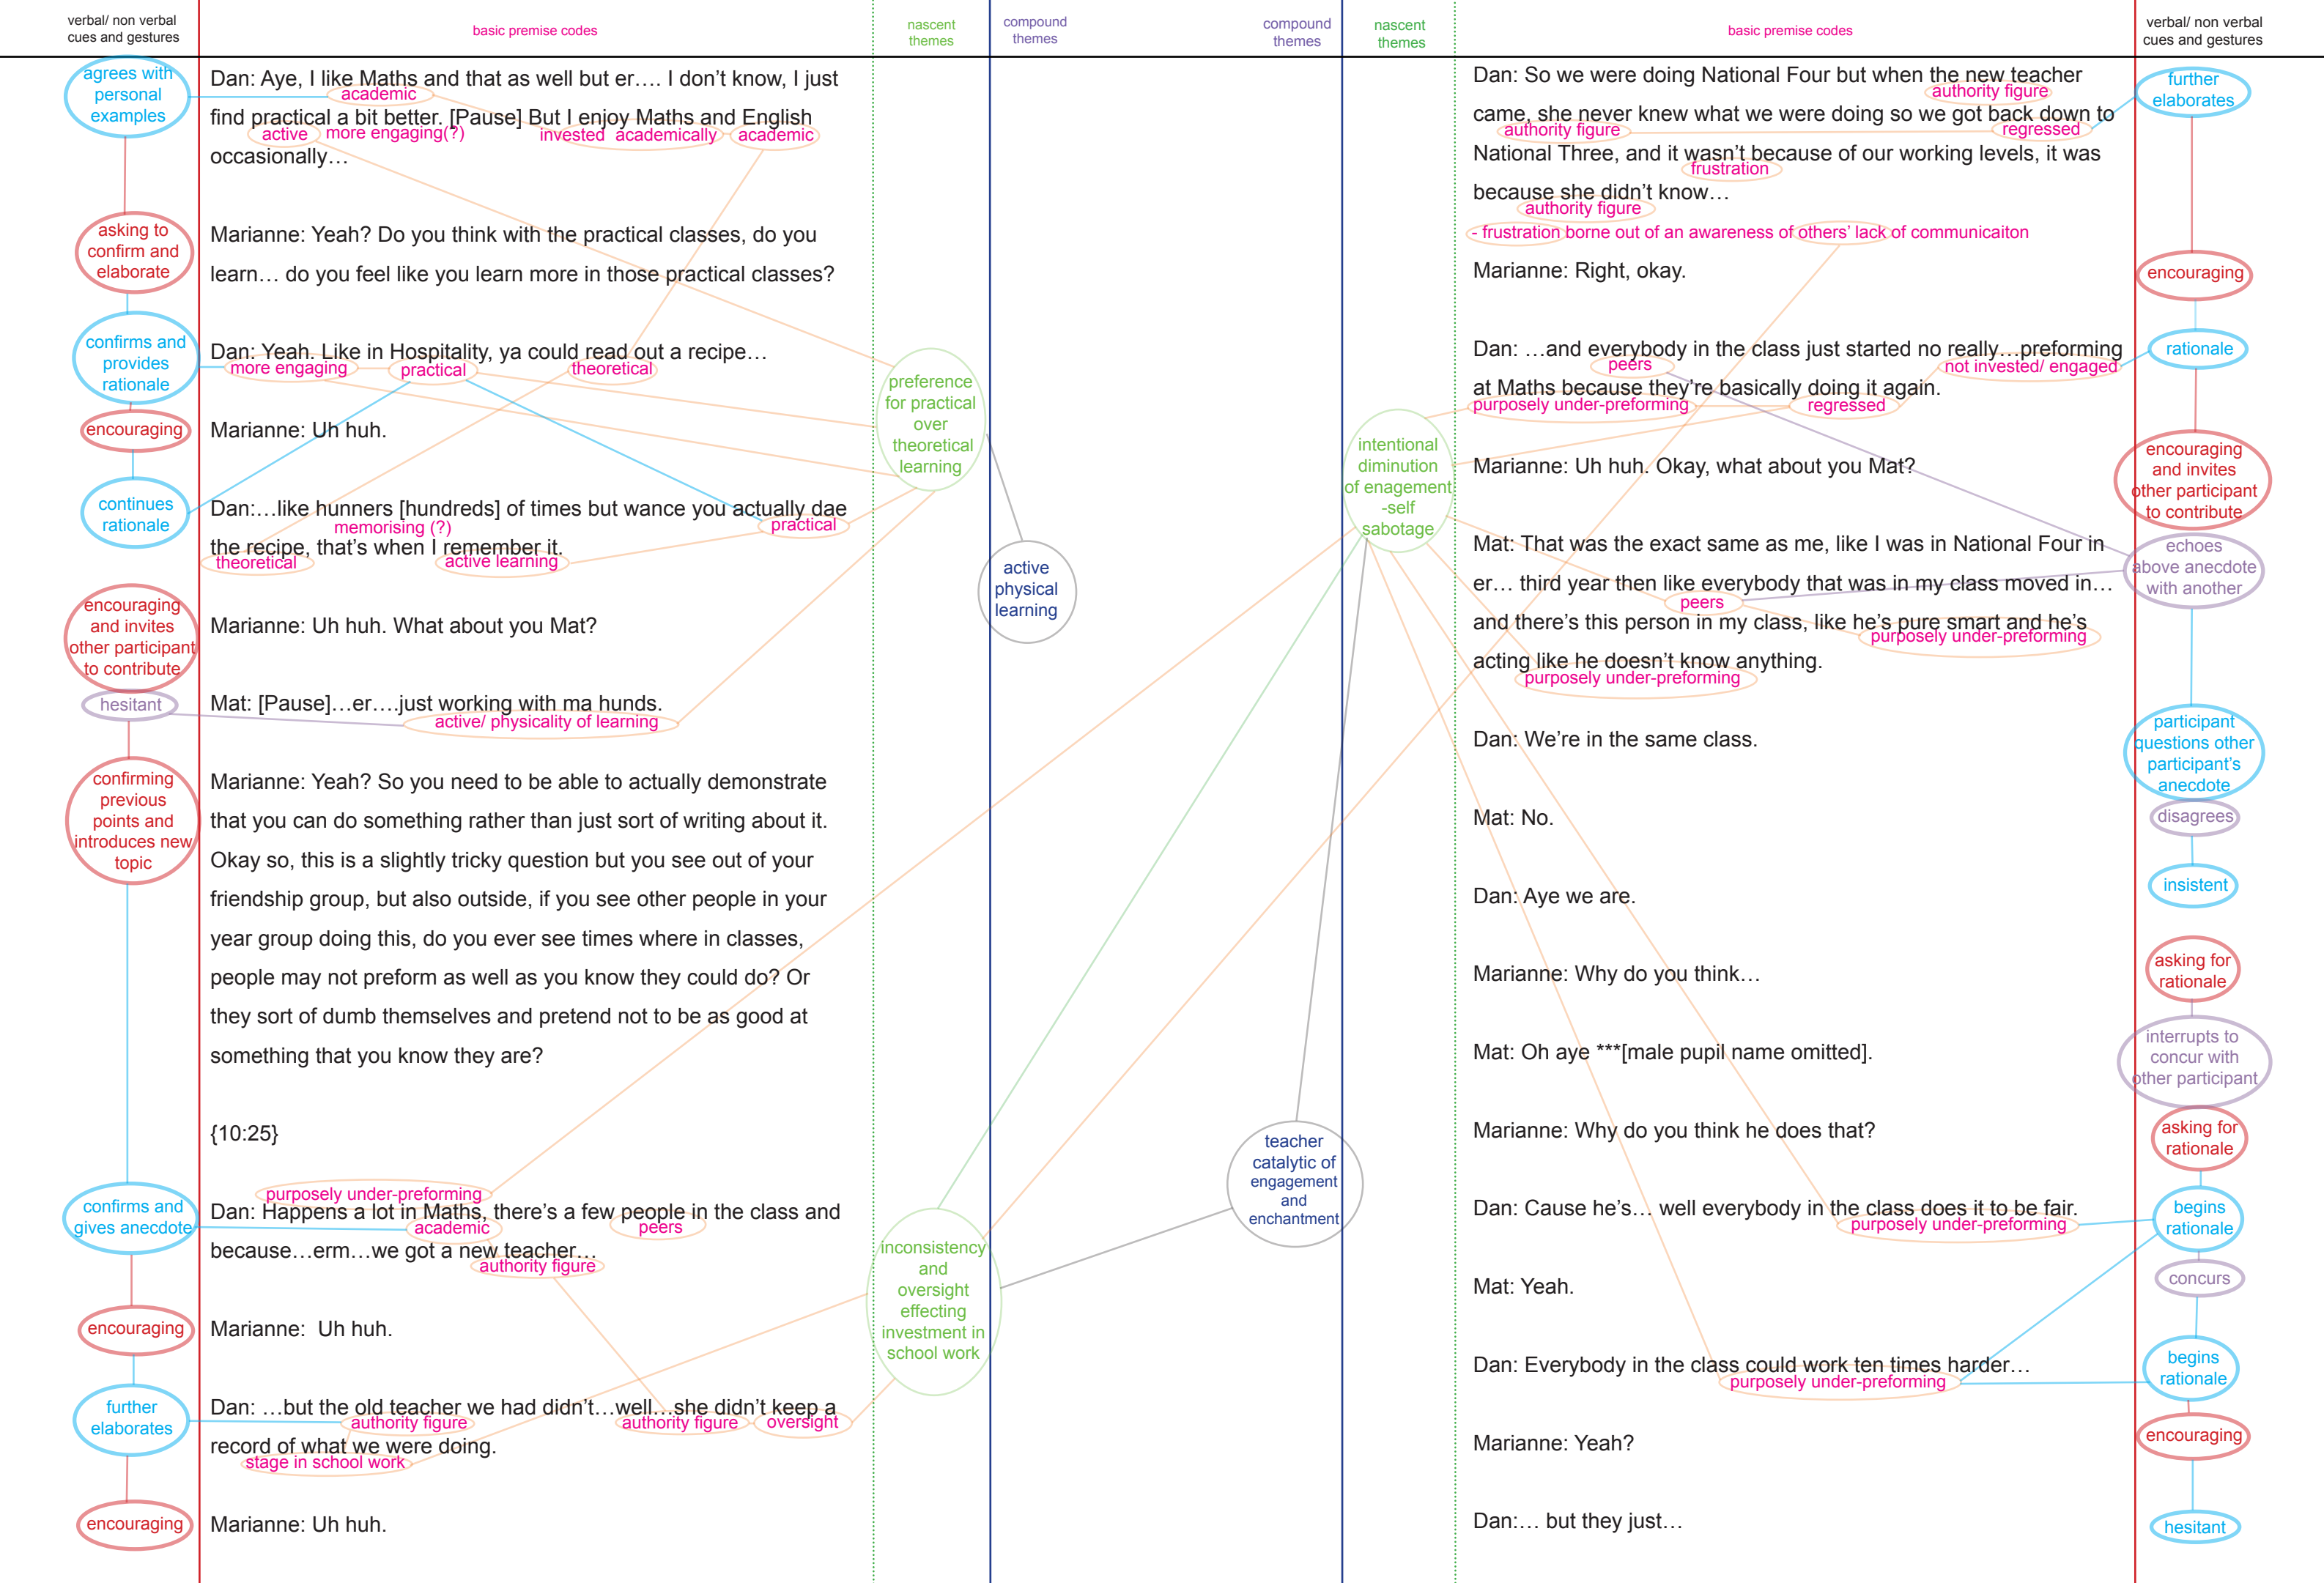

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	something that they find funny, they'll just do it as well. recruiting(?) peers — peers — mirror behaviour					Dan: [laughing] Aye whit was it she told you tae delete aff your phone?	participant asking other participant asking to confirm	Marianne: Uh huh. So you were saying like when you were younger, you misbehaved a bit more...					[Both laughing]	both laughing confirms	Dan: Yeah. mirroring behaviour (?)					Mat: Oh ma pal said I had some bad pictures on ma phone but I did'nae [Dan laughing].	personal confession/ other participant laughing asking to confirm and elaborate	Marianne: ...was that because of your friends? Or certain classes?					Marianne: Right, okay.
agrees and elaborates	Dan: Aye well in first year I think it was you wanted ta fit in with everybody and that...er...they just done stupid things...ta fit in. younger/ less mature — mirror behaviour — ingratiating motives peers — behaviour — ingratiating motives	mirror behaviour in-line with peer group - secure group membership				Mat: And I got in tae trouble aff the... then she found out I was kidding on.	elaborates encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.					Marianne: So your pals were winding you up? playful tensions with peers	asks to confirm
	Mat: He [Dan] got me into trouble a lot. ingratiating motives (?)					Mat: Aye...that's what got me in tae trouble too. [Dan laughing] So all ma pals got me in tae trouble. playful tensions with peers — reprimanded playful tensions with peers — reprimanded/ sacrificial	rationale/ other participant still laughing asking to elaborate	Marianne: Why?					Marianne: Your laughing about it, so was just a bit of a laugh then aye?	asks to confirm laughing	Dan: [laughing] Oh aye why?!					Mat: Aye.	confirms hesitant whilst laughing	Mat: In Ma...in Maths like er... ya just tae talk and erm I just got in tae trouble and he never got in tae trouble. ingratiating motives (?) reprimanded — take the fall for a friend — playful tensions with peers - non malice					Dan: I'm laughing cause it was true [both participants laugh].	rationale/ both participants laughing asking to confirm	Marianne: Right, okay. So you two have been pals then since first year?					Marianne: Right...
confirms	Dan: Aye.					Mat: I need tae [inaudible] [Dan laughs]
both confirm	Mat: Aye.					Marianne: Do you think your friends and your friendship groups, now that you're in forth year, do you think they influence you in a positive way?	asks new question encouraging	Marianne: Aye? Cool.					Mat: Sometimes aye. positive influence of peers	confirms participant ask other participant	Dan: [laughing] Tell her why you got in trouble aff the head teacher. reprimanded — head authority figure	getting in trouble for friendships - a sacrificial gesture				{3:57}
laughing	Mat: [laughing]					Dan: Aye. positive influence of peers	confirms reassuring	Marianne: Don't worry, no one's gonna...
defensive whilst still laughing	Mat: I did'nae get in trouble aff the head teacher. reprimanded — head authority figure

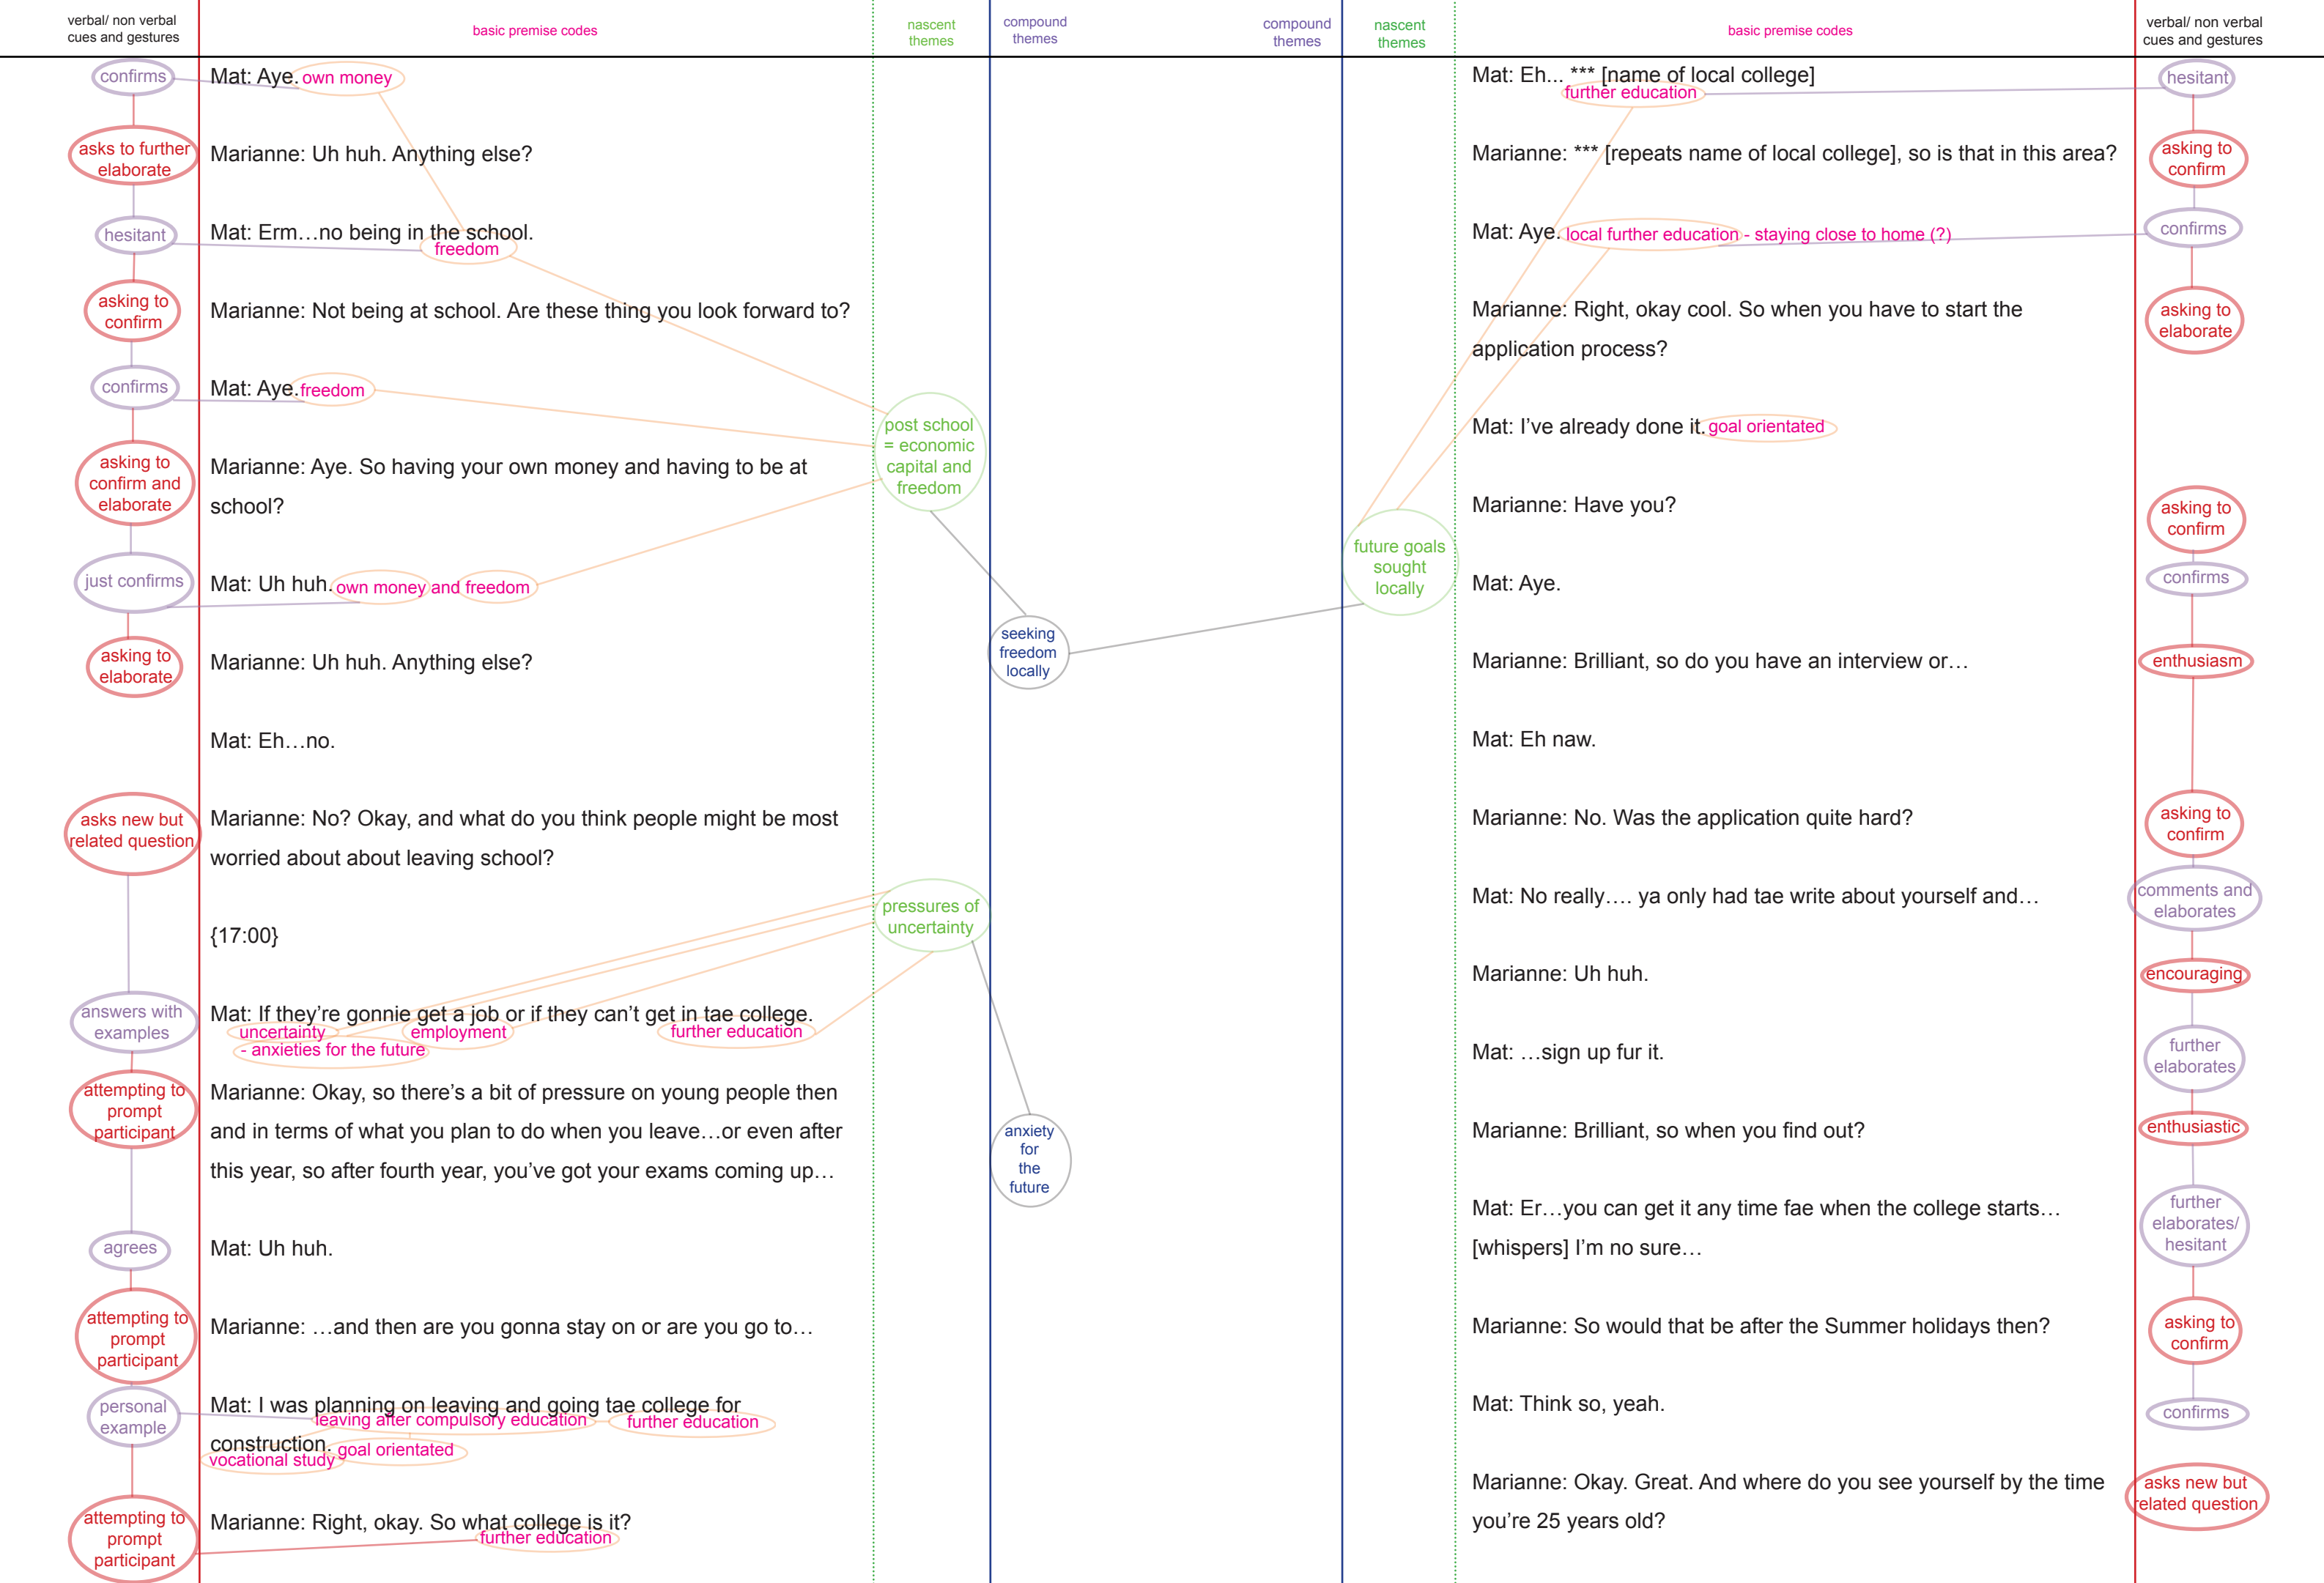

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
laughing at digression	Mat: [laughing]					Dan: ...and the teachers will think they're like trading answers or something... authority figures perceive cheating	further elaborates playing along	Marianne: Erm... I don't think that's your tea Dan [Mat laughing] and I've not really got any [playing along with the joke]					Marianne: Right.
digression	Dan: It's ma coffee...I need some sugar.					Dan:...but I think this year is mere about getting yur heed stuck in tae yur work and aw that, getting yur heed down and trying tae do the best ya can do. 4th year - imminent exams change in prioritises prioritise school work enchanted endeavours goal orientated/ - responsible for own future	further elaborates brings back to question and asks to confirm	Marianne: Erm...so hall cover? That's when you get put down in the hall...					Marianne: Uh huh.	encouraging confirms and elaborates	Mat: Aye...nae body does work or anything. peers disengaged from school work in this site		aspirational		enchanted endeavours	Dan: And I think that's what everybody is doing this year. all peers prioritise school work 4th year - imminent exams	rational asking to confirm	Marianne: Nothing, people don't do any work? Is that when a teacher's off then?					Marianne: Cool, okay. What about you [directed at Mat]?	invites other participant to contribute confirms	Mat: Aye. disengaged from school work in this site - absent teacher					Mat: [long pause]...the same as him. prioritise school work in 4th year	hesitant/ echoes asking to confirm	Marianne: Right okay. Is that the time when people misbehave?					Marianne: Right okay, cool.
confirms	Mat: Aye the most aye. misbehaviour and rebellion disengaged from school work in this site - absent teacher	certain sites catalytic for misbehaviour and rebellion				Mat: [laughs]	laughs
other participant asks participant to confirm	Dan: Is  [female teacher's name omitted] in your class? authority figure					Marianne: So, lets talk about teachers a bit more. So are there any particular teachers that you trust more than others?	introduces new topic confirms	Mat: Aye. authority figure					Dan: Well ma pastoral care... councillor	confirms with personal example attempting to digress again	Dan:...I was gonnae make a joke there but never mind. [Mat laughs]					Marianne: Uh huh.	encouraging
new question relating to previous themes	Marianne: Do you think then, and this goes back to what you were saying about first year and how you would kinda of impress your friends through misbehaving, but do you think now, even in forth year, people still misbehave on purpose?					Dan:...cause she's helped me out with a lot of problems at home and aw that as well... so I trust her a lot. supported adversities outside of school earned trust - trustworthy/ dependable	rational
	{6:19}					Marianne: Yeah? So you would go to her if you had... she would be your first port of call if you had any problems? You'd go straight to her?	asking to confirm and elaborate disagrees and offers rationale	Dan: Eh... naw I think people will misbehave not meaning it and they'll be talking to their pals or something... not purposeful misbehaviour any more distracted	misbehaviour now not about ingratiating with peers				Dan: Yeah I think...in school yeah. earned trust - trustworthy/ dependable teacher within school	confirms
encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.					{7:20}

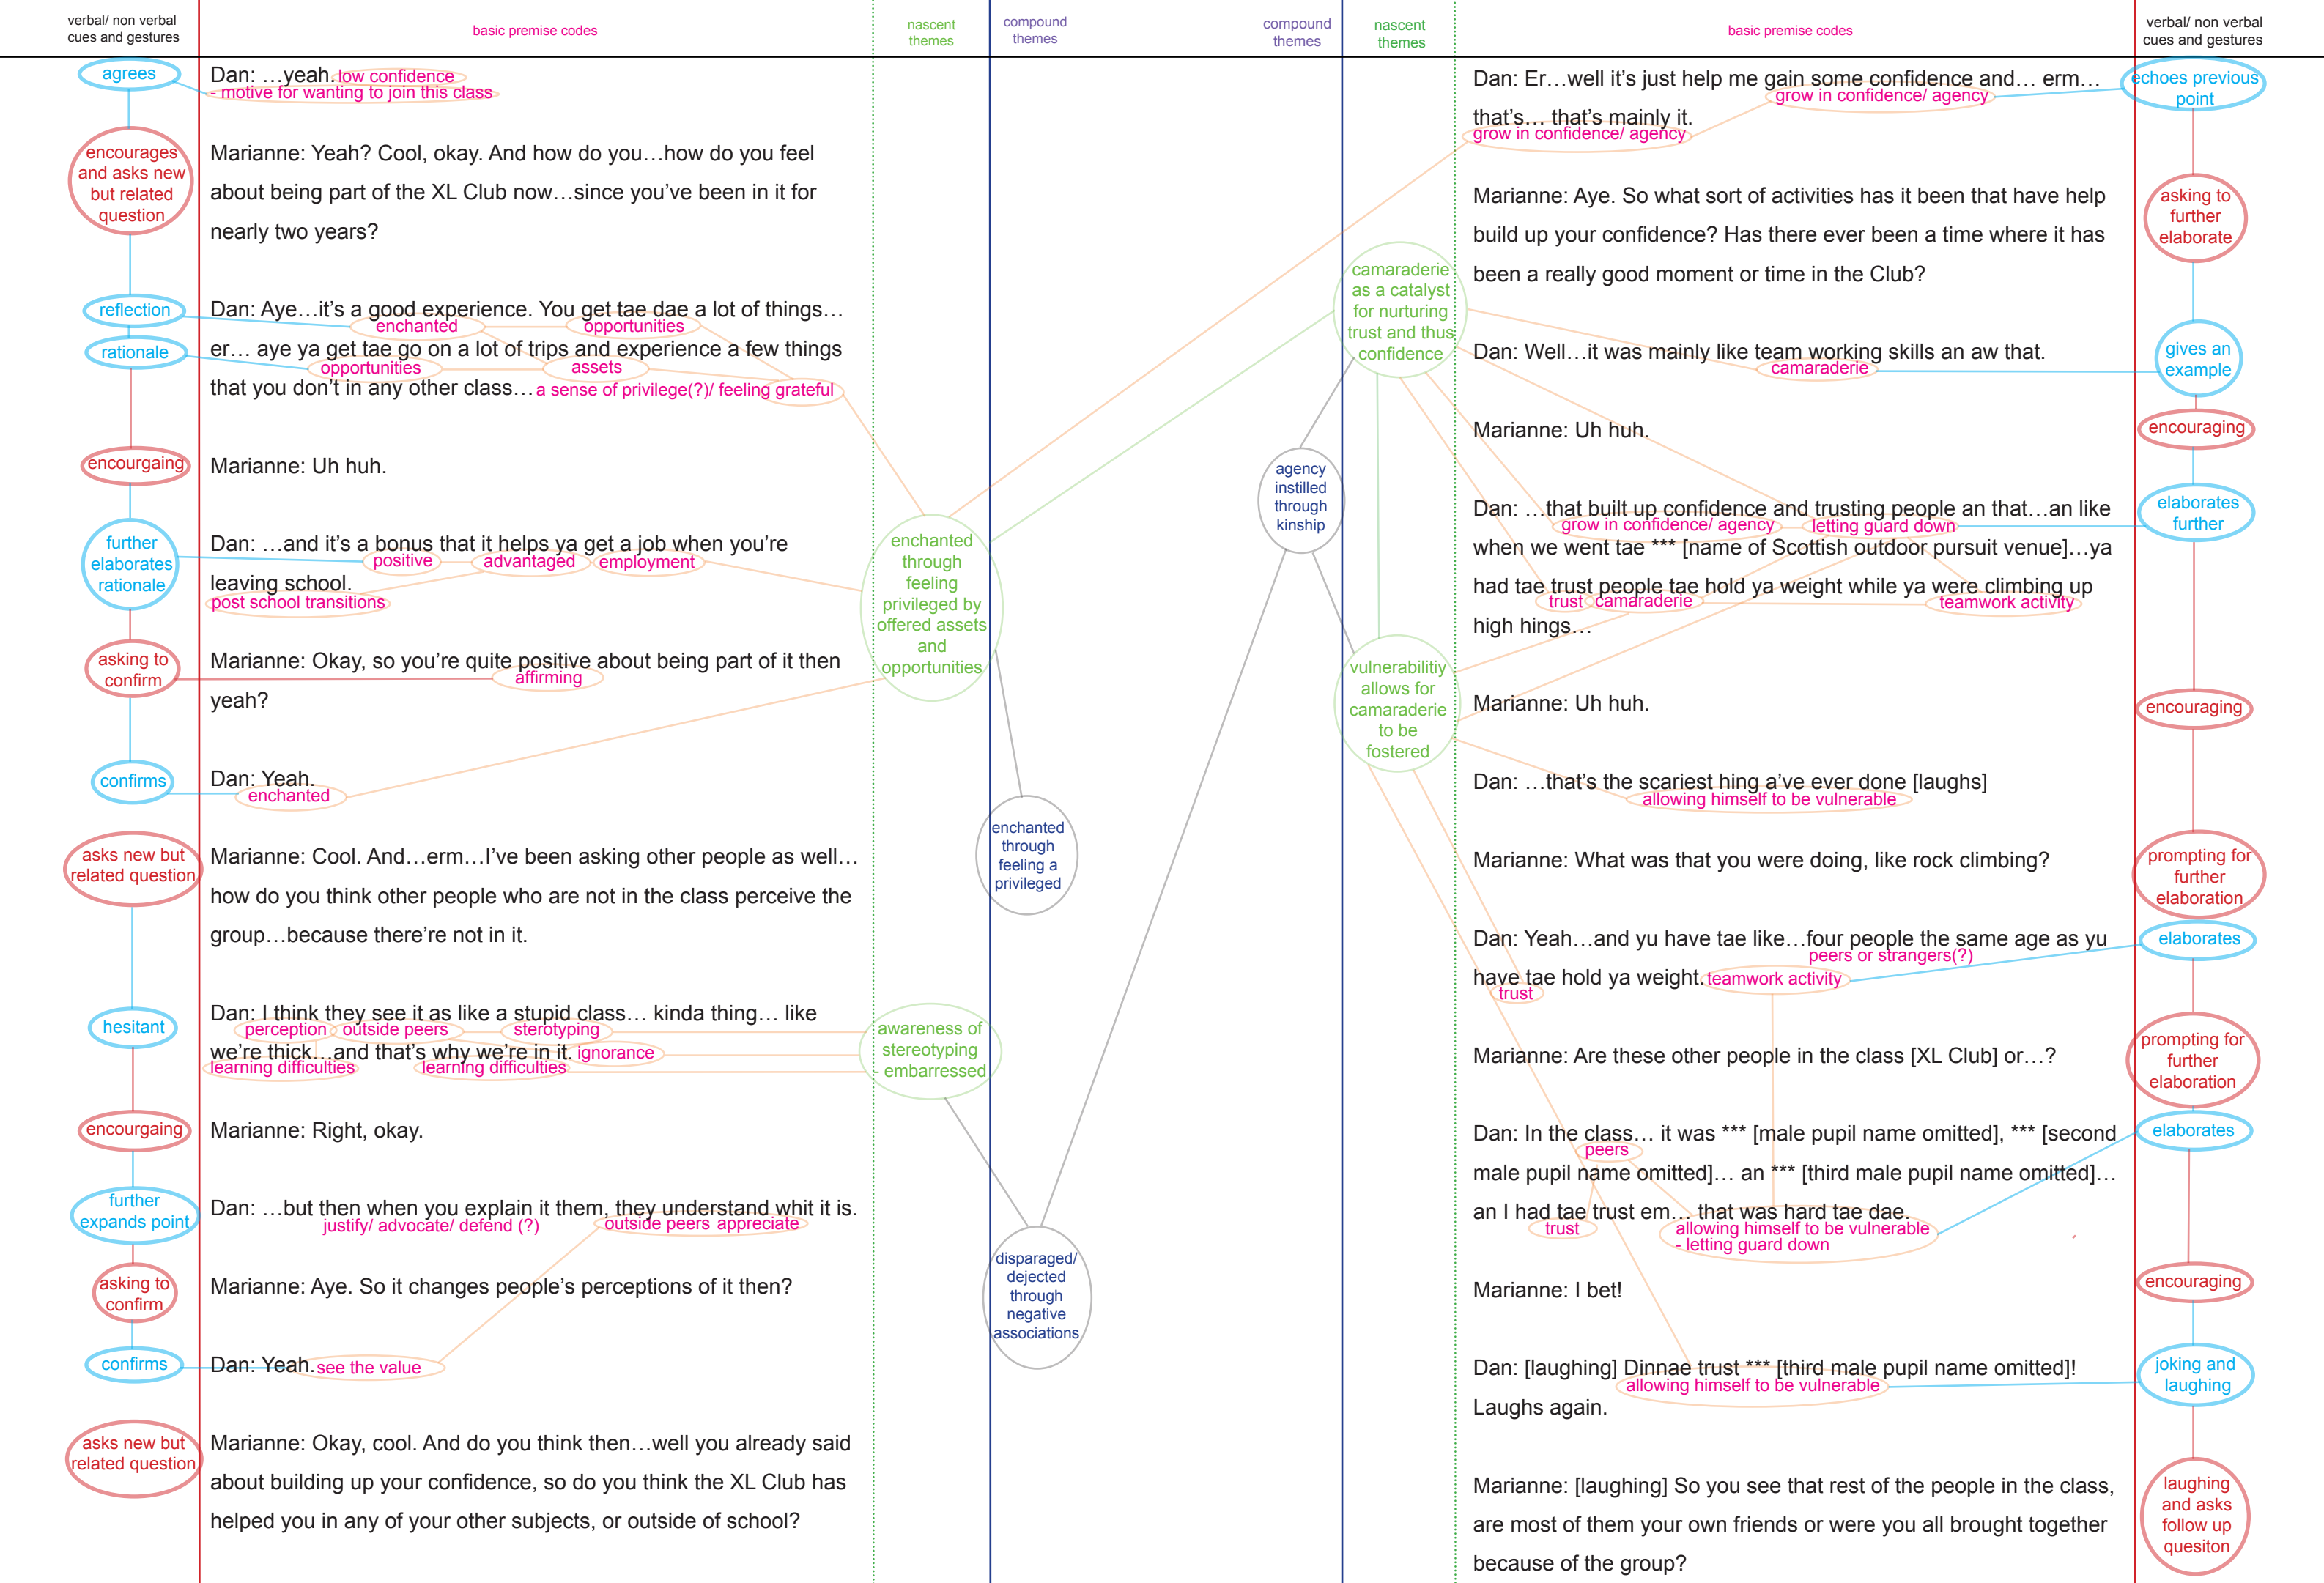

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
further elaborates asking to confirm confirms further elaborates interruption introduces new topic hesitant then provides anecdote encouraging rationale enthusiastic/ ask to elaborate hesitant prompts by asking to confirm confirms asking to confirm confirms and elaborates encourages and introduces new topic	Mat: There's a lot of cerry [carry] on and that. Marianne: Is there? Mat: Aye. misbehaviour Dan: They loose focus cause... disengagement leads to misbehaviour [Interview Interrupted by visitor – Dan has to leave the interview at this point, Mat is happy to continue the interview on his own] {12:53} Marianne: So, can you give me an example a time when you a sense of achievement or when you feel proud of yourself. Mat: Eh...when I was in Cadets like, I got a...an award for recognition shooting... Marianne: Uh huh. Mat: ...and felt a sense of achieve... achievement. through recognition Marianne: Brilliant. Tell me more about Cadets. Mat: Eh...there's nothing really...down plays/ devalues/ self deprecating Marianne: I know that [male pupil form previous interview], he's in Cadets... Mat: Aye. Marianne: Is it sort of like the army? Mat: Aye, it's....aye it's basically go what the army does but for younger. Marianne: Uh huh... cool okay. So the next section I'd like to talk you about is the XL Club. So why did you...or how did you become	disenagement leads to misbehavior sense of achievement through formal recognition empowerment instilled through forms of recognition			enchantment depreciated through ignorant (?) stigmatising disparaged dejected through negative associations	part of the XL Club? {13.38} Mat: Eh...cause I went tae a meeting wi people in a science room... Marianne: Uh huh. Mat:...and I though it sounded good so I went...I asked [female teacher's name omitted] could I dae the interview and I did. So I got in dae it. Marianne: Cool. What was the interview like? Mat: It was just asking questions like why would ya wana go and how ya think it would help ya. Marianne: And who did the interview? Was it [female teacher's name] Mat: Aye  [same female teacher's name omitted] did it. Marianne: Cool, okay. And how you feel in general about being in the group? Mat: I feel good but sometimes it can be bad cause people like say it's for spazes [spastics] and that, like for dumb people. Marianne: Right, okay. So is that people who aren't in the class? Mat: Aye. peers out with the class - ignorance (?) Marianne: Like other people in your year? Mat: Aye. peers out with the class - ignorance (?) Marianne: Aye, so people don't really know... I mean do you think people are aware of what you're actually doing in the class?	hesitant/ explains encouraging further elaborates asking to further elaborate elaborates asking to confirm confirms new but related question personal reflection asking to confirm confirms asking to confirm confirms prompting by asking to confirm

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
confirms	Mat: Naw. ignorance - a lack of appreciation(?)					Marianne: So you guys have become pals being part of the class.	asking to confirm asking to confirm	Marianne: No?					Mat: Aye. acceptance through association	confirms confirms and elaborates	Mat: Naw...you'll try tell them but they just don't listen... ignorance attempt peers devalued/ dejected	ignorant stigmatising				Marianne: Do you think that also be down to the kind of activities you've been doing as well...	asks to elaborates by prompting encouraging	Marianne: Right, okay.					Mat: Aye...so erm...teamwork. teamwork promoting camaraderie	agrees with example further elaborates	Mat: ...they'll still say it's for dumb people. peers persistent stereotyping		disparaged/ dejected through negative associations			Marianne: Uh huh... cool. Okay so, is there anything you would change about the XL Club? Is there anything you would want to do differently?	encouraging asks related question asks new but related question	Marianne: Erm... do you think the XL Club has helped you at all in other subjects?					Mat: [gradually goes into a whisper] Focus mere and like when ya leave school like... cause I heard like in the interviews that was training for post school transisions what it was meant to be fur....so we've no really done anything fur that...so... anxious for the future (?)	personal reflection/ self evaluation
enthusiastically asks to confirm	Mat: [very quick to answer] A lot with ma confidence... agency/ self esteem					Marianne: Right, okay, and do you think it's changed...from what you were doing in third year and what you're doing in forth year... you see a difference?	asks related question
	Marianne: Yeah? That's great.					Mat: There is quite a lot mere tae do wi like...when ya leave school...but like there' no much... theoretical training for post school transitions asking to elaborate	Mat: ...and just talking to people. agency/ self esteem / confidence					Marianne: There's not much project work? practical learning	asking to confirm agrees	Marianne: Uh huh. So you see a difference from when you went in in third year to now even yeah?	enchanted through becoming socially empowered			post school training	Mat: Aye. practical learning	confirms enthusiastic asks for an example	Mat: Aye. growth and change		peer acceptance		active learning provides example	Marianne: That's brilliant. So have you got any examples? So you were saying how you can talk to people more...				preference for practical over theoretical learning encourages	Mat: Like...I never used tae...like see people in that class... lack of confidence around peers
elaborates	Marianne: Uh huh.
encourages	Mat: I never used tae talk to [male XL Club pupil name omitted] and I talk to him like....he hangs aboot down where I sit and I just talk to him... new found confidence to gain social capital/ friends						introduces new topic
	Marianne: Uh huh.						hesitant further elaborates	Mat:... and I go out...for my lunch. socialising in free time					Mat: [pause]...earning money. money	asking to elaborate Marianne: Earning money, so you've got your own... money

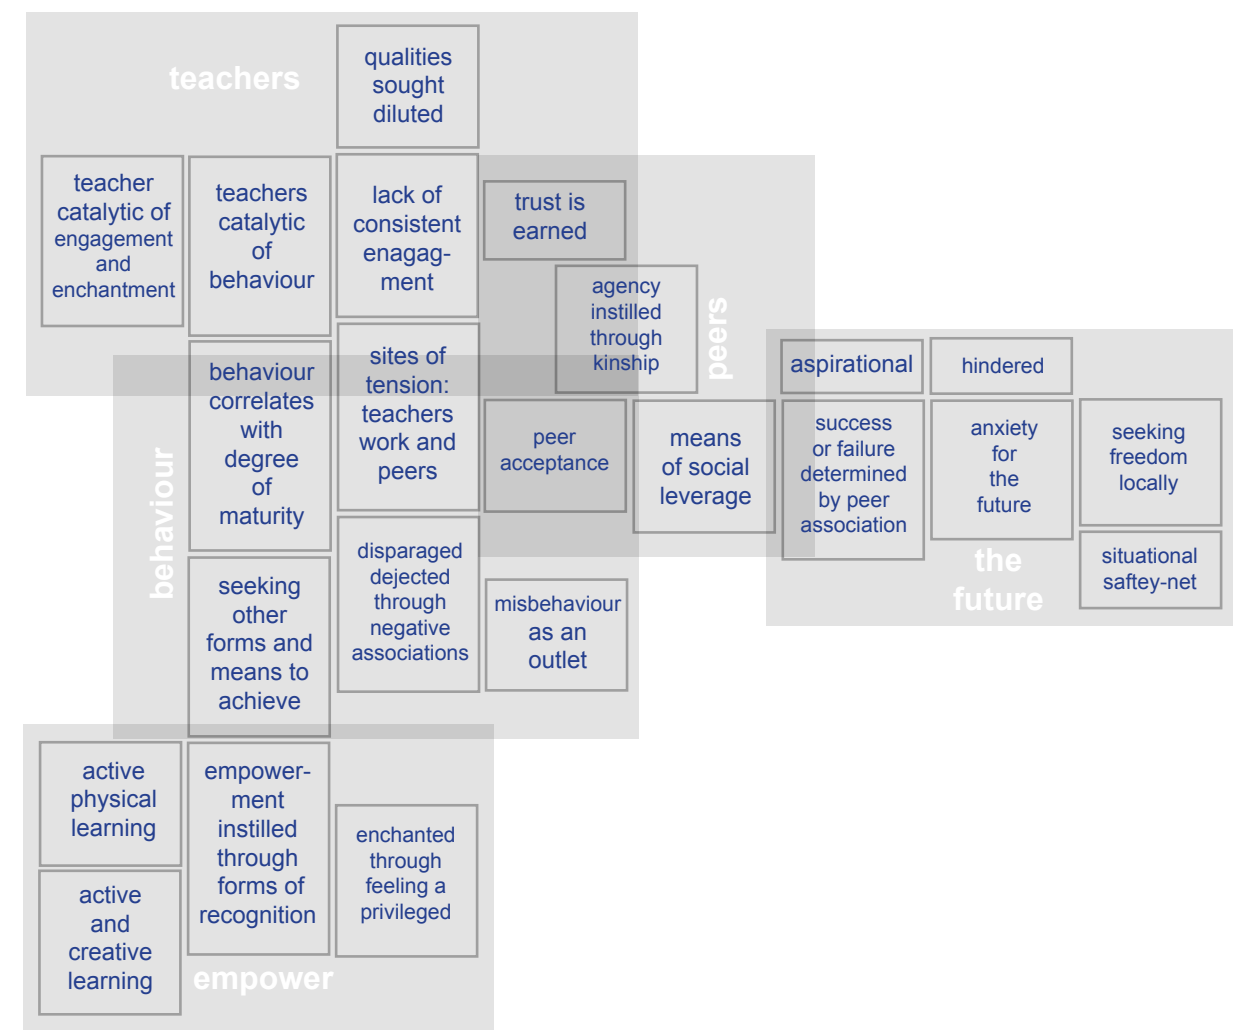

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
hesitant	Mat: [long pause]...er....movin out the hoose an....havin some money. economic capital - signs of freedom (?) independent from parents					Marianne: Uh huh.	encouraging asking to confirm	Marianne: Yeah?					Mat: Cause if yur friends with like...a bad person that keeps daeing the wrang [wrong] things then you might get mere in tae that wi them so... engages in negative behaviour/ activity succumb to peer pressure associate with influence of friends - mirroring behaviours	elaborates with rationale confirms	Mat: [whispers]...that's it.					Marianne: Uh huh. Okay let me just double-check...I think we're actually nearly done. This has been a lot quicker cause obviously it's just been you on your own. Have you got any other comments about your experiences of school you'd want to share?	asks for anything else participant wants to add agrees	Marianne: That's it. Do you think you'll stay in  [the city]? same location/ safty net (?)	physcial location as a safety net			embody peer group identity and associated behaviours - can lead to failure	Mat: No.
prompting participant to elaborate	Mat: Uh huh. same location/ safty net (?)		situational saftey-net			Marianne: No? Okay I think we're done Mat. Thank you very much, that was really interesting.	thanks participant
	Marianne: Yeah. Do you think you'll stay in this area, or do you think you might move out of  [area the school is in]? same location/ safty net (?)					End.
asks new but related question	Mat: I would stay in  [same area as above], aye. If I could. same location/ safety net of familiar surroundings (?)				success or failure cna be determined by peer association	Dan's Interview continued 2/2/15
provides prompts	Marianne: Okay. And this is a slightly tricky question. But what do you think the main kind of influences are on your future ambitions? To give you some examples, it could might be your friends, or maybe your family? Or other things that might influence or motivate you?					5:39
hesitant	Mat: [long pause]...erm...maybe ma...I think ma family. parental influence (?)					Marianne: So Dan, the XL Club...can you explain why or how you became part of the XL Club.
asking to confirm	Marianne: Yeah?					Dan: Er....we had tae dae an interview to join...	hesitant confirms	Mat: Yeah...aye. parental influence (?)					Marianne: Uh huh.	encouraging asking to prompt participant to elaborate	Marianne: And how do you think school or your experiences of school affect or influence the person you become when you leave school?					Dan: ...and we were tae give um a good reason why we should join...and it was about...like confidence in the classes at that time... justify low confidence school work(?) er ma confidence has built up a lot... grown in confidence from being in this class	further elaborates
hesitant	Mat: [pause] Er...no sure.					Marianne: Uh huh.	encouraging encouraging participant with prompts	Marianne: Yeah it is quite a tricky question. So it's thinking about possibly...again is it to do with friendship groups you fall into or maybe the classes or perhaps teachers...I don't know.				self confidence in own ability	Dan:... I work harder now. more engaged - more confidence in classes and towards school work	self evaluation
hesitant again	Mat: Maybe who ya...be friends with... peer influence clique					Marianne: Cool, so was that one of your reasons for coming in...for you wanting to join? low confidence	asking for further elaboration

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
hesitant	Dan: Er...well some'er of us were pals before it and a've made some pals in it so...aye. pre-existing friend groups camaraderie					Dan: Well... I... I hink ya dae your training in  [home city] ... and then ya can pick where ya wana get posted. close to home	further elaborates encouraging introduces new interview topic	Marianne: Uh huh...okay cool. And now just moving on to the final section of the interview...talking about what you plan to do when you leave school. So...erm what do you think young people most look forward to about leaving school?					Marianne: Right, okay. So joining the Navy... where do you see yourself...your ideal self by the time you're 25?	asking new but related question gives example whilst laughing	Dan: Er...leaving school [laughs]... they just don't like school. peers disenchanted					Dan: Eh... no sure like... in a ship [laughs]. will have achieved his aspirations	joking encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.					Marianne: [laughs] Cool, okay. And... this is a slight trickier question but what do you think the main kinda influences are on a young persons future? So when they're at school and their making plans for the future, what do you think are the main kinda things that end up influencing what you end up doing?	introduces new interview topic/ reassures participant with prompts expands with rationale	Dan: A lot of people leave early because they just hink that leaving school's gonnie benefit em and they won't have tae like...work everyday. But it's better tae stay on cause then ya can get better grades and try and get a better job. peers not in a routine skills goal orientated aspirational aspirational employment	goal orientated for the future				Dan: Erm...I'm no really sure aboot that.	hesitant asks related question	Marianne: Right, okay. So within that, is there anything that you're personally looking forward to about leaving school?		aspirational			Marianne: So it's more like... is it to do with possible what your friends are doing, or is it your family, or is it...	provides prompts hesitant	Dan: Well um...um joining the Navy when I leave school.... A'm looking forward tae that... goal oriented anticipating aspiration					Dan: I think it's just generally what they're interested in daeing...	encouraging enthusiastic	Marianne: Brilliant.					Marianne: Uh huh.	personal rationale further elaborates/ laughs	Dan: I'm joining when um 18 so...still got a while [laughs]. goal oriented staying on at school(?)					[Interview interrupted by visitor - resumes at 5.51]	continues rationale asking to confirm	Marianne: Aye, so are you going to stay on and do fifth and sixth year?					Dan:...aye like I was saying... I want tae join the Navy cause I like the lifestyle... the look of it an ya get tae travel the world an get tae dae things that ya don't get tae dae wi a lot of jobs. life-style choice opportunities motivation opportunities for travel confirms	Dan: Yeah. staying on post compulsory education					Marianne: Okay... so how responsible do you feel for your own future?	asks new but related question prompting elaboration	Marianne: Cool, and do you do that [the Navy] in  [home city] or do you have to move away? staying close to home(?)					[Long pause]	no participant response
asks to repeat the question	Dan: What?					Marianne: Do you feel like you have to really work hard for it or... requires a great deal of effort(?)	provides prompt to encourgae participant
repeats	Marianne: To join the Navy?					Dan: Yeah.	agrees

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes
asking to confirm	Marianne: Yeah?
confirms	Dan: Ya have tae work hard for every'hing. effort and dedicatation - at a disadvantage/ have to work harder than their more advantaged counterparts (?)	at a disadvantage	hindered
thanks participant	Marianne: Cool, well I think that's everything. Thanks very much. That was brilliant. End.

Collated Distilled Themes:

Interview Four

Date: 16/3/15

Duration: 19.49 minutes

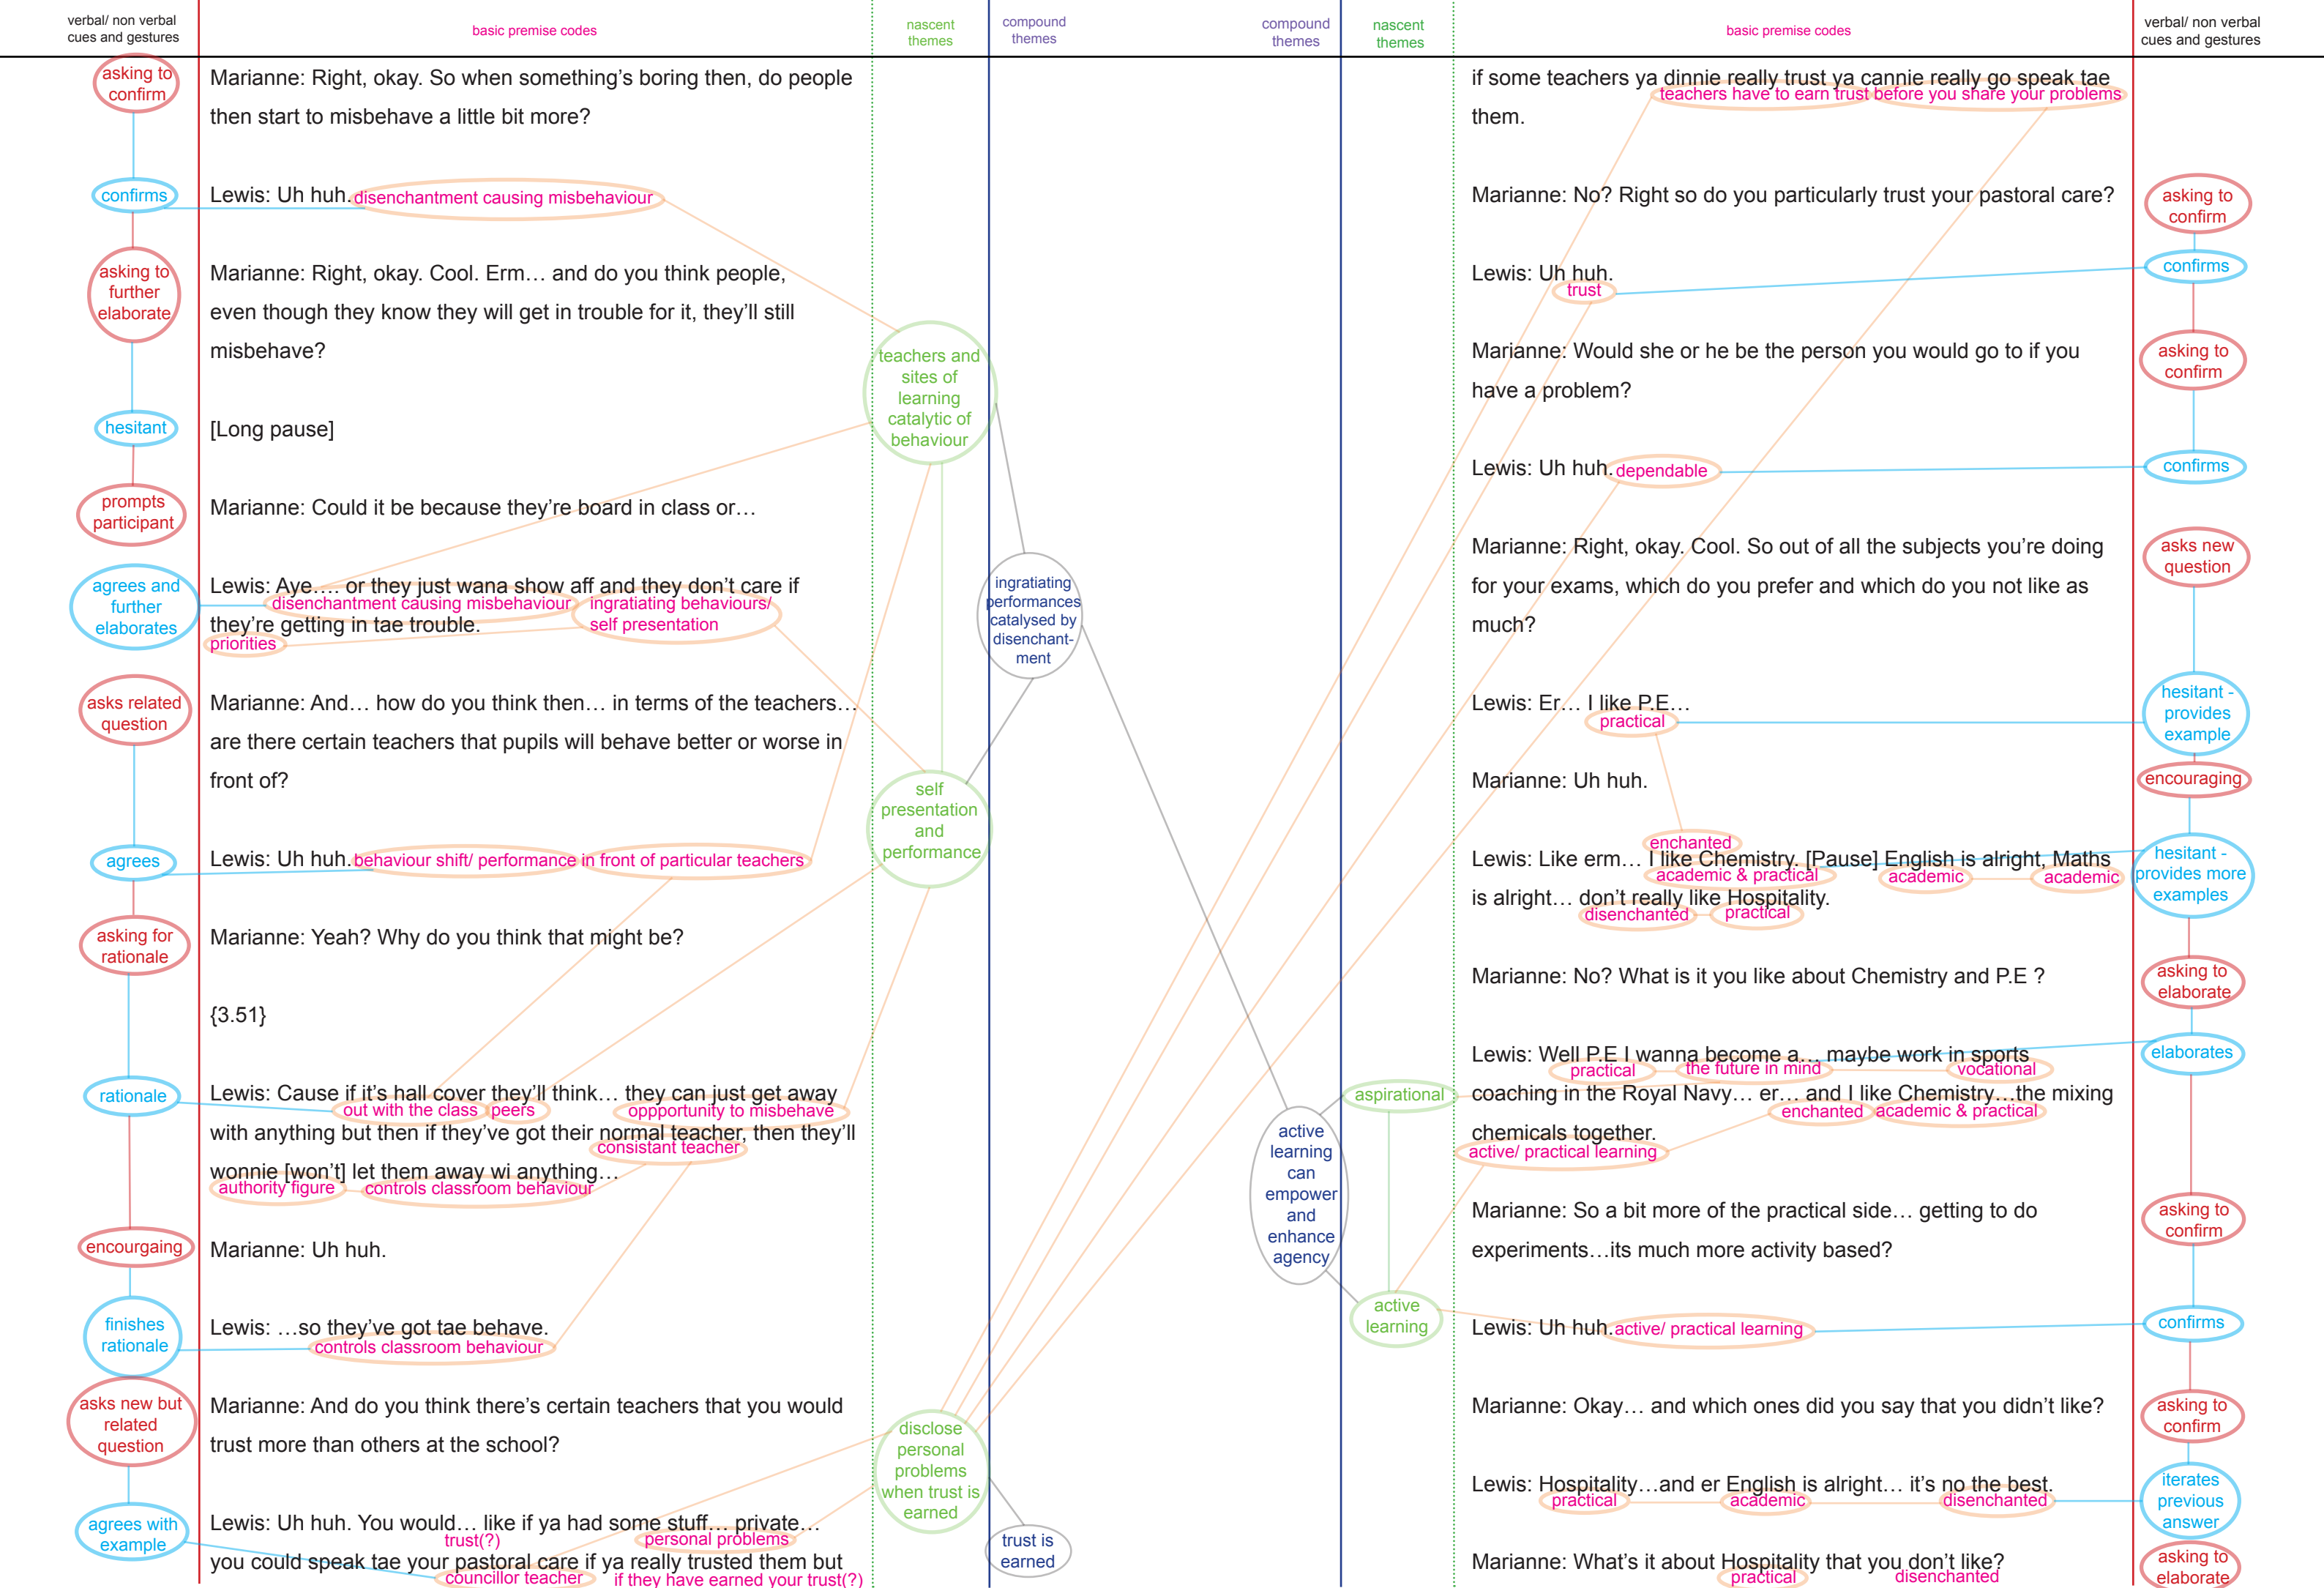

Lewis

Mat (chaperon)

Marianne

verbal & nonverbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	distilled themes
	Marianne: So the first section then is thinking about your experiences of high school, so my first question is how do you think most young people feel about going to school?
	Lewis: Maybe the first few weeks they'll feel nervous just starting high school and then they'll start to like it.	younger intimidated/ daunting confidence/ feeling more relaxed encouraging asking participant to elaborate by prompt	Marianne: Uh huh. So maybe...when they're younger and in first year, they're a bit nervous? Why do you think they would be nervous?		intimidated - defused by increased familiarity elaborates	Lewis: Meeting loads of different people, new teachers and... whenever I was in primary there would just be the same people and the same teacher...	intimidated/ daunting peers authority figures younger familiarity peers familiarity authority figures asking to elaborate	Marianne: Uh huh. So when you started high school, was there a lot of people from your primary that came into first year with you or did a lot of you go off to different...
elaborates	Lewis: Five people came fra ma primary...	familiarity peers known for a long time asking to confirm	Marianne: Right, okay. So then a lot went off to different high schools? Right, okay.
confirms	Lewis: Uh huh. only a few known for a long time
	Marianne: Right, so what do you think are the main kind of problems or issues, if any, young people may face at high school?
	Lewis: Bullying...	peer conflict
asking to confirm	Marianne: Bullying?		projected identity can be a catalyst for peer conflict confirms	Lewis: ...some people could feel...erm...get bullied...	peer conflict
asking to confirm	Marianne: Yeah?
rationale	Lewis:... because the way they dress or they way they speak.	catalyst for peer conflict projected identities peers catalytic of belonging as well as conflict

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
asking to confirm through elaborating	Marianne: Right, okay. Is there any...do you know of any of that happening in your year at all?					Marianne: Both negatively or positively...	prompts participant contradicts previous statement	Lewis: No. no peer conflict					Lewis: It all...it all depends...
asking to confirm	Marianne: Not now, or did it used to?					Marianne: Depends on what?	prompts participant confirms	Lewis: Don't think so, no. no peer conflict					Lewis: ...because... er the pals could be a bad influence... and they could misbehaving... you might think well I hang about with them so I don't wana be the odd wan out so I'll start misbehaving an being cheeky...	elaborates with rationale asks new but related question	Marianne: Right, okay. Cool. And erm... do you think young people's behaviour changes throughout the course of high school?
hesitant	[Long pause]					Marianne: Uh huh. Have you got any examples... does this happen with your own friendship group...or do you just see this happening?	asking to further elaborate prompts participant	Marianne: How do you think it might change?					Lewis: Naw it used tae when I was in first year...	elaborates
	Lewis: Cause I hang about with different people... they're startin tae grow up...an can start to be mare cheeky...					[Long pause]	hesitant Marianne: Yeah? But not so much any more though?	asking to confirm prompts participant	Marianne: Okay, so as they get older then, they become more cheeky? Why do you think that is?					{2.33}
hesitant	[Long pause]					Lewis: Nut. ingratiating behvaieur/ peer membership - occurring at a younger age	confirms prompts participant by asking to confirm	Marianne: Do you they get a bit more confident?					Marianne: No?	asking to confirm confirms	Lewis: Aye. become more confident					[Pause]
asks new but related question	Marianne: Yeah? And erm... you mentioned there about erm... people in different friendship groups, so what you do think are the main kinds of influences on people's behaviour at school?					Marianne: Cool, okay. And are there certain subjects that people behave better or worse in?	asks new but related question hesitant	[Long pause]					Lewis: Eh...well... I behave better in P.E but I behave worse in Hospitality.	provides personal example prompts participant	Marianne: Is it people's friends? Or is it maybe other things that could influence people's behaviours at school?					Marianne: Why do you think that is?	asking for rationale
hesitant	[Long pause]					Lewis: [long pause]... cause... cause I like P.E better and Hospitality is sometimes boring.	hesitant - provides rationale

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
elaborates further echoing participant's response introduces new but related question agrees but hesitant asking for examples hesitant other participant prompts participant participant uses other's suggestion encouraging further elaborates asking for rationale asking for alternative examples hesitant encouraging asks new but related question	Lewis: Teacher's moanny sometimes and er...sometimes when ya don't feel like cooking, she'll just moan at ya and say go an get an apron on and ya got tae cook even if ya don't want tae really. Marianne: Right okay. So out of all the subjects you've mentioned... you mentioned P.E there as your favourite, have there ever been times, perhaps with yourself or maybe you've seen this happening with others, where you know people are really good at a subject but they'll pretend not to be? {6.03} Lewis: Aye... er... Marianne: Have you got any examples of when this has happened? Lewis:... tryna think... Mat: [whispers]...in Maths. Lewis: Aw Maths! Ma pal  [male pupil name omitted]...er... he acts as if he's really stupid... Marianne: Uh huh. Lewis: ...although he's in the lowest Maths class, he is quite smart but if...he just... pretends he's really stupid. Marianne: So why do think he might do that? Lewis: I don't know... I'm no...I'm no in his class so I don't know why he would. Marianne: Have you got any other examples? Lewis: Er... cannie think of any. Marianne: No, well that's okay. Cool, so do you think being good at school...being good at particular subjects has anything to do with	disenchanted through feeling forced performances of self sabotage	recalibration empowered through formal recognition	recalibration empowered through formal recognition sense of achievement gained through formal recognition shift in priorities	who you're friends with at school? {6.54} Lewis: Uh huh. [Pause] Don't know cause... you could have pals that are good at Drama, you're good at P.E and there could be other people that are good at music so it all depends cause obviously we all tae different subjects and some's good at P.E and others are good at other subjects... Marianne: Uh huh. Okay. So can you describe to me a time, and it doesn't have to be in school, it can be outside of school as well, when you feel proud or a sense of achievement. Lewis: Eh... when I got ma black belt in Tae Kwon Do. Marianne: Cool! When was that? Lewis: Er... two years ago. It took me four and half years. Marianne: Uh huh, I bet yeah. That's great, congratulations. So what does that mean, can you instruct? Lewis: Well I could of... I left it because I was obviously getting board and then I started the sea cadets but then I had tae leave that because my exams and my studying was getting in the way... Marianne: Uh huh. Lewis:... but I'm no sure if am gonnie go back but if I can go back then I'll put through a instructors course and teach classes. Marianne: Great. Cool, and you mentioned your exams there, how are you feeling about your exams at the moment? How's it all going? {8.11} Lewis: [pause]... I'm a bit nervous about some of em....er....English	agrees then hesitant rationale encouraging introduces new topic personal anecdote enthusiastically asked to elaborate elaborates enthusiastically asked to elaborate elaborates encouraging elaborates further enthusiastic asks new question hesitant

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
rationale asking to further elaborate elaborates asking to confirm agrees and further elaborates asks follow up question self-evaluational echoing participant's response in question elaborates asking to confirm	because we don't really tae much... aw we tae is copy fra books an we're tae dae wi own value added unit and wi've tae dae a talk an [emphasis] wi've tae dae another assessment... and wi don't really dae it cause we're mainly copying fra books aw the time cause for the first three weeks when we came back at Christmas, we were aw just copying fra books... Marianne: Right, okay. So can you describe that a bit more. So in English, you say you're just copying from books, are you not... Lewis: Its just like close reading... but we're just tae copy it. Marianne: So do you not feel that prepared for the exam then? Lewis: Well naw cause eh... the value added unit it's... we've got tae have at least eight hunner tae a thousand [emphasis] words an we don't even write that much for the essays... and we've obviously... wi tae dae it wi-selves[ourselves] but its tae be finished for the day but all wi hud... two months tae dae it...the teacher's no really helped us wi it. Marianne: Right. So is there erm... are there any other exams you feel anxious about...or really confident about? Lewis: Feel as if I'm gonnie pass... oh I don't like Hospitality but I know I'm gonnie pass that cause I can... when it's an assessment I'll tae it [emphasis] but when it's no an assessment I cannie really be bothered cooking. And then P.E... I know I can pass that cause I listen and I dae all the homework. Marianne: Aye? Cool. So you see in Hospitality, what's the exam like? What do you have to do for the exam? Lewis: Well for Nat 5 ya need tae dae a three course meal...over like two and half hours and like for National 4 ya need tae do a two course meal in an hour and a half. Marianne: Do you get to choose what you make?	disengaging disenchanted mechanical/ arbitrary high work demands mechanical/ arbitrary repeatative feeling dejected mechanical/ arbitrary disenchantment and frustration precipitated through tasks perceived as mechanical and arbitrary feeling dejected and unprepared high work demands feeling dejected and unprepared unsupported under pressure feeling dejected and unprepared unsupported by the teacher confident under pressure no pressure to achieve disenchanted confident motivated to engage invests motivated through pressure to achieve	disenchant-ment embodied in demotivated reactions to arbitrary tasks peer tensions empowered embodied in agency enhancing enchantment confidence gained through opportunities to harness own agency	Lewis: I think so. Marianne: Cool. You have any ideas what you're gonna make? Lewis: Aye, I'm no sure. There is some that I'm good at but I don't know yet. Marianne: Right, okay. So we'll just move on the next section, which is about the XL Club. Mat, feel free if you want to join in. So how did you or why did you choose to become a part of the XL Club? {10:17} Lewis: Cause I thought if I joined the XL then I might get better confidence cause I was quite shy in erm... first year. Marianne: And what do you think, and you can be completely honest, what do you think...or how's it been being part of the XL Club? Lewis: It's good but it's been annoying...[female pupil name omitted – pupil part of the XL Club] shouting all the time. It's annoying. I mean when ya try and say something and she'll butt in and say nah that's wrang or ya try and answer something she'll get there before you, before anyone else in the class can answer. Marianne: Uh huh. Is there anything positive about the Club? Lewis: It's definitely helped me with ma confidence and I'm a bit mere confident at speaking. Marianne: Uh huh, that's great. And has there been anything you've been doing in the Club, like certain projects or activities where you've felt it's really help you with your confidence? Lewis: Er... the section of sectarianism cause we were all put in tae groups and we all had...like there was like five or six and we had tae like...had a group er...and then we would change round and then we would have tae lead another group and we were daeing it	confident a means to gain/ improve lack in confidence lack in confidence when younger enraptured irritated by peer irritated by peer peer tension frustration frustration enraptured increased in confidence agency practical project team work and interactions leadership/ agency/ empowering	confirms asking to elaborate introduces new topic asks other participant to also contribute personal reflection asks related question rationale asks related question self-evaluational enthusiastic asks to elaborate further hesitant elaborates

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	for a questions thing...					Lewis: Naw. disempowered	confirms encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.					Marianne: Okay. Who selected you? Was it the...	asking to confirm further elaborates	Lewis: And... I think another wan for my confidence was the Halloween disco because I was a tour guide and I had tae have good confidence tae walk round and speak tae they people that was going round wi us...	confidence gained through opportunities to harness own agency				Lewis: Ma pastoral care.	confirms asking to confirm	Marianne: Uh huh. So are these activities which sorta push you out your comfort zone yeah?					Marianne: Pastoral care, right okay cool. Erm... and well you've already mentioned it's helped you with your confidence but has it helped you in any of your other subjects?	asks related question confirms	Lewis: Yeah. agency					Lewis: Hmm... well I think it might help me wi ma English talk cause I think I've got tae talk in front of ma class...
asks new but related question	Marianne: Great. Erm... okay so what do you think other people who are not in the XL Club think about the XL Club?					Marianne: Uh huh.	encouraging
	Lewis: [laughs] Er... some of them think it's for aw stupid people but er... cause some people have heard aw [all] the trips we go on, some people would want... it's just fur [for] the trips they'd want I think. But they also just think its fur [for] kinda stupid people that cannie dae certain subjects I think. - negative stereotyping	empowered embodied in agency enhancing enchantment				Lewis: Yeah... and P.E as well cause I was never confident getting up in front of people but now I am... gained confidence/ agency	elaborates further asking to confirm	Marianne: So do you feel like you have to sort of explain to them...	stigmatised				[Interview interrupted at 13:20]
confirms	Lewis: Sometimes. ignorance	negative stereotyping based on ignorance				[Interview Resumes at 14:07]	asks related question asking to confirm	Marianne: There's not a lot of awareness about what goes on in the Club?	not in control				Marianne: Cool, okay. So my last question about the XL Club is, is there anything you would change about it?
confirms through elaborating	Lewis: I don't even know what I'm in XL fur [for]. I know... I know myself it's fur [for] confidence but I don't know what I got choose for.					Lewis:  [female pupil name omitted from the XL Club]...	other participant laughs
	{12:48}	frustration borne out of feeling disempowered - decisions made for them				Mat: [laughs]	asking for another example asking to confirm	Marianne: Yeah so other people in previous interviews have said you got kind of selected to be interviewed... but your not quite sure why you were selected, no?					Marianne: Anything else?	iterates previous answer
						Lewis: ...that's... that's the only thing... I'd take her out it... too loud.	prompting further examples
						Marianne: Erm... so there's nothing else about the actual activities or stuff you learn in there?	provides another example
						Lewis: [pause]... more projects... like I don't think there's enough... there is'nae many. practical activities preference for practical activities over theoretical/ academic work

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
asks follow up question elaborates further asking to further elaborate further elaborates other participant contributes further elaborates introduces new interview topic acknowledges asks related question	Marianne: Some more projects? So what is it that you're doing when you're not doing projects? Lewis: Well right noow we're making a movie... er for the next XL Club that will get chosen obviously... the movie will get shown to them dae see... to show them what we've done in the last two years. Er... but other times we're filling in sheets and booklets... Marianne: Right, okay. What's that for? Lewis: Erm... health and safety...er... we were daeing a heart start booklet... Mat: Aye...CPR. Lewis: CPR and that... [long pause] I think everybody apart fra...well there was only about two or three that dinnae get their heart start certificate cause they were'nae in. Marianne: Right, okay... Erm so moving on then. The section is about what you plan to do when you leave school. Lewis: Right. Marianne: So what do you think young people most look forward to about leaving school? Lewis: No having tae...well some people have tae get up early if they've got a job but some people find leaving school they don't need to get up so early, coming in tae a school and have teachers moaning at them everyday... day in and day out. And some people find it... they've got freedom... no been in having tae wear school uniform five days a week... Marianne: Uh huh... okay. And do you think most young people are worried or anxious about when it comes to leaving school? {16:07}	practical project mechanical/ arbitrary theoretical activities theoretical activities theoretical activities failed mundane routine authority figures being reprimanded mundane routine mundane routine choice choice mundane routine	disenchantment embodied in demotivated reactions to arbitrary tasks seeking freedom from the mundane wanting to escape the banalities of school	competition aspirational choices enchanted endeavours	uncertainties and anxiety for the future heightened by having to compete confident aspiration goal orientated invest/ enage aspiration goal orientated goal orientated aspiration goal orientated post compulosry education goal orientated goal orientated	Lewis: [long pause] If they're gonnie have the right... if they're gonnie be able tae get in tae college, university... are they gonnie be able to get an apprenticeship, are they gonnie be able to get a job... have they got the right qualifications. Marianne: Uh huh. Are you worried about any of those things personally? Lewis: No really because I know I'm daeing the main subjects I need for sports coaching but... if... wi the work experience that I'm gonnie dae... if I work hard I hope tae get an apprenticeship at  [car dealership name omitted] for parts, mechanical engineering and then that might help me also wi the Royal Navy... Marianne: Cool. So are you planning to stay on then after this year? Lewis: Aye... aye I'm staying on ti at least 6th year. Marianne: So do you know what subjects you're gonna do in 5th year? Lewis: Yeah I'm gonna definitely keep P.E... I'm no sure if I'm gonnie keep Admin yet... I might but I think... I don't whether tae keep Hospitality because ya make cakes and I don't know whether tae pick up Physics and drop Hospitality. Marianne: Hmmm... when do you have to make this decision... for your subjects for Highers? Lewis: Erm... sometime this year. Mat: Probably the end. Marianne: Right, okay. Lewis: How's that gonnie work? Mat: Don't know.	hesitant asks follow up question for participant to elaborate on elaborates encourgaing asks to confirm confirms ask related question asks to confirm confirms other participant contributes encouraging participant asks other participant other participant answers

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
responds to other participant other participant responds asking to confirm confirms other participant concurs new question hesitant hesitant encourages participant with prompts asks follow up question	Lewis: Cause we're only in... we're aff quite a lot fra the 27th of April. Mat: Aye, we'll be aff for like 2 month or something... Marianne: On exam leave? Mat: Study leave. Lewis: Aye. Marianne: Right, okay. So what do you think are the main influences on young people's futures? [long pause] Lewis: Hmmm... [sighs] try'na think... Marianne: It's quite a tricky question. I was meaning what do you think it is then that kinda influences you decisions either whether you stay on at school or not, or way you end up going if you maybe go to university or go straight into employment. What do you think are the main kinda things that influence those decisions? Lewis: Well if you're gonnie... if ya choose tae stay on at school, you've got tae think would ya turn up everyday, would ya listen in class er... dae all the work because you're an influence tae the rest of the school showing that you can come in on time, dae the homework, not get in tae trouble aff the head teacher and having good... getting good exam results. Marianne: Okay. And how do you think school affects the person you become once you leave school? Lewis: It can be a good thing or it could be a bad thing... it all depends cause if ya don't really get good exams and ya have tae leave at the end of 4th year, then ya've got tae think about what ya gonnie dae but then if ya've got good exam results and ya have tae leave at the end of 4th year, ya can then get in tae college,				seeking control not in control agency through honor choosing to stay at school is making and displaying a commitment embodied in becoming a role model	university or... get a good job. more options open to you achieveing opens up more options others making decisions about your future - disempowering encouraged - feel forced(?) disenaged and disenchanted empowered self assess - make their own decisions	asks related question thanks participant

Collated Distilled Themes:

Transcript Five

Date: 23/3/15

Duration: 15.07 minutes

Max

David (chaperon)

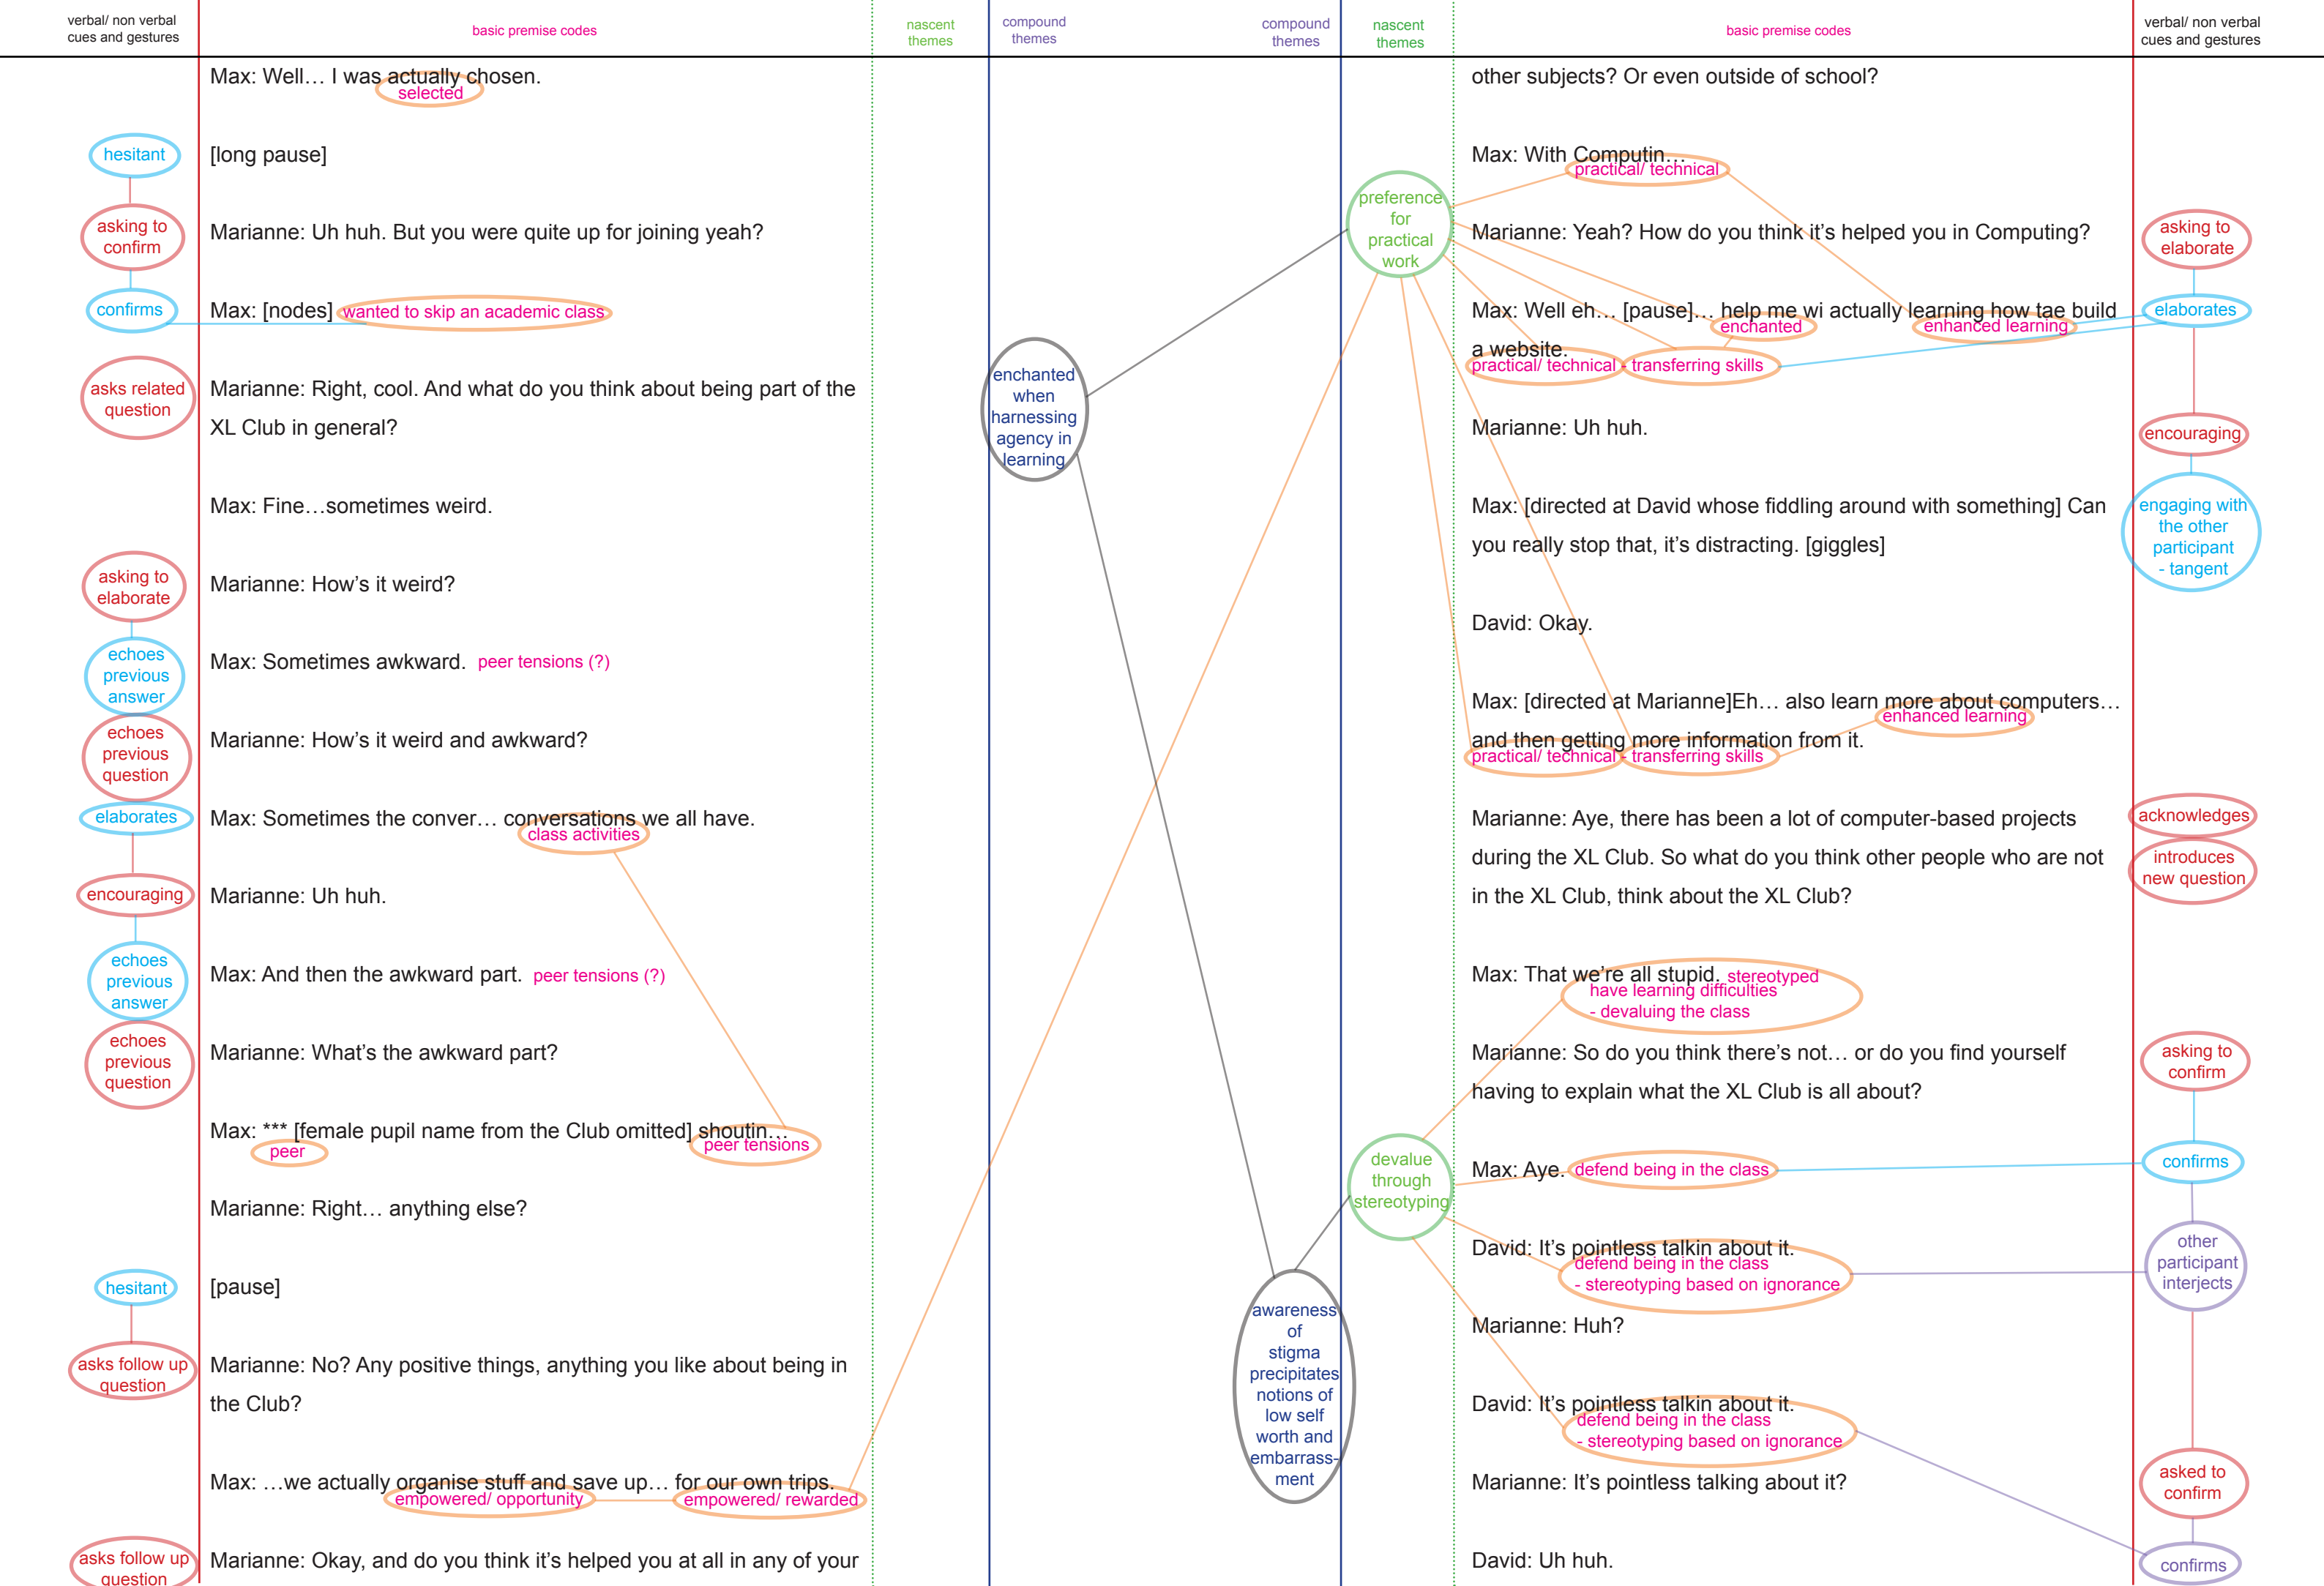

Marianne

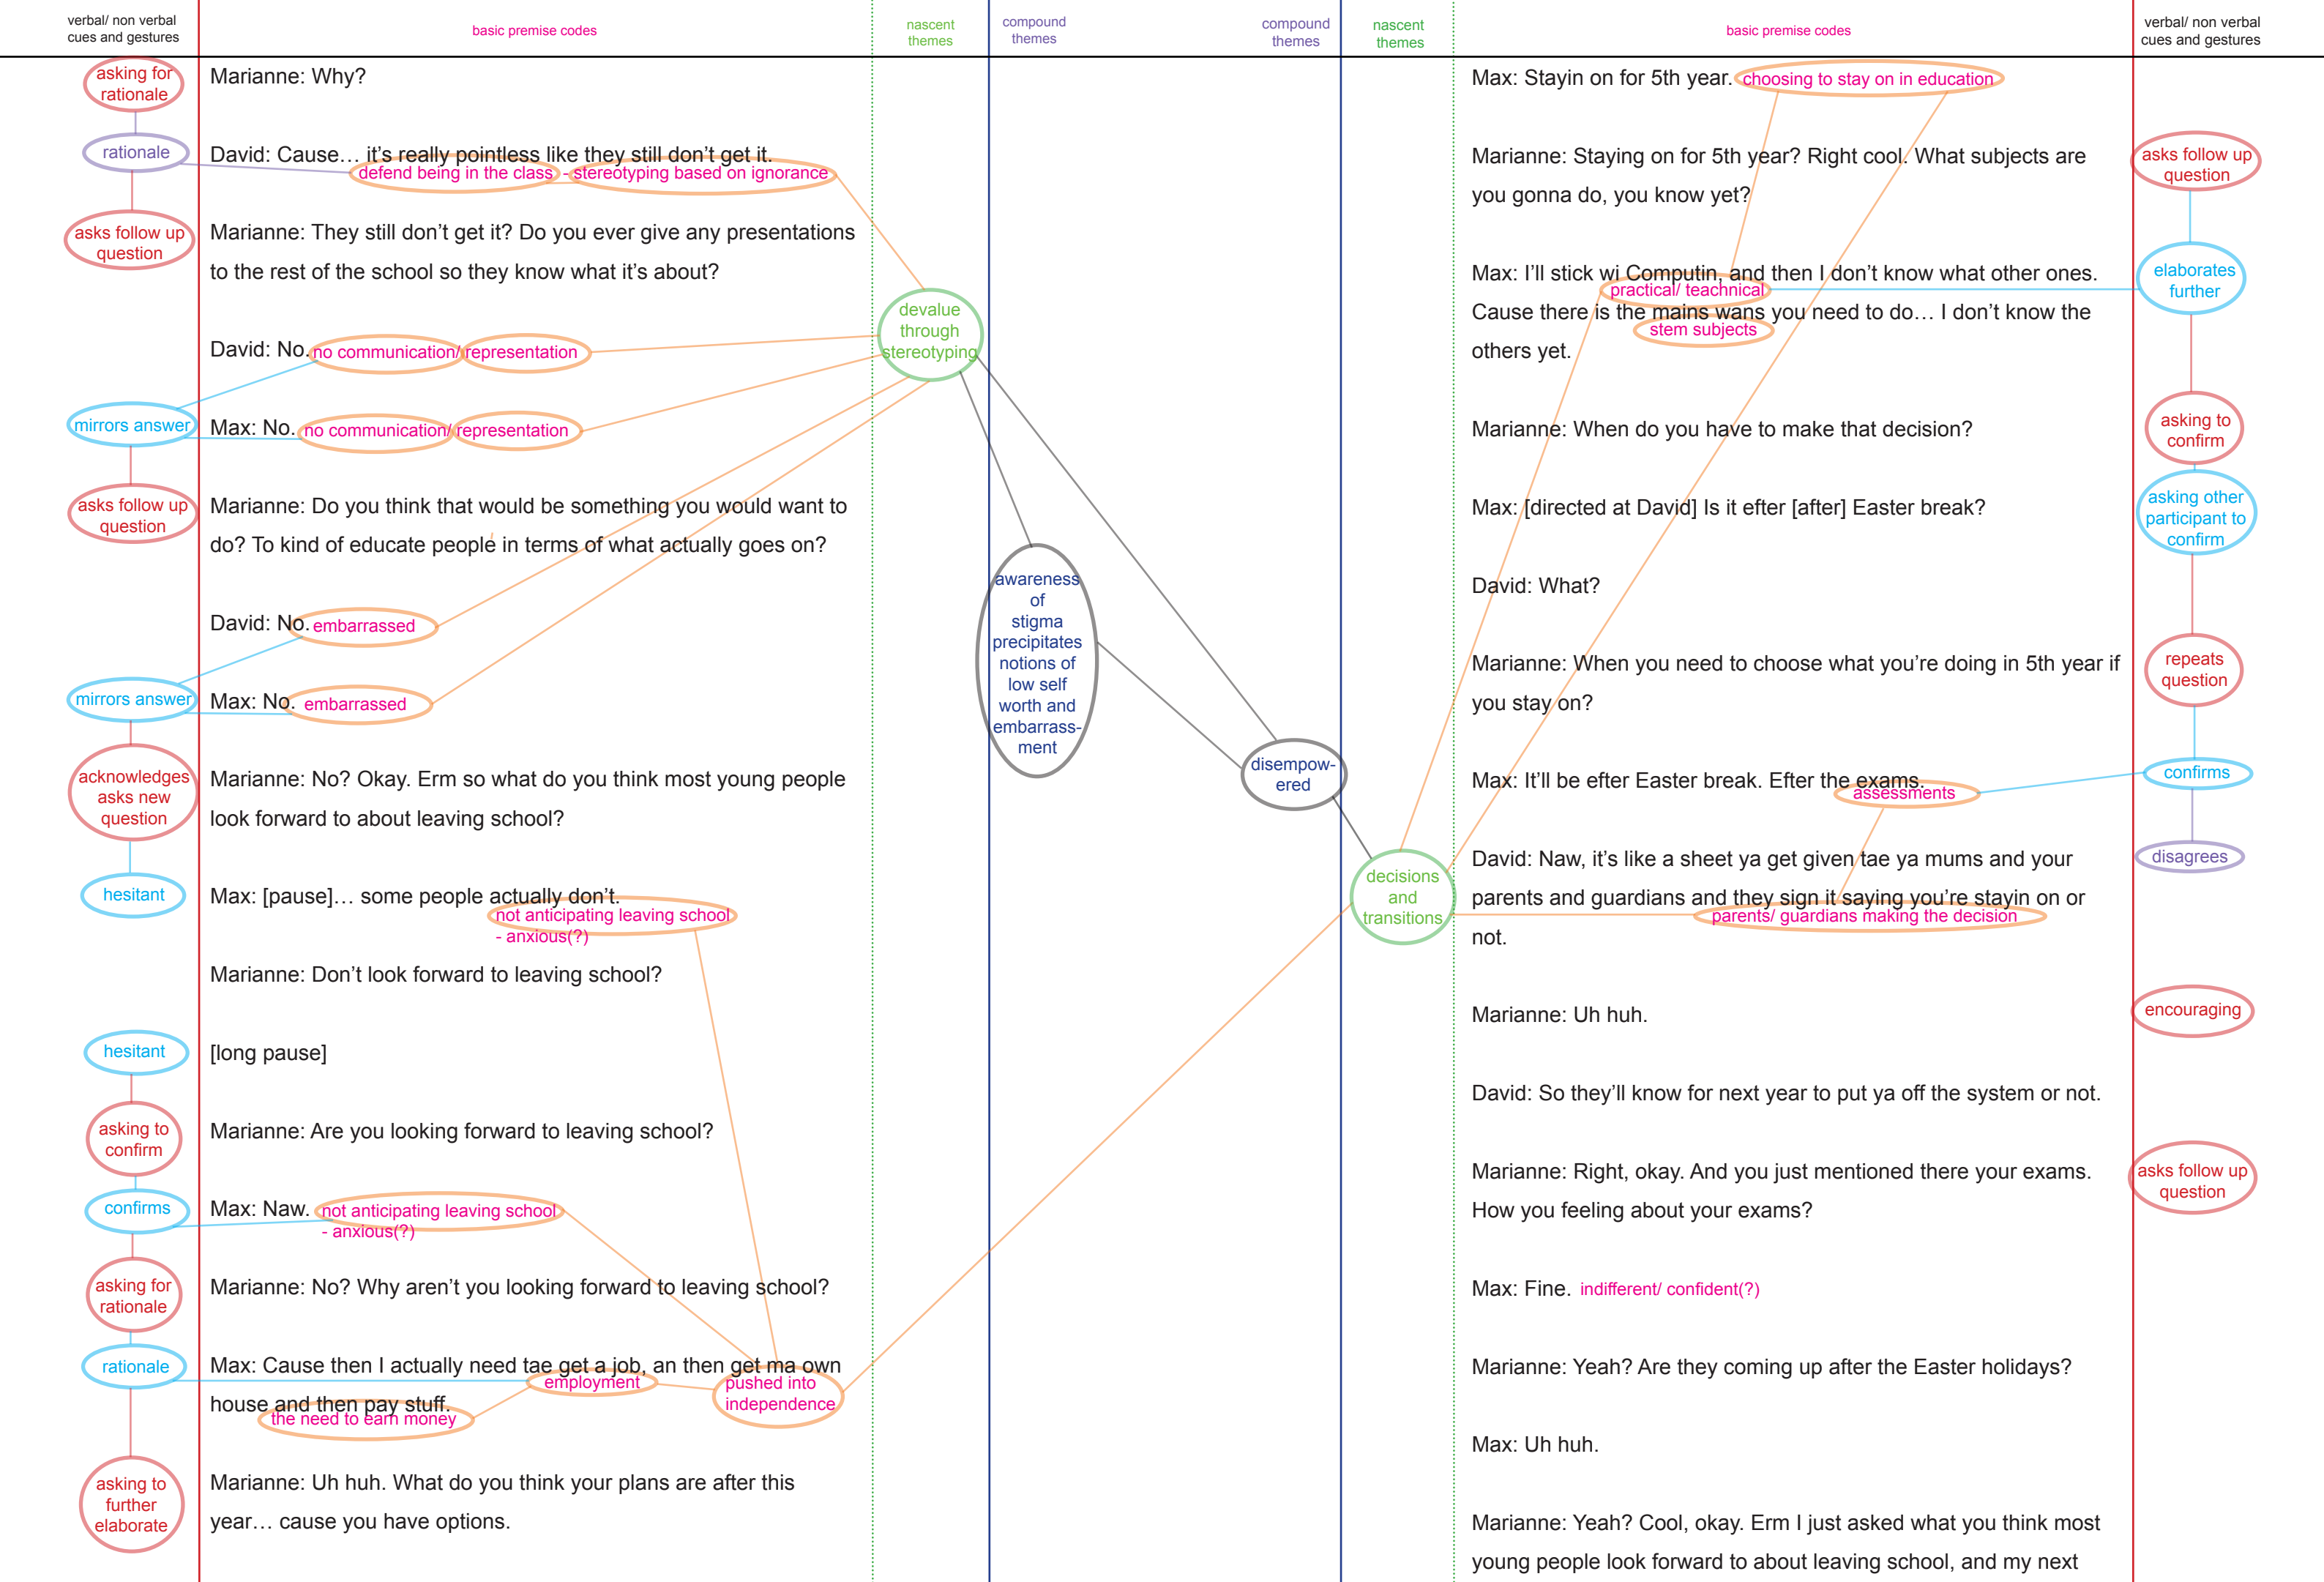

verbal & nonverbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	distilled themes
	Marianne: So I've just put the recorder on and David feel free to jump in... David: Uh huh. Marianne:... and contribute whenever you want to. So there are three kinda key areas I want to about in the interview. The first is section is gonna be looking at your experiences of school in general, the second section is gonna be asking about the XL Club and the last section is more about what you plan to do after you leave school. You can be completely honest and share whatever you want to. So the first question is how do you feel most young people feel about going to school? Max: Don't wana go, they don't like it. Or they try and dog class. asking to further elaborate	Marianne: Uh huh, so why do you think people might not like school?
elaborates	Max: Some people might think it's a waste of time.	disenfranchised by school
encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.
rationale	Max: They don't like teachers or they don't like the class in general...	disenfranchised by school asking to further elaborate	Marianne: Uh huh. You said there waste of time. Why would it be maybe a waste of time?
elaborates	Max: Cause people always think there's other stuff they can do in that time instead of going to school.	disenfranchised by school Marianne: Right, okay.
elaborates	David: I am going to no do that... I think it's the time in the morning.	disenfranchised by school Marianne: What was that?

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
repeats answer asking to confirm confirms and elaborates asks related question hesitant encouraging hesitant asking to confirm asks related question agrees asking to elaborate elaborates asks follow up question	David: Cause the mornings...early morning starts Marianne: The mornings? David: [inaudible in parts] ... when you wake up because you need like... if I was gonna get taught how to swim I would never tae that... in the water, like saving people doing that. They need to teach. They can't teach at school... at home I mean. Cause of your mum and dad is at work and aw that. Max: I'm never allowed to swim in school. I got flung in a pool. I got taught tae teach maself...pragmatic/ empowered Marianne: What you do think are the main kinda problems young people may face at school? Max: [pause]... don't wana do their homework... is probably the main problem...er...get distracted easily...working alone - lack of motivation(?) lack of motivation Marianne: Uh huh. Max: [long pause]... or the teachers... don't actually do... like there's too many people tryna get questions at the exact same time so...authority figures big class sizes peers seeking the teacher's attention teacher's attention becomes diluted Marianne: Right, okay. So maybe to do with the size of classes then? Right, okay. Cool. And do you think a young person's behaviour changes throughout their time at school? Max: Uh huh. behaviour change Marianne: How do you think it might change? Max: Er some people might actually grow up or some people are just... stay immature. peers mature peers don't mature Marianne: Right, okay. So what do you think influences young people's behaviour at school?		neglect ingratiating diluted attention		outside influences free time - influences behaviour free time under-age drinking, smoking or drugs - risky behaviour/ experimental outside activity influence in school behaviour friendships influence in school behaviour what one they don't like. misbehave when disenchanted purposely misbehave	encouraging asking participant to expand provides examples asking to confirm confirms asks follow up question confirms encouraging asking to further elaborate hesitant asking to confirm - asks for personal opinion acknowledges asks related question agrees asks for rationale

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
rationale asking to elaborate rationale asking to confirm - asks follow up question elaborates asks new but related question hesitant asking to confirm confirms asking to further elaborate hesitant asking to confirm confirms asks new question relating back to a previous answer provides examples asks follow up question	Max: To get attention. disengaged - seeking attention Marianne: Yeah? Whose attention? Max: Any...like anybody whose actually doing their work. peers engaged in work Marianne: Right, so to distract people. Erm...and what do teachers do when that happens? Max: Just... just shout at em. Or put them out of class or move em. authority figure reprimand reprimand reprimand Marianne: Uh huh. So talking about teachers more, are there certain teachers at this school that you trust more than others? Max: [long pause]... no. doesn't trust any authority figures Marianne: No? Do you trust any teachers? Max: Naw. doesn't trust any authority figures Marianne: No? So if you had a problem or needed to go speak to a teacher, there's not really anyone in particular that you would feel comfortable talking to? Would you ever speak with your pastoral care teacher? Max: [long pause] ... well I could if I wanted to... if necessary Marianne: ...but you don't? Max: No. doesn't trust or confide in any authority figures Marianne: No. Okay cool... Erm so, just going back to different kinds of classes, so you said you prefer computing classes, what's your least favourite subject? Max: English and R.E. academic Marianne: English and R.E. R.E's come up [in previous interviews] before a few times. So what is it about Computing that you like more practical	lack of trust			preference for practical active learning academic becomes engaging when applied technically enchanted when harnessing agency in learning	than say something like English? academic Max: The coding.... and it's just building... like computers an that... active learning/ technical active learning active learning Marianne: Uh huh. Max: ...which ya can learn through it. active learning Marianne: Do you think... are you gonna do anything to do with Computing when you leave school? Max: Yes. future aspiration Marianne: Yeah? Cool, okay. Erm... so you said there about coding and building computers, what kinda of activities then motivate you to learn? Max: Maths... academic becoming technical(?) Marianne: Yeah? Max:... technical for the... [stutters]... an... academic becoming technical(?) [long pause] Marianne: So you just said there more technical things, so is it more activity-based learning? Like doing practical things rather than being sitting and being taught at? Max: [Nodes] practical active learning Marianne: Right, okay. Erm...right this is a slight trickier question but it relates back to behaviour, do you ever see or have you got any examples of times where young people, even thought you know they're really at a subject or they're really good at some thing, that they'll pretend not to be good at it? [long pause]	rationale encouraging further rationale asks follow up question confirms asking to further elaborate asking to confirm hesitant asking to elaborate further gestures in agreement introduces new topic in response to participant's lack of responses hesitant

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Max: I've no seen it happening but somebody's tolt [told] me they've did it before. performance of self sabotage					[long pause]	hesitant
asking to further elaborate	Marianne: Yeah? Why do you think people do that?					Max:...the sectarianism project, that's what it was.	asking to elaborate - prompting the participant
elaborates with rationale	Max: So they can stay in classes they like or... talk... stay in the same classes as their friends. peers remain with friends remain enchanted	peers as a motive for recalibration				Marianne: Right, so after that you felt a sense of achievement, what had you achieved? You said you had made a website? Did you get a certificate or anything?	confirming with other participant
introduces new interview topic	Marianne: Right, okay. Erm... can you give me a time or an example, it can be outside of school as well, it doesn't have to be something that happens inside of school, a time when you feel proud or a sense of achievement.					Max: [directed at David] Did we?	other participant confirms
hesitant	[long pause – 16 seconds]					David: I was'nae there so I don't know.	counters
asks to confirm the question	Max: Does it need to be in school?		means of social leverage			Max: You were at some parts.	disagrees
other participant confirms	David: Uh huh.					David: I was at the first learning thing but I was'nae actually at the actual opening...	persists
	Max: In XL... the only place [pause] ... probably the projects we did. time/place of achievement type of practical work					Max: You were there.	gestures disagreement
encouraging	Marianne: Uh huh.					David: Pfft...	laughs
hesitant	[long pause]					Max: [giggles]	introduces new interview topic
	Both participants voice in audible communication to each other					Marianne: Okay, well we'll move on then to the next section which is looking at the XL Club. So why did you choose to become part of the XL Club?
asking to elaborate further	Marianne: Have you got any project in particular?					Max: To get out of social. to skip an academic class	asking to confirm
hesitant	[long pause]					Marianne: Right, so that's to get out of doing either Modern Studies, Geography or History?
prompting participant	Max: I've forgot the project name. practical work	preference for practical work				Max: Yep. to skip an academic class	confirms
	Marianne: Which one? What were you doing in it?		enchanted when harnessing agency in learning			Marianne: Right, cool. So I've been told before you go through a sort of interview process, so did you choose to go to the interview or were you chosen to be interviewed?
	Max: Helping create a website. technical practical work					[long pause]	hesitant
encourages	Marianne: Cool, okay.

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
asks new question relating to participant's previous responses	question was going to be what do you think most young people are worried about when it comes to leaving school, and you mentioned there about getting a job, getting a house. After 5th year, are you planning on staying in education or do you think you might go straight into getting a job? Max: Naw, I'll probably stay on still... then go to college. Marianne: What you gonna study or plan to study at college? Have you planned that far a head yet? Max: Naw that's... David: Uh huh. Mat: [directed at David] Have ya? David: Huh? Me? Stayin on, then applying for the fire fighters or the army. Marianne: Cool, so will that be after 6th year David, or 5th year? David: Nah, cause I'm gonna join the army so I'm stayin on... so I can get a wee bit extra cash. Marianne: Uh huh. Okay, so what you think are the influences on a young person's future? So what do you think are the main kinda things that influence what you end up doing once you leave school? Max: Depends on what ya actually like. Marianne: Uh huh. [long pause] Max: [directed at David] Ya adding anythin on tae that? David: Well this is your interview.	stay in high school further education aspirational goal orientated further training leading to employment goals determined on improving circumstances goal orientated goal orientated - staying in education for money - motivation to recieve education mantanence allowance enchanted by	aspirational goals determined on merit pragmatic aspirations		Max: Well that's why I said are ya adding anythin. David: Nope. Marianne: Nope. Okay. So it depends on the kinda things you like then so is there anything else? Maybe to do with outside things like friendship groups... anything like that at all? [pause] Marianne: No? Okay. So how responsible do you feel for your future? Max: I actually don't know. Marianne: Don't know? It's quite a tricky question isn't it? [long pause] Marianne: You don't know, that's cool. How do you think school effects the person you become? Max: Depends on what kinda grades ya get and then what kinda job you actually go for. Marianne: Uh huh....any other kinda influences at all? [long pause] Marianne: Perhaps friends? Who you become friends with at school? Or perhaps the kinda of activities you do outside of school? [long pause] Marianne: Or do you think it's more to do with the kinda of subjects you choose yeah? Max: Yeah.	assessments/ achievements determine goals set employment assessments/ achievements determine goals set	asks new question relating to participant's previous responses hesitant iterates the question reassuring the participant hesitant rephrases the question prompting for further elaboration hesitant further prompts hesitant further prompts agrees

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes
thanks participants	Marianne: Cool, well that's us kinda of done. Thanks very much Max, that was great. And thanks David for sitting in and your comments.

Collated Distilled Themes:

Interview Six

Part One

Date: 23/3/15

Duration: 15.39 minutes

Miss. Marsh

Marianne

verbal & nonverbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	distilled themes
explains previous interview structure confirms	Marianne: So, eh I spilt the pupil's interview up into three sections... Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: So the first section was looking at young people's experiences of high school... Miss. Marsh: Yeah. Marianne: The second section was more focused on the XL Club more in particular. Miss. Marsh: Yeah. Marianne: And then the third section was talking about their future aspirations and what they plan to do when they leave school. Miss. Marsh: Right, uh huh. Marianne: So, aye I think it would good if I can ask you a couple of the questions I asked them, I think it would be really interesting to hear your response and then I can also discuss a couple of the themes that emerged from their interviews for you to further comment on. Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: So the first question I asked them was how do you feel most young people feel about going to school. Miss. Marsh: Erm... I think the majority of them like it... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...because it's their pals go there and it's part of their socialising and things like that but I think a lot of them will say they don't like coming to school... Marianne: Uh huh.
hesitant accord rationale accord	...enchanted most young people - have a positive experience (?) peer groups social destination location for friendship and belonging pretend (?) disenchanted	school is a locus for young people to form their own communities	school as a primary means of socialising

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
further elaborates accord further elaborates accord accord rationale accord elaborates agrees rationale accord further elaborates agrees	Miss. Marsh: ...like people moan about going to their work but really there's a purpose for it and if ya didn't do it you'd be a bit unhappy I think. -seeking enchantment(?) Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: And I think... when it gets to the summer holidays, everybody's dying it to get to the summer holidays, but I think when they've not been at school for six weeks in the summer... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...I think they're... the majority of them are quite ready to come back. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Cause they've maybe not seen all the people that they would see at school. So...I hope [giggling] the majority of them enjoy coming to school... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...but I think a lot of the response is [impersonating a pupil] aw I hate school, cause like eh... you know... you have to work... Marianne: Aye. Miss. Marsh: ...and nobody really wants to work an eh... just like adults I think... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ... you know if ya dinnae have to work a lot of folk would say no I would'nae work... if they won the lottery and ya could survive without going to work... Marianne: Aye.	school is like employment school is a locus for young people to form their own communities young people miss their school communities school as a social hub catalyst of enchantment perceived disenchantment			purposes of school viewed as disaffected and disenchanted by skipping school school as both a positive and negative social hub school as social hub - negative interaction	Miss. Marsh: ...but I think deep down really erm... it's got a purpose you know, and it's like, you know, they see a lot of their friends and it be... a lot of them say oh it's boring when ya say how was your summer holidays... Marianne: Uh huh Miss. Marsh: ... dinnae do anything. So... but I know they'll probably say oh I hate school, why do I have to come to school ... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...there's obviously eh... attendance issues and stuff wi wi some of the kids in the class an there's ones that started on the program [XL Club] that don't come at all. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Or are on alternative programs that are not at  [name of high school omitted] any more or they're doing other things. So I suppose it's varied but I would hope most of them enjoy it but I sure they all say naw I hate it school. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Does that make sense? Marianne: Aye. No, no definitely. My next question that I asked them, which would be really interesting to hear what you think about it, was what do you think most young people are worried about or common problems experienced at school? Miss. Marsh: Erm... Marianne: Like common issues... if there are any. Miss. Marsh: ...I think... some times maybe... there's issues around bullying and name calling...	rationale accord further elaborates accord provides further rationale accord further rationale accord asking to confirm confirms asks related question hesitant prompts hesitant provides examples

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.					school and not having...
elaborates	Miss. Marsh: ...or that kinda thing. There can be erm... maybe					Miss. Marsh: The support network.	finishes sentence another example	some of the kids can worry about their work in terms of their ability					Marianne: Uh huh. And then sometimes being embarrassed to then	agrees and elaborates level an eh maybe...er....cause they do a lot more practical learning					show their homework...
	and stuff in XL... er... sometimes it gets referred to as extra leaning					Miss. Marsh: And ask for help.	finishes sentence an...					Marianne: Aye. So that was quite interesting. The next question I	agrees and asks new question accord	Marianne: Hmm.					asked the pupils was about behaviour...	accord rationale	Miss. Marsh: ... you know sometimes there can be a stigma an I					Miss. Marsh: Uh huh.
	think some others think we no the brightest or whatever erm... so I					Marianne: So I asked them...erm... how do you think a young	asks new question
	don't know whether they kind of worry about things like that?					person's behaviour might change over the course of high school?
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.					Miss. Marsh: Hmm...	accord builds on rationale	Miss. Marsh: Erm... any maybe worry about, or maybe they don't					Marianne: So, how do you think or have you witnessed...
	worry about it, but I suppose we're encouraging them to think about					Miss. Marsh: Erm...I think in first year the majority of them are,
	the future an trying to put plans in place for that.					cause they're new to the school, so they're a wee bit mousy and accord	Marianne: Hmm.					then when ya start to...erm...when ya start to go through the... the iterates previous response	Miss. Marsh: Erm... but I think bullying is what I would imagine					first year they become more familiar with things... ya start to see a would have came up quite a wee bit. Er...and sort of just social type					few more of the colours coming through...
	things and how they get on at school...					Marianne: Uh huh.
interview interrupted	[Interview interrupted by a visitor – Miss. Marsh carries on talking]					Miss. Marsh: ...and then eh...I think third year can be a challenging prompting	Miss. Marsh: ...erm...I don't know what they said, it would be					year for them cause they're getting a wee bit older, they're more that	further elaborates interesting to hear.					teenage years, the hormones and everything are going around...
	Marianne: It was interesting. A lot of the things that came through					Marianne: Aye.	agrees for that question... well bullying was one of the kinda go to answers					Miss. Marsh: ...and it's not an exam year either erm... cause that they would say.					they don't obviously sit exams or cause they're still in their broad accord	Miss. Marsh: Uh huh.					general education and then I think as they get a bit older erm... their	further elaborates elaborates further	Marianne: Erm... other issues that came up were...er... a couple					behaviour should settle down a wee bit... wi most of them and they
	of the participants mentioned homework and doing work away from

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	should be a wee bit more focused and things on, especially on their exams, and it... they should be a wee bit more mature by that time. assessments shift in attention - onto work grown up - shift in priorities Marianne: So what you think are the main kinda influences on their behaviour then? So you were saying there about exams so is it more, do you think it's more to do with the school work itself that has an influence on maturity or do you think they maybe other influences... [Interview interrupted – phone rings – interview carried on] Marianne: ...that would influence how they behave at school? Miss. Marsh: Erm... I think there's a lot of things... sorry there's a parent there for me [goes to answer the ringing phone] [Interview stopped] Miss. Marsh: So influences on behaviour? Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Gosh... I think they're can be so many things... erm... well there's the whole puberty thing erm... there's... [stutters] I I think... [Interview interrupted – phone rings – interview carried on] Miss. Marsh: Sake [at the phone ringing]... Marianne: It's okay. Miss. Marsh: I think probably... they maybe behave differently in different classes as well depending upon who there teachers are. Marianne: Yeah. I was going to mention... Miss. Marsh: Some of them are a lot more strict than others.	growing up induces a shift in priorities behaviour/ engagement determined by class type and teaching style	enchanted endeavours - focused on their future teaching style and peers determine behaviour		behaviour in line with friendship clique - is this brought into the classroom	Marianne: In different kinds of subjects? Miss. Marsh: Erm...sorry. [Goes to answer the phone] Marianne: It's okay. [Interview stopped] Miss. Marsh: Er... Marianne: An interesting theme that came through... Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: ...that I thought would be interesting to talk to you about was when I asked about friendship groups and about this idea of influence on their behaviour, something interesting that came through was about dumbing themselves down in front of friends sometimes... Miss. Marsh: Hmm. Marianne: ...so one participant in particular when talking about prelim revision and they talked about how they didn't bother do any revision because they're friends weren't revising... Miss. Marsh: Yeah. Marianne: So I think this idea of doing things in line with friendship groups is quite interesting... Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: ...so do you have any examples or experiences of that happening? Miss. Marsh: Yeah I think all teachers see that all the time in school and ya can sometimes see erm... how the peer group that they're in or the people that they hang about with can really influence not just	prompting further elaboration interview interrupted reassures participant interview interrupted accord iterates previous question with additional example prompt accord further example prompt confirms agrees agrees rationale

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	their behaviour but maybe how hard they work and how much effort they put in...	behaviour in line with friendship clique - degree of enchantment				ya see when we come back in August they're all back in school with their full school uniforms. I thought you'd got into college – aye I changed my mind. So then one'll change their mind and then the rest of them all do the same thing. So there is a lot of that to do with...especially in like forth year an the younger school, you know they do kinda tend to er... be influenced a lot by their friendship groups that they're in...
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.		peer ingratiation at the expense of achieving		peer mobilisation	choosing to return to school previous intention to leave peers influencing peers influenced when facing crucial transitions peers influencing peers peer associates
rationale	Miss. Marsh: ...because teachers can know that a certain person is a really bright guy or a really bright girl and then whoever you see them hanging about with at lunch time or interval or you know maybe they meet at  [name of local shop omitted] and don't get to school on time...	authority figures high achiever high achiever peers peer association social free time - out with the classroom social free time - out with the classroom peer pressure				Marianne: Uh huh.	accord accord	Marianne: Uh huh.					Miss. Marsh: ... an the behaviours that are there. And that could be for all things, it could be for behaviour, it could be how they're working in they're different subjects erm... an I suppose that's when ya know you're sorta dealing with parents an you're speaking wi individual teachers an erm... if cases arrive erm... you're doing sort of round robins sorta things, well how they getting on in your class, your class and your class? And then getting parents in and having a chat about what the issues are.	further elaborates elaborates further	Miss. Marsh: ...and ya can meet parents and er speak to parents about that and they're sending them out the door in plenty time to get here but they're meeting up with their people and they're, you know, following the crowd...	positive parent influence peer associates peer pressures	scumming to peer group pressure		tenuous communication	peers influencing peers' behaviours peers influencing peers' behaviours classroom behaviour peer cliques in class parental influence chasing up tenuous a chain of communication pooling of insight parental involvement problems/ challenges
agrees	Marianne: Aye.					Marianne: Uh huh.	accord
elaborates further	Miss. Marsh: ...erm and they go a wee bit like sheep an I think in the job that I've been doing as well in terms of supporting them into positive destinations, especially with forth years, erm you know some of them do you want to leave? and it's like naw I'm not leaving cause they're still really nervous about leaving, they're still quite young and going out into the big bad world wi people they don't know an adults they don't know... they don't know who'd been in their class whereas it's safe here.	peer associates - giving into pressure instilling aspiration final year of compulsory education anxious/ facing uncertainties leaving the safety net of school daunting/ unfamiliar daunting/ unfamiliar leaving the safety net of school	nurturing		convoluted and diluted interventions	Miss. Marsh: And hopefully they can get ironed out that way. But there's like a whole process of like tracking and monitoring that we have and we erm...we need to get better at that. We were talking about that at the meeting the other night cause maybe say for example...erm... it's third year reports we've been doing just now, they haven't really had a report or any information about how their child has been getting on up until this point...	further elaborates
		taught to be aspirational				Marianne: Uh huh.	accord accord	Marianne: Uh huh.	school as a safety net				Miss. Marsh: ...so we need to get better at maybe half way through the year pulling together information and sending out like a kinda... eh... one page sorta type report so at least the parent knows are they on track, are they not on track, and if they want to sort of chat more about it they could phone the school and find out.	self reflection elaborates further	Miss. Marsh: They're a bit nervous about that but it only takes maybe two or three of them to say er... I gonna fill in that application form and then they'll talk to their pals and then all of a sudden it's like more of them start coming I think I'll leave, I'll think I'll leave.	anxious peer associates peer associates peers influencing peers peers influencing peers				Marianne: Hmm.	accord
accord	Marianne: Hmm.					Marianne: Hmm.	accord elaborates	Miss. Marsh: An in the last few years you maybe had that and then

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
reassuring the participant introduces new topic accord further elaborates on question posed accord concur further elaborates interrupts sighs rationale	Miss. Marsh: But yeah, I don't know, I think I've diverged off there... Marianne: No, no, it's fine, it's great. Another question or another area we talked about was pupil's relationships with teachers and I thought it was really interesting, one of the questions I asked them was: are there teachers that you trust? Miss. Marsh: Yeah. Marianne: And then we kinda got into conversations about the kind of qualities they look for in teachers which was really interesting because there was this kind of... well one of the themes that came through, particularly when we talked about pastoral care and the role that they play and I think there is a assumptions made about how teachers should be with pupils. So in some cases, they talked about...well one participant in particular talked about one department and how in this one department they treat you like family... Miss. Marsh: Uh huh Marianne: ...and they were talking about how and why they really liked that subject and because of their relationship with the teacher which sounded very maternal... Miss. Marsh: Aye, kinda community type. Marianne: Yeah, and I think it's interesting that a lot of the kinda things that came through about teachers that they preferred and teachers that they didn't like, it was based on trust and that they would go to this person. And I think there is something interesting there about this assumption that they make, because obviously as a teacher, you're there to teacher students, but then if the pupils are looking for this other role for you to play in terms of... Miss. Marsh: You know, it's really interesting that you brought that point up because ...[sighs] och you know every teacher is different, everybody's personalities are different and ya deal wi kids maybe in different ways but erm I don't really think like all the shouting an	reciprocity	sense of belonging as a catalyst for flourishing and enchantment	austere and strict vs. compassion and nurturing flourish within boundaries - knowing the limits teaching styles promote reciprocity trust gained incrementally a lack of consistency, trust and belonging seeking consistency seeking additional roles in teachers - maternal/ paternal figures	all that and dead strict strict strict. I mean I think kids like it when there's firm boundaries and they know but that... some teachers can establish that really really well just with they way that they are and being firm but without doing all the shouting and bawling and erm... we've... there's a policy in the school an  City Council are trying to bring this out in all schools about nurture... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...an eh there's a big thing about the fact that... [Interview interrupted by visitor] Miss. Marsh: ...erm so...basically you know there's a lot kids from kinda needy backgrounds and John Hepburn actually takes the first years, who, they work with the educational psychologist and the one's who have had like attachment disorder and who maybe need a lot more nurturing erm... he kinda works with them and maybe works with it and sees them every day so he's kinda like a sort of attachment teacher, for them to attach to when they first come to  [name of school omitted] and gets to know them throughout the whole of first year. Marianne: Hmm. Miss. Marsh: And hopefully that will kind of help to settle them in. But we're all encouraged and we've all had training sort of in the school with the educational psychologist and various different people on nurture principles and eh obviously sort of being positive and nurturing them along and that's maybe where the community feeling an family feel that maybe some of the kids are trying to talk about....erm where that's coming from. Marianne: Uh huh. Do you feel like there's ever a tension then between wanting to preform as a teacher but then also wanting to have that sort of nurturing side? Miss. Marsh: Yeah. But if you can make the kids feel safe and if they can feel like they're in a family or small community in the classroom	strict/ intimidating/ austere aware of limits establish respected limits establish respected limits strict/ intimidating/ austere formal teaching initiative formal teaching initiative deprived lack of trust/ neglect/ separation anxiety build up trust/ attachment incrementally consistent presence of trust build up trust/ attachment incrementally consistent presence of trust feel more confident to fulfil a nurturing role incorporating nurture into teaching sense of belonging sense of belonging/ acceptance pupils build up trust/ security belonging physical location of security and trust	accord interview interrupted continues with anecdote accord elaborates further asks follow up question concur and elaborates

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes
	then you're gonna get more out of them. Hopefully that's the kind of environment that they would thrive in and achieve their full potential. Marianne: Right, okay. Miss. Marsh: But obviously it's a big school and there's different classes, different departments and everybody's personalities and things are different so as with everything it's really hard to get a consistent approach... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...across the whole school and I suppose that's what the management and things, and the leadership, you know, try to get through to everybody. Marianne: Uh huh. Can I just confirm one thing with you, because this was something that came through in the interviews but I wasn't quite sure about so just to double check. The pupils told me the school has four Houses and within each House there is one pastoral care per House, is that right? Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Yeah. End [Interview postponed]	trust as catalyst for reciprocity and achievement nurture roles not consistently invested in across the school	sense of belonging as a catalyst for flourishing and enchantment

Interview Six

Part Two

Date: 27/3/15

Duration: 60.04 minutes

Miss. Marsh

Marianne

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
re-introducing the interview and where it was left off accord hesitant accord elaborates accord further elaborates laughs accord further elaborates	Marianne: So where we left off last time was thinking about young people's behaviour and what influences them, and I think that's where we had to cut the interview short. So I'd like to start of today by asking a bit about your role at the school. You said you're Head of Inclusion... Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: ...and if you could give me a description of this role and how long has this school had this role in place. Miss. Marsh: Right... erm... well I work as apart of the pupil support team... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...so you met the pastoral care teachers, there's four of them, and there's one of each of the Houses. We've already talked about that. And then there's also within the pupils support team... erm... a PT behaviour support. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: And... there's also a PT wider achievement and raising attainment so we're all kinda there to support the pupils in doing the best that they can. Erm... and I suppose my role is as PT inclusion er...it's kinda like a funny title [giggles] and Iv been kinda making it up as Iv been going along really to be honest. But erm canna really working quite closely with the pastoral care team...and maybe doing alternative courses and being able to identify a lot of the young people who are maybe going to struggle as they go through school... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...erm sorta getting to know them early on when they first come in and at that point in time erm John [nurture teacher] actually does a lot with nurture erm... to do with the first years. So any ones that are identified along with the educational psychologist	support network - a dedicated faculty	seeking security resourcing security equipping young vulnerable people	fostering bonds - consistency through alternative educational provision attempting equipping vulnerable young people to flourish through mobilising agency and confidence	and things erm... they be using... working with him in a nurture program so like he's a... a... teacher that they can attach to to support their transition as they move into secondary... and I also do the  Award [name omitted] wi the first year groups...er... and that's part of their elective er...so you get to know some of the first years then. And then I suppose as their moving through the school the XL Club is... sort of really targeting young people who erm... might have certain barriers that might er... they might find it difficult to reach a positive destination when they leave... Marianne: Hmm. Miss. Marsh: ...so they might erm not being in education, employment or training when they leave school and that's obviously part of my big job in the school is kinda maybe more at the other end when they leave to try and support positive destinations cause the school... schools now a days it's not just about the highest... the most number of Highers an getting young people into university and things erm... it's about also er...looking at their destinations and where young people go when they leave. And you don't want anybody to be sitting unemployed and not doing anything and er... you work very closely with Careers Development Scotland cause they do, usually about September October time there's a special date and they capture information about everybody that's left and where they've gone. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: So I suppose really is to try and eh ensure that everybody's prepared for when they leave an have got erm... skills and qualities and they've got things that they've achieved when they've been at school erm...and that they're able to talk about them and talk about their successes. Erm...but also have like early interventions so if they are in danger of not being education or employment when they leave, you know you've done things prior... identifying them early like in first year, and putting in like wee alternative programs or sign posting them to different organisations for support erm... to just kinda keep them in engaged in school, engaged in learning... erm and sorta hopefully happy that they	further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates

- support network for pupils
 PT behaviour support teacher (internal) PT achievement and attainment (internal) PT inclusion (internal) Pastoral care teachers (internal) Nurture and attachment teacher (internal) class youth worker (internal) Educational psychologist (internal) 16 plus activity coach (external) Skills Development Scotland coaches (external)

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	make the best they can. fostering aspiration Marianne: Hmm. Miss. Marsh: Like with the education that they've got an also I suppose helping them to think about right what is it you want to do when you leave, what's your strengths, what's your interests, what jobs or careers might suit those interests and obviously your abilities as well so it's not something that's sort of I want to be a lawyer but really they're not gonna make the grades you know to get that. But working closely with the partners in order to do that erm... so I also do like the work experience in the school so like the forth year XL that you've been working with, they maybe did work experience earlier on in forth year but they also... the rest of the S4, 5 and 6 pupils get a chance to do it after their exams... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...so they... we're planning their placements for June. Erm... I also work really closely with the erm... 16 plus activity coaches so I kinda chair the More Chances More Choices committee. So a lot of the young people that are referred to 16 plus coaches through that an the STS work coaches are young people who are leaving but maybe their attendance at school isn't very good or maybe they don't attend school at all so they 16 plus activity coaches, there's a... what we call a risk matrix and the kids are identified on the system... erm and it's all to do wi like young people identified as vulnerable measuring vulnerability and possible struggles their attendance an eh... health issues, have they got English as an additional language erm... things that they might have been involved with in the community, additional support needs. All that information is on there and it rates them red, amber or green. So you can change that if there's information that you can add in if ya think all somebody's down there as green but they should be red, you can certainly change that a wee bit erm... but that's how you can identify those most at risk of not erm... meeting a positive destination and certainly the ones that don't attend or come to school at all, we can refer them to  [name of male support worker], he's our 16 plus activity coach.	supporting and mobilising aspirations, assets and enchantment				Marianne: Right, okay. Miss. Marsh: So he actually can go to the house and work not just with the young person but wi the family erm... and they do maybe programmes where they have summer leaver or winter leaver programmes and try to engage them in something to help them get ready to move in to maybe a training place and they have all sorts of different ones, like stage ones and then it's like a pipeline you know they can move from stage one to stage two, and there's some young people you know who have maybe got mental health issues that don't come or all sorts of barriers erm but there's maybe like generations in the home, you know, where maybe nobody's worked or nobody's had a good experience of school... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...so why should they come kind of an idea or why should they be bothered about going out tae work cause when no body else has so there's that kinda lack of aspiration... Marianne: Hmm. Miss. Marsh: ...er or you know thinking high. So he kinda like... we can deal with the ones that are coming or coming of a fashion and do our best there to create programmes in the school that are gonnie engage them and keep them going but obviously if they're not coming at all then we cannie really do that so he can work wi the homes and er...the young people and their families and things. Get them engaged with that kinda stuff and then the Skills Development Scotland work coaches erm... they maybe take the ones or work with the ones who maybe come to school but maybe just need a wee bit more support. So maybe erm... maybe if they're a bit nervous about going to an interview or they wouldn't know where it was and they would maybe take them and eh... on the first occasion or you know say look this is what this training programme is like, this is where Swamp is erm... and this is the kinda work they do there, do you think you'd like to work there and eh... eventually kind of through a big supported programme kinda get them eh... engaged in something like that when they leave. So I suppose here that's

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	the kinda end goal, it's like positive destinations for everyone and to achieve aspirations to achieve aspirations/ to be participating then you're trying to identify the kids to go through the school, like if target/ hidden vulnerabilities they're dipping down in attendance, why or what issues that they've not attending/ participating problems/ vulnerabilities/ barriers to participating got, right lets put other things in to place to try to support them... supportive interventions/ mechanisms					young people who might not make a positive destination and it's vulnerable futures/ transitions/ not participate trying to get eh...what they described in their training is a rich mix, so it could be there's not suppose to be all the ones with forming a diverse group not a concentration of one particular vulnerability behavioural difficulties cause that tends not tae work but maybe there are ones wi challenging behaviour...maybe there are ones that have got erm... learning difficulties, maybe there are ones that really lack in confidence and self esteem er... or maybe they've got agency agency issues at home, family issues or whatever...and in that small group they can...they're suppose to come together as a team and sort intimate - safe of leading their own learning...erm...and sorta trying to keep them collaboration - recognising their own roles/ skills engaged in education. So in order to do that...erm... we maybe do promoting autonomous learning enchanted motivated to learn motivated to learn like enterprise projects and community projects and erm... sorta entrepreneurial working with various different people... increasing confidence in communication
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.				diverse vulnerabilities
further elaborates	Miss. Marsh: ...and eh... try and keep them engaged as much as you can and give them the skills and the qualities to a smooth transition. fostering enchantment equipping them agency achievable and meaningful to achieve aspirations	supporting and mobilising aspirations, assets and enchantment			agency promoted through alternative autonomous learning accord	Marianne: Hmm.
asking to confirm	Miss. Marsh: I hope... I don't know if that makes sense.				autonomous learning to empower and enchant confirms and enthusiastically reassures participant asks related question	Marianne: No that's been amazing. Can you...obviously I would have her if Maddy [classroom youth worker] was here so could you maybe just describe Maddy's role in the class. So she's a youth worker...does she work in other schools? Or is it just this school?		cultivating classroom culture				accord hesitant	Miss. Marsh: Er... I think she did in  [another high school in the same city] for a short space of time but I don't think it lasted there for whatever reason. So as far as I'm aware it's mainly... it's just youth work dedicated to this school [name of this high school]...				conviviality through fostering an informal community culture		elaborates further asks follow up question	Marianne: And is it just the XL group she works with or are there any other classes?						accord hesitant elaborates	Miss. Marsh: Erm... yeah. When I first came to  [name of this high school] sort of... well just to kinda put ya in the picture... the Prince's Trust XL Clubs erm... they're suppose to be a wee bit more informal than a normal kind of classroom that you would maybe have in school. And I suppose the idea is that there's like a small group who are identified and erm... identified as maybe not going to reach a positive destination when they leave... alternative learning space/ classroom culture principles intimate - safe vulnerable vulnerable futures/ transitions at risk of not participating/ facing barriers	intimate and safe community culture					elaborates further
interview interrupted	[Interview interrupted]
	Miss. Marsh: ...er so, yeah... that's kinda like trying to identify finding the hidden vulnerable

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
elaborates further asks follow up question sighs	Marianne: Right, okay. Miss. Marsh: ... and em... maybe even... kids that have maybe... you know she'll say aw guess who I met last night and I didn't make the connection because this girl that we had last year in XL, her wee brother's going to the youth club. So...or you know I hink maybe youth clubs maybe have got more first and second years erm... so when we start the XL Clubs here in maybe third year, she's maybe met some of them or is aware of them because they've maybe come to youth club. So she's maybe got a wee bit of insight in tae they're community they've got. You know life...erm maybe their families, their family situations and things like that, so the idea is, you know, we would kinda work together. Marianne: That's great. So how long has the XL Club being going for? Miss. Marsh: Erm... well I've only been... I think this is my forth year at [name of school omitted] er... but I know it did run... it was...there was a teacher who took that erm...before me. And there was another youth worker at that time er...a guy called  [name omitted] who worked for  [same name of city youth organization omitted] and he had been that role in the school for a number years and then I came here and  [same name as above omitted] and I worked together, and then  [same name as above omitted] got a different job and that's when Maddy came along. So because the council sort of were... try'nae think... my previous job they had XL Clubs as well erm... and most of the clubs, the idea was when they first started them in  City Council was that they would be supported by youth workers and  [same name of youth organization omitted] erm... but just the way staffing and things went some clubs did maybe have a youth worker and some didn't. But erm.... [sighs] I'm trying to think... really eh... I've been here four years... I... I would say maybe eight years or something maybe they've been happening within  City Council but I believe erm...  City Council have to pay the Prince's Trust... a sum of money to run them within the council. And there's another organization called  [another youth organization name omitted] that used to be separate and again they deal a lot wi young people who	contextual insight partnership of formal and informal relationships	colloquial and formal interactions	support network syndicate	maybe don't engage in school for whatever reason and  [youth organization as above name omitted] and Prince's Trust are now become one. So when maybe you saw in the kid's movies, like they had a  [youth organization as above name omitted] day, like an adventure activities day erm...that they... they got all that for free cause  [youth organization as above name omitted] and Prince's Trust are now merged as one. Erm... so I can remember the question now. Marianne: Er... it was how long XL has been going for. Miss. Marsh: Yeah... so they have been going for a wee while as far as I know but some schools have maybe bought into it and staff have maybe been trained in it erm...and other schools have or then it's fell away... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...or eh... haven't. And I know that they do it in other authorities as well cause I've got a friend, she works over in one in  [local region] ...and she was at an event...that  [name of the event omitted] event and there was er... schools from  [another local region] , and one was suppose to be coming from  [a further local region]. And it's really interesting, you go to these things and you look round and I don't know who the young people are but I think, you know, they [the clubs] are maybe run in different ways slightly but the idea is all the same... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ... but I think at  [name of another high school omitted] they use it a lot more in the learning support department. So like in our school we've just got pupil support... the pastoral care teachers do pastoral care but they've also got a learning support role as well erm... whereas I think some schools maybe still have their pastoral care and their learning support separate and it's the support for learning teacher I think and maybe...they have in  [local region] home link workers so I take it they're a wee bit like youth workers and I think they're... they've got a role involve in sort	asks to repeat the initial question iterates previous question accord elaborates further accord elaborates further

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	of XL Clubs... have ya looked at the website?					Marianne: Uh huh.	accord asking to confirm	Marianne: I have had a look on the website. I also just wanted to double check, I'm still a bit unsure... X L what does it actually stand for?				diluting down care facilities through integration	Miss. Marsh: And what they want to do is, they want to include the government initiative young people, who maybe had those needs, within the mainstream er... so he ended up...he was out of a job.	elaborates confirms	Miss. Marsh: Erm... accelerate.					Marianne: Right.	accord accord	Marianne: Right, okay.					Miss. Marsh: And I think it so happened that they needed a PT Behaviour Support here so he managed to get a job here. And like my friend actually that I was telling you about that's in  [local region] , erm...she was in a... it was at [secure residential unit for young people offering behavioural support] and again that shut down. I think it was one of  City Council's but it was maybe a secure unit... I think maybe some kids stayed there residentially and that's... that's a lot of money to run a place like that... - specialist units viewed as a strain on resources - push for integration (?)	elaborates further elaborates	Miss. Marsh: I think X L is just short for accelerate and I just say to the kids cause they all go aw it's extra learning and sometimes er... aw you're in XL Club... like it's for kids who are not maybe so able or they say it's cause your thick or whatever and ya need extra learning or it's extra large and you're like... well I always tell them it's short for accelerate and I say well see if ya in a car and you're to put your foot on the accelerator, what would it do? It would go forward, well that's what this is about. It's about helping you to move forward and develop your skills and your erm... qualities and think about what you want to do in your future and make a plan about how you're going to get there. Ands that's the way I kinda word it to them to kinda try and take that way but... but all those things are still there. All those negative connotations sometimes are still there in the background kinda thing.	stigma - try to reassure pupils learning difficulties - stigma deficit-based learning difficulties - stigma deficit-based stupid reassuring the pupils asset-based asset-based - aspiration equipping enabling catalysing capacity and capabilities instilling agency - confidence aspirations becoming goal orientated reassuring the pupils/ defending stigma/ stereotyping stigma/ stereotyping - awareness of outside peer perceptions	embarrassed to be part of this group			Marianne: Uh huh.	accord asking to confirm	Marianne: Uh huh. Can I also just double check from the last interview, and you mentioned him previous today,  [male Nurture teacher name omitted], so he's... he does the Nurture group...	empower through seeking to nourish esteem and confidence - recognising own assets				Miss. Marsh: ...and it's all...you know the idea is why have those special sorta units or er... include in the school but it's difficult to get all the support sometimes those particular needy young children need, you know, to survive in a big sorta comprehensive like this... if they're...if they're troubled in any way but we do wer [our] best. And one of the new erm... sorta ideas, or I don't know if it's really a new idea, but one of the new erm...sort of initiatives that  City Council is pushing is the Nurture...	elaborates confirms	Miss. Marsh: Yeah.					Marianne: Yeah, I was gonna ask you about that.
asking to confirm	Marianne: ... is that his only job at the school or is he also a teacher of another subject?	part of support network - alternative provision - attachment and bonding				Miss. Marsh: ...and the Nurture principles erm...
confirms and elaborates	Miss. Marsh: Yeah, he is a teacher. He's a social subjects teacher... I think History or Modern Studies is his subject. Erm... but he came here as a PT Behavioural Support, he used to work in eh...sorta... behavioural schools for kids wi a lot of kinda needs there... but what's happened with inclusion is they shut all these places down.	teachers performing dual roles: care and teaching	stretched			Marianne: What are those? So this is a council initiative, what are the sort of rules?
					support network needs support	Miss. Marsh: Erm... I... I don't really know if there's any specific rules but erm... it's all about trying to create an ethos... a nurturing ethos... it can't just be aw you're in Nurture,  [male Nurture teacher name omitted] is the nurture man. You know, for that tae

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
accord elaborates further accord elaborates further interview interrupted elaborates on previous answer concur asking to confirm	work er...in, you know, for it to have an impact on the young people, it's got tae be something that's across the school. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: You know, that every teacher is erm... trying to bring nurture principles into their class and it's basically just getting on with the kids and jollying them along and making them feel er... worthwhile and wanted and er... valued, and trying to be, you know, as positive as you can with them to make them feel included and... and safe. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: We've got tae try to create that environment erm... so that they can do the best that they can and achieve their potential and obviously there are some young people that are a wee bit more needy than others...  [male Nurture teacher name omitted] and a couple of other teachers actually in the school,  [female teacher name omitted] done it, have done a course in Nurture. I've not done it. Erm... but they have done that as part of their CPD [Continual Professional Development] er... their professional development and they've got lots of courses to go to and they've tae write big essays and all the rest of it. But I think  [name of high school omitted] is one of the first secondary schools, I think it's principles that have maybe erm...happened years ago er...that have been in place in primary schools and especially wi the transition from nursery to... to primary but we obviously, you know, realise, you know, it's not just that transition. It's the transition from primary to secondary as well. Interview Interrupted Miss. Marsh: So... so I suppose [male Nurture teacher name omitted] works closely as well wi another organization called  [Scottish charity with assist marginalised social groups]... Marianne: Oh yeah, I've heard of them. Miss. Marsh: Yeah? You've heard about them?	classroom culture: instilling consistent belonging and security substituting bonds not made outside of school neglect imprinted and re-emerging in behaviour seeking to be valued			Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: So  [Scottish charity with assist marginalised social groups] did a lunch time club so any kids that just...get them out the way of the mayhem that's going on in secondary erm...and they can have their lunch and go tae a wee classroom and a lady from  [Scottish charity with assist marginalised social groups] is there and they just play games and sorta chill out an get on wi each other. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: But they also do a programme wi the primary erm... about transitioning, work wi the teachers to identify kids that are maybe gonnie struggle wi that transition... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...and they do a summer programme as well. So it could be kids that are looked after and accommodated and things. Staying in children's units and they've got difficulties at home or whatever...erm...and so, you know,  [male Nurture teacher name omitted] works wi them and knows who they are, that they're working with and erm...he's kinda maybe like...we talked about wi Nurture, we've had a lot of training about you know attachment theory and like the development of a child and how like their nurtured from zero to two is totally vital, you know. If they're just left in a cot and not given any attention or not picked up when they cry and things...it ends up that part of their development is maybe not how you develop if ya had been given a lot of love. And we can still see, ya know, sorta erratic behaviours or whatever...or even coming through in the teenage years...so erm... Marianne: So do you think it's maybe substituting something that's maybe missing outside of school? Miss. Marsh: Yeah I think because they've not had someone at that very early stage of development to attach too... this is what scientists and people in brain development and child development...	accord further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates asks follow up question to confirm confirms and elaborates

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
concurs	Marianne: Aye.					them up all the time [laughs] do ya know... informal/ fun interactions	laughs
	Miss. Marsh: ...if ya looked it up, you'd be able to read an awful lot about it.					Marianne: Yeah [laughing].	mirroring
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.					Miss. Marsh:... but no, he's really really good wi... wi them. informal/ fun interactions	accord
further elaborates	Miss. Marsh: Erm... but ya know, ya need somebody that's a reliable person, that makes ya feel safe and loved and wanted. And if they've not had that when they're like in their very early development, it becomes a bit... how do you, like, build relationships with people as you get older? Er... especially at times of transition... in times of change...trust	classroom culture: instilling consistent belonging and security				Marianne: Uh huh.	accord
accord	Miss. Marsh: ...erm...that can become very hard for them as well. So that's why  [male Nurture teacher name omitted] got maybe a couple of nurture groups an he works closely wi the educational psychologists and they identify them and they do some kind a... a boxhall profile they call it...	substituting bonds not made outside of school				Miss. Marsh: Er... and you know they can be quite challenging and... and things but he's really good with them and usually on a Friday afternoon he's got the mini bus and they go and play football in  [area outside of the city] if they're out...or at  park [a park local to the school] doing stuff and he does a lot of the out door learning and like  Award [an awards scheme] and things like that with them as well, erm...which I think he feels, you know, it's quite good for them cause they just need to get out and run around an...	further elaborates with rationale
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.					Marianne: Yeah. Is there anyone in the Nurture group who's also in the XL Club?	asks follow up question
further elaborates	Miss. Marsh: ...so it's some kind of assessment to see if nurture is something that would benefit them erm... so there's maybe like penny numbers that he's got tae identify... he's maybe only working wi two or three or four at a time...	encourage informal interactions				Miss. Marsh: Well it's funny you say that but erm... when the kids that you've been working with, in fourth year, were in first year, there wasn't really a Nurture group but I'm sure there'll be young people in there who maybe spent a bit of time with  [male Nurture teacher name omitted] in the base, like er... Sean (pupil from XL Club) will have spent quite a bit of time wi [male Nurture teacher name omitted] in the base and we've got support for learning workers, who aren't teachers erm but they work kind of in the base as well. There's one lady,  [female learning support worker name omitted], that a lot of the kids love. Sean talks about her all the time and there's maybe er... a few other kids that are diabetic and they maybe support them with like their medication and things they need to take so, you know, they always got somebody to go and see erm... so yeah I'm sure there will be... try'nae think in that group... I that forth year class... there's probably actually a few kids that would have been in that class that you maybe haven't met...	elaborates on previous answer
accord	Marianne: Right.					Marianne: Uh huh.
further elaborates	Miss. Marsh: ... and there'll be certain periods in the day in first year where they'll go to him in his wee base rather than eh...go to their normal class. So he becomes the attachment guy for them when they come to secondary school...	bonds established through informal interactions and novel activities - taking them outside school
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.					Marianne: Uh huh.	accord
	Miss. Marsh: ...and he has really good interaction, he just winds

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
confirms and elaborates asking to confirm confirms and elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates	[REDACTED] Marianne: Yeah...is she still at school? [REDACTED] Marianne: Right. Miss. Marsh: But we've been [sighs]... you know, I got her in tae college on a Thursday but she didn't really last that. She was suppose to go there on a Thursday afternoon. She... her pastoral care teacher was trying to get her into the  college [a new local college] which is a new kinda vocational college that's been set up by... what's the guy's name... it's  [name of the college]... so it's the guy... the entrepreneur guy that's got lots of money... he must have something to do with  [name of the college]. I can't remember his name... and the head teacher that was at  [another local high school] is now working over there and he's the head teacher at this school. So they do a lot of vocational type programmes with them and obviously literacy, numeracy and IT, the kinda basic core skills and it's only just started so everybody's waiting tae see how it works out erm... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ... but the idea is that they'll get them all into a positive destination... get them into apprenticeships and that they've got links with lots of businesses. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Erm... and they do a lot of interaction and a lot of project type work erm... wi different businesses, maybe a wee bit like that one you were hearing about today. It's like that  [name of business] that are building a hostel so they've obviously got a...	frustration when help/ advocacy is not taken up practical learning valued and prioritised catalysing capacity and agency	profit vs. vulnerability support and provision stretched support network needs support profit orientated agenda in advocacy profit vs. vulnerability support and provision stretched support network needs support profit orientated agenda in advocacy	businesses that have got a corporate responsibility to engage with the community so you can try and hook into that and see if er...I suppose that's how you build business partnerships erm but yeah so she's... we're trying to see if we can get her into that and then there's also a winter leavers course at  [name of another local college] but ya see when ya phone and no body answers the phone or numbers change and it goes dead... it's not quite as easy all the time... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ... to get them in, to help them to meet the application but erm... oh there was another wee guy er... that you've met once or twice... Marianne: [REDACTED] and then there were two boys... Miss. Marsh: Ricky is one. Marianne: Ricky, I've seen him a few times [in the XL Cub] but I've not seen him since after the Christmas break. Miss. Marsh: Aye... he's just fallen off the bandwagon totally. Marianne: And there was another boy as well... Miss. Marsh: I've tried to get him into different things, and so has his pastoral care teacher and I think he turned up for one but then he was half an hour late an he missed out an... Marianne: It's interesting because those two, Sophie and Ricky, I remember when we were doing the workshop... Miss. Marsh: They're both pals. Marianne: ...aye. But they were both like really getting into the work and they were doing it.	accord further elaborates agrees rationale

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
accord	Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: And they were quite responsive actually and just getting on with it. Miss. Marsh: Yeah, Ricky wouldn't do... aye he's quite passive. He's been involved in other things... somebody else... another guy erm... has been involved in the community... and he's got an older brother at school who's at school everyday. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: And he's trying his best, he's in sixth year and I just don't think Ricky can get oot his bed [laughs]. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Marianne: Right, okay. Miss. Marsh: So er... he's been working wi him. So hopefully... we're having a meeting with him next week so hopefully we'll get a wee update on how much engagement he's having with him erm... how they're getting on an seeing where he's going. Erm... so there was those two... try'nae think who else... Marianne: I've seen, I think he's called Ross? Miss. Marsh: Yes! That was the other guy! Marianne: Yeah, I don't think I've seen him this year [2015] either, like since Christmas.	inter-family cycles support network enlisting outside support - the need to work with young people outside of school dealing with more fundamental challenges occurring out with school	shift in priorities family/ sibling ascendancy break inter-family/ generational cycles of disenchantment	mental health growing up can signal a shift in enchantment - reach a certain age - change in how one chooses to participate	Miss. Marsh: And he was like, in second year, a wee guy who's like... just like a right wee proper man you know... and he had a wee bit of confidence and stuff about him and things but I don't Marianne: Aw. Miss. Marsh: ... an he's never looked the same boy as what I remember him being which is quite bubbly and things and I think he's maybe been involved in things in the community and stuff as well... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ... kind of at night time and you're like well he's anxious, that's why he's no coming coming to school but he's out and getting involved in other things so how anxious is he? But yeah, he's another one that's kinda... his older sister was in the XL Club as well. She was lovely but she I think went that way as well erm... she came to school most of third year, most of forth year and then it kinda fell by the wayside. Erm... so ya know there's... ya tend to see the same families and [name of a female work college at the school] jokes about that. Er... she'll say aye that's so and so wee sister in first year, that'll be another one for you fae next term! [laughing]. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Erm... so I suppose you're just trying to break the cycle and sorta raise aspirations and a lot of kids erm... you ask em how they find it... well you'll have ask them of the question... I bet a lot of the time they'll say they like the trips... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...like going out.	further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates relates back to a previous answer accord

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
conkurs further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates picks on participant's point and relates to new topic	Marianne: Yeah. Miss. Marsh: But the whole part... it's not just about going out, it's like you know you're trying tae get some learning experiences from that an talk about and review what ya've done and things but part of the reason of going out is, you know, to try and raise aspirations, not to sit in the four walls of the classroom, lets go and see stuff, lets go and speak to people, lets use that experience to do something in the classroom. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Er... so that they can sorta... cause I don't't think many of them maybe have travelled out with their own small area. You know, they maybe live in  [area where the school is located] or around this area in  [same area as before] but they won't travel into the town very often... Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...never mind go tae  [nearby city] for the day or... so you trying to kinda, you know, raise aspirations that way by giving them an experience that they maybe wouldn't have in their normal... sort of... sort of home life and their home experience. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Erm and sometimes ya think god all these teachers are thinking aw I do is take them on trips [laughing]. And the kids will tell ya aw I wana do it cause ya get tae go on trips so that's why I like it but there is kinda another side to that. Marianne: Aye, it was interesting when I was taking to the pupils about subjects that they liked and didn't like, something that came through right across the board with every participant was that they much preferred lessons and classes that are focused on practical learning. So they were talking about how they don't like being in classrooms where they're being taught at.	instilling aspiration through providing opportunities/ conditions to foster and harness agency anxiety over uncertainty: to leave locational safety net cynicism/ anxiety over alternative provision alternative modes of learning/ teaching not always valued	methods to instil aspiration cultivating enchantment	dynamic/ active and participatory learning designing classroom cultures to cultivate enchantment in learning	Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: So most participants said they didn't like English... R.E [religious education] was very common...everyone seems to hate that... Miss. Marsh: The teachers in there are quote strict as well. Marianne: Yeah? A few of them did say that they liked Maths and erm... and Physics was actually really popular, they were talking about how they get to do experiments and it's very practical. One participate in particular said that he likes being out of his seat... he likes dynamic classrooms whereas in other ones they described as not liking, they were much more static... Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: ... and I suppose was interested in asking them what motivates them to learn. And that was quite a tricky question for them to answer but they were actually really insightful... Miss. Marsh: Uh huh. Marianne: ...so I don't know if you have any thoughts on that. Miss. Marsh: No I totally agree with everything you have just said there. For... for that...for those kinds of kids and I think that's why the XL Club is designed to be a bit more informal erm... than a normal traditional class where ya sit down and shut up and write these answers or do this. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: But really across the board in learning and teaching and teaching and learning like, ya know, we're trying now to be a lot more interactive in the way we design our lessons, and whether that's using like IT and we've all got these interactive boards and some of the kids might come up... I don't know, I'm IT rubbish as you know, but they come up and press things on the board, these	accord elaborates with examples builds on examples asking to confirm - further elaborates accord further elaborates accord asking to elaborate concurs and elaborates accord further elaborates

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
asking to confirm confirms rationale accord elaborates further asking to confirm confirms and elaborates accord	interactive boards and erm... maybe, ya know, they all love Drama. making learning participatory - novelty/ gamifying learning Don't know if you got a lot of that? Marianne: Yeah. active, creative participatory learning Miss. Marsh: But I mean, ya pass the Drama class and it's like dead loud an it's like they're up and they're active and they're making movies or you know designing scripts and characters and dressing up an... erm and I think they like things like would work and stuff as well... active, creative participatory learning active, creative participatory learning active, creative participatory learning active enchanted/ engaged Marianne: Hm. Miss. Marsh: ...cause they're using tools and they're getting to do stuff wi their hands er... computers is a massive thing er... I think a lot of them enjoy sitting in front of a computer an... but across the board thought, even in like in the more traditional subjects like English an Geography and History, you know we're encouraged sort of as teachers to try an make the learning a wee bit more interactive and maybe a bit more practical and I think when you're dealing with the kinda kids are that maybe in XL, ya need to chunk things up and it's, you know, right quickly this is what we're doing today, right let's go. Right we're doing that for ten minutes, okay now we need to do this... active physical learning harnessing technology - popular enchanted/ engage harnessing technology participatory/ active participatory/ active compartmentalise learning/ achievements learning with tangible outputs achieved learning with tangible outputs achieved Marianne: So they can see that they've achieved something by the end of the day? Miss. Marsh: Yeah. And it keeps them a wee bit more stimulated and things. And... och wi the best will in the world I think with teachers, you know sometimes ya manage that and then sometimes ya don't and sometimes ya have something planned and it all goes totally pear shaped, the way ya didn't want it to go and ya just have to learn from that and think okay that didn't work that way but maybe another time we'll try it some other way... or do something a wee bit different. learning with tangible outputs achieved instils enchantment engage pupils reactionary trial and error teaching reactionary reactionary Marianne: Hm.	active and creative learning learning in increments so to view achievements pragmatic teaching strategies	eliciting engagement through small achievements pragmatic	designing classroom cultures to cultivate enchantment in learning participatory learning	crucial decisions for the future	Miss. Marsh: So... I can see why the kids would all say that. And it's actually interesting because the third year group that I've got... cause they pick their subjects every year... well when I say they pick their subjects every year, in first year... at the end of first year, they get to pick for second year but ya know, they'll be getting to pick between Geography, History or Mods, and they'll be getting to pick between Biology, Chemistry and Physics... they might do two or they might do one science. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: So they're still getting a broad general education but when they get to the end of their third year, that's when they're picking for what they get assessed in and what their exams are going to be. So that's a really kind of important time an they can only really pick and narrow down ones they've already done in third year. So there's columns, and they pick on form each column and er... XL's in the column wi Business, History, Geography and Modern Studies. So because XL is like a two year thing, they're told at the start if you're doing XL, you will have to do it in forth year so you won't get to choose one of those subjects cause that's the column it's in. Er... and it... actually ya know the social subjects faculty is a brilliant faculty an I think a lot if the kids really enjoy... because staff are really good and the teaching staff will really make a big effort to make their lessons interesting, interactive and practical... key decision a mix of vocation and academic formal assessment - gain qualifications in crucial time time of decision making stratifying decisions commitment teachers - instilling engagement in learning enchanted teachers - make an effort in classroom culture enchancing classroom culture engaging participatory active Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ... and they do things like the 60's and Hitler and... I think the kids quite enjoy doing but obviously because of my lot are in XL, they've not had...had a chance to do that. Just the way it works. So the deputy was saying aw maybe we should put XL in a different column which is at the end which has got Home Economics, Practical Craft Skills, Design and Manufacture, P.E or whatever. It's got a lot of practical subjects and I said well a lot of them would want to do one of them anyway because of the nature of how they like to learn... novelty novelty engage/ enchanted disenfranchised(?) stratifying decisions differently vocational subjects active/ practical learning	further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
concurs further elaborates concurs further elaborates concurs rationale concurs and introduces new topic concurs elaborates	Marianne: Yeah. Miss. Marsh: ...and the kind of subjects that they like. So I said to the third years look here's an option sheet, XL's in that column wi Business and Geography and Mods, and it's also in that column wi all the practical subjects. You have to pick XL once and you have to pick a subject in every other column, and there was only maybe one or two out of the ten that came back that had picked XL in the practical craft skills [column]... Marianne: Aye. Miss. Marsh: ... and wanted to do the Geography, History or Mods. So I was like well that's kinda evidence to show that the majority of them that are doing XL, it's better that they maybe have XL in the column and then unfortunately maybe miss out on Geography, History or Mods but then, ya know, they'll still have the opportunity to do another practical subject in that other column at the end. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: So I think that's the kinda learning, you know, that they kinda like. Marianne: Aye. Okay. So they're now in forth year and have exams coming up, I just wanted to talk a bit more now about them either choosing to stay on or leaving or having the winter leavers option as well, and I think what was quite interesting was when I was asking them about it erm... a lot of them knew what they were going to do and a lot of them were very positive about wanting to stay on till sixth year... Miss. Marsh: Yeah. Marianne: ... or erm...only maybe one or tow explicitly said that they were probably gona leave after fourth year. Erm... but in terms of choices... who do you think makes the choice whether they stay on or not? Is it solely their own choice, or do families have a big involvement in that or do teachers have a big involvement in that	engaged and enchanted learning through practical, active teaching			making the decision to stay on at school desirable - a privilege to choosing to stay on post compulsory education is an agreed commitment with conditions safety net of school - use as a threat means of leverage and negotiating behaviour and investment pupil decision making and parental influence decisions and transitions -teacher -pupil -family	decision making? Miss. Marsh: I think all three of them do really, to be honest. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: Erm... because [sighs] you know, we're not in the business of kicking people out of school but if a certain individual has been creating havoc er... and when they come back for fifth or sixth year they have to sign a contract about being a role mode and wear uniform and do their homework and working hard and er... all the rest of it. And that's, I think, the management's gambit if ya don't follow the contract, your over 16, you don't have to be here, we'll ask ya tae leave. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: But that's kinda like the last point of... you know they do everything else before hand, before that would ever happen and I think they use that as a carrot, you know, especially when they're in forth year, if you don't start bucking up your ideas, you'll no be allowed back. Marianne: Hm. Miss. Marsh: That kinda thing, so a lot of the kids think they're getting kicked out or they can get kicked out because people say that but they're saying that... you know... to try and encourage them tae change their ways and follow the basic school rules. So there's that side of things, there's also the side of things where a young person er... maybe decides that they want to maybe think about leaving and applying for college or whatever and they'll maybe speak to the careers advisor or speak to me... or their pastoral care and we'll be helping them to apply for college and then they obviously go home and talk about it at home and they'll come back and say naw my mum says I have to stay at school.... I'm withdrawing my application, I'm no going to that interview, and it's like well [sighs]... for some of them... maybe if they stayed on at school, their progression route is not gonna be any different form	accord sighs elaborates with rationale accord further elaborates accord further elaborates

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	where they're at right now. Cause some of them seemed to have hit their glass ceiling in terms of their attainment levels and they maybe... it's just lateral...progression and achievement plateaus Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ... they're moving along the same level. So if they went to college and did like an NC course [National Certificate course – first level courses] rather than coming back for sixth year, then like the next level would be like an HNC [High National Certificate course]. So they could be at an HNC rather than starting an NC if they'd stayed on at sixth year sort of thing, so they 'd be progressing on more. But at the same time, I think the young person progress/ advance in qualifications has to feel ready to go and...I don't...I don't think it's fair that, ya agency/ confidence to transition know, we force...nobody really says no, you no coming back. And never forced into a transition made to leave to the school safety net that's not my place to say that, that's the head teacher that would guiding transitions maybe say that and the only time that the head teacher would say that is if they've been creating havoc in here... and ruining other pupil's learning in here... extreme misbehaviour sabotage Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: ...erm that it's like okay it's time that maybe... this isn't the right place for you to progress anymore. It's no happening but unable to offer support unable to support them to achieve we don't just send them away. We'd find something else for them don't abandon/ neglect locate alternative provision to go to before... before. So it's like, you know, that thing about don't abandon/ neglect positive destinations again. don't abandon/ neglect during transitions Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: It's like, okay er... we're no kicking ya out the door like right now, don't abandon/ neglect don't abandon/ neglect guiding transitions let's talk about what your options are and let's make a plan for what's guiding transitions the best thing for you and your future because really wi everything guiding transitions helping to orientate goals that's been happening, we've been trying our best here, maybe it's not the right place for you and there's nothing wrong wi that, we're recognising when school is failing them just trying tae help you wi your future... guiding and supporting transitions and orientating goals Marianne: Uh huh.	judging when school is not the optimum environment to progress tailoring transitions guiding transitions and helping to orientate goals			Miss. Marsh: ... and so... find something that your going to engage in best and get on with best.guiding and supporting transitions and orientating goals Marianne: Do you have quite a lot of contact with parents in certain situation like that? I think the relationship between teachers and parents is quite interesting as well... Miss. Marsh: Yeah. Marianne: ... and how much contact you have with them. Miss. Marsh: Yeah erm... pastoral care teachers maybe have a wee bit more but I've spoke tae parents quite a lot on the phone about... support network contact with families contact with families things like or er like see like for example the young people that are not maybe coming to school or who are thinking well, you know, you have to come back in fifth year because your birthday is after the September, you're a winter leaver so what about thinking about this winter leavers course while I'll maybe phone up and say ya realize they've not been coming to school erm... there's obviously reasons for that... just wondered if you wanted to come in and talk about the options for next year? And kinda outline the course, would you like engage family as part of support network to apply for that? And sorta even just say look even if ya apply just guiding and supporting transitions and orientating goals now, I know you don't understand... cause I think a lot of the kids as well think if they apply for something, that's it, they're leaving. perceive it as having to commit to leaving Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: And I'm like no, just cause you've applied for something, doesn't mean to say your leaving, you know. You've got to... perceive it as having to commit to leaving naive to the entire process have your application accepted, you've got tae maybe go for an interview, ya need to pass the interview, ya need to be offered a place, so there's a whole lot of hurdles. And at any point in that step process, you can say no, I don't want tae do that. naive to the entire process Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: But you [the pupil] also don't maybe fully understand where it is, who the staff would be, you've not meant any of them, you've not seen any of the other people that are applying that you naive to the entire process unfamiliarity unfamiliarity - daunting	further elaborates asks follow up question concur concur and elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates accord further elaborates

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	might be in the same class with. unfamiliarity					year. So they'll get an appointment wi the careers adviser, and then the next thing their pal's along and then you know, then there's maybe anther wee flurry of two or three and then er... it only takes maybe one or two of them to say I've changed my mind and then the other ones saying naw I'm no going either. And then like... Mat [pupil in XL Club] applied for about two construction courses which I was quite surprised about, cause I didn't think that was something he wanted to do. I says have ya spoke to your mum about it? Cause his mum picks him up and all that from school, I think he's quite kinda nambie-bambie to be honest erm... and he says aye she wants me to stay at school. And I says aw wonder what will happen then if you get an interview... anyway so it wasn't till a couple of weeks later that he says naw I've decided I'm just gonnie come back, I've withdrawn my application. And Catherine has done the same as well.
asking to confirm	Marianne: So a sort of anxiety then?					peer influence peer influence peer influence confirms and elaborates	Miss. Marsh: Uh huh, so there's a lot of things you don't know right now. There's a lot of anxiety and questions that you've maybe got in your head about what it's gonnie be like and what would you do and who is it and who'd be there. anxiety of the unknown anxiety of the unknown uncertainties uncertainties uncertainties	anxiety fuelled by uncertainties				peer influence accord	Marianne: Uh huh.		safety net			parental influence family consulted elaborates	Miss. Marsh: Where is it. So if ya actually just apply, and then you go for an interview and then you'll meet somebody and you'll see other people that are applying, then you'll have that information. And then you're in a better position to make the right decision for you. Because you've gathered more information just by going through that process. So just cause you've applied, doesn't mean you're leaving. But that kinda thing is sometimes difficult to get in their... in their head. And when you [Marianne] where talking about the other day [in the previous interview] what effects their behaviour and their decisions and things like that, I think, ya know, their peers is a big thing in that. uncertainties making an informed decision empowered making an informed decision don't have to commit don't have to commit peer influence					parental influence
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.
further elaborates	Miss. Marsh: And I think what their peers are doing and where they're going and what their peers think is a big thing in that cause if their pals aren't going to college then they'll just go aw I'll just stay at school. They need to be a really strong personality tae think... peer influence - another safety net peer influence - another safety net safety net have confidence/ agency/ ability to go alone	peer influencing aspirations and transitions				support network - involved in transition decision-making bureaucratic agenda bureaucratic/ arbitrary agenda determinates	asking to confirm finishes off participant's sentence	Marianne: I can go on my own.						confirms and elaborates agrees	Miss. Marsh: Uh huh! have confidence/ agency/ ability to go alone						accord asks follow up question	Marianne: So do you see groups of peers going off the college together?						elaborates
	Miss. Marsh: Well... I would say maybe like from forth years, there'll maybe one that would say aw I quite fancy going to college next peer influence - another safety net alterer pressure to retain pupils	bureaucratic agenda bureaucratic agenda - other motivations to retain pupils targets accord
							further elaborates bureaucratic agenda not ready to leave early choose to stay on - safety-net forced to become independent still dependent on peers - guiding transitions

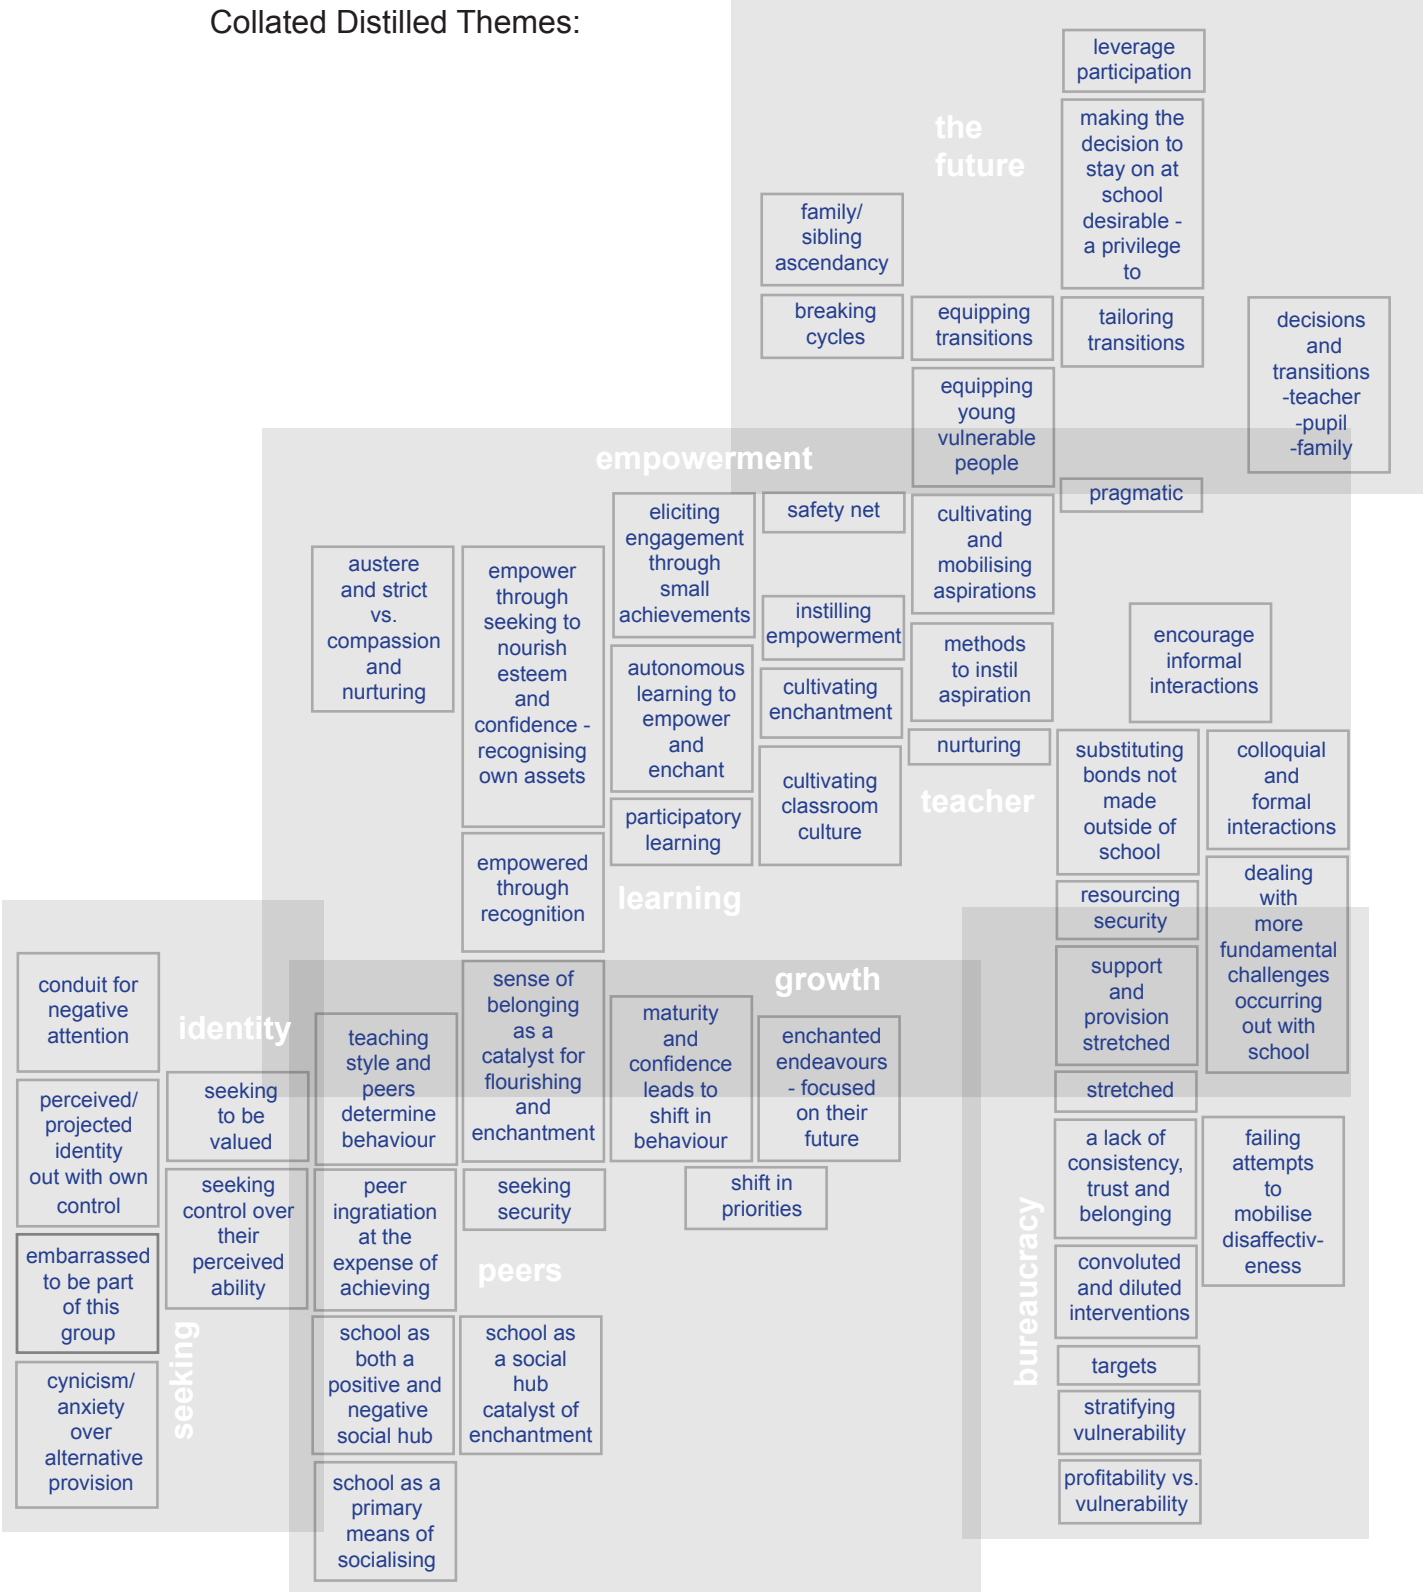

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	through the same thing an that's when they make the transition. peer influence - decisions in line with peers	peer influencing aspirations and transitions				Marianne: Yeah. One of the pupils mentioned staying on at school to get a bit of extra money and I assumed it was probably that. Do you think that could be motivation for some pupils to stay on or pupils, including those also outside the XL Club, maybe feel they have to stay on for that?
concurs	Marianne: Aye.						asks follow up question elaborates	Miss. Marsh: We're getting more and more people coming back for fifth and sixth year now I think, than what maybe we did ever in the past. higher retention asks follow up question	Marianne: Uh huh. Do you find ever there are pupils that will maybe go to college and then want to come back to school?					Miss. Marsh: Erm... I think... well not everybody gets it. They need to apply and it depends on the income that's coming into their house, weather they're eligible for that or not... eligibility
	Miss. Marsh: Occasionally but we never really let that happen. pupils wanting to regress	regression not an option				Marianne: Uh huh.	accord asking to confirm	Marianne: No?					Miss. Marsh: ... but that's not a bursary for coming to school, it's a bursary, they sometimes call it a bursary rather than an EMA, it's for being in full time education so if they're eligible to get that for coming to school, they're also eligible to get that for being in a full time college course. So they can still, you know, access that funding to support their education, if they're in a full time college course, but they must have excellent attendance er... and I think they're only allowed... Hailey [pupil in XL Club] knows this inside out, better than me... they're only allowed like... I don't know... so many days absence... conditions	elaborates further confirms and elaborates with rationale	Miss. Marsh: It's like well it's too late now, you know you've made your decision, you've left, your off the roll and erm... there's maybe one or two that aw I've got a job and we're like what? It last two days and then they come back and that's fine but they've not been taken off the roll but if they've been taken off the roll, it's just like naw you've made your decision, just keep going, keep going. But there is a big anxiety of that big wide world out there and you know if you've been in the same place, with the same people, the same staff for four or fives year then... pupils unable to regress employment change their mind - regress able to regress - not officially transitioned chosen to transition encouraged to follow it through daunting - the unfamiliar - going outside comfort zone familiar - comfort zone peer safety net teacher safety net			means of leverage and negotiating behaviour and investment
	Marianne: It's a safety net.			leverage participation	financial support - motivation to participate	Marianne: Uh huh.	accord finishes off participant's sentence	Miss. Marsh: ...you know, why push yourself to... I suppose it's like anything in life isn't it? If ya get into... even adults. Ya can be in the same job for twenty years and people maybe feel comfortable there and don't have the urge to go cause that's what they know. outside comfort zone comfort zone anxious and scared of the unknown/ uncertainties	anxiety fuelled by uncertainties				Miss. Marsh: ... or they don't get their money. So it can be an incentive but as a member of staff, you can use it as well as a carrot to make sure they get to their class and that they're there on time and their attendance is getting marked up. Cause there have been incidences where maybe they've skived a class or maybe they did'nae go to class because they were seeing another teacher about something else but they never told the teacher they were suppose to be so they were marked absent. And then they don't get their money. And then they come chap on the door at pastoral care... there's a flurry at a certain week... conditions to receive allowance leverage participate invested participate truancy conditions support network	elaborates further concurrency through example	Marianne: Aye. Do you do at this school the EMA maintenance allowance?
asks follow up question	Miss. Marsh: Yeah, that's like a national thing. money to attend school - motivation(?)					Marianne: Is there?	prompting to elaborate
						Miss. Marsh: Aye... I never got my money! You changed my	concurrency and elaborates

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	attendance!					meals or not, you know, nobody could tell the difference if your in the queue in the diner. But a lot of the young people, especially when they're a wee bit older, in third or forth year, tend not to have their lunch in there, they just want tae go to  [name of local super market] and have their lunch.
asks follow up question	Marianne: Aye... you know how much it is now?
	Miss. Marsh: It's 30 pounds a week I think.
accord	Marianne: 30 pounds a week.					Marianne: Uh huh.	accord elaborates	Miss. Marsh: But it just to be they got bonuses for the end of term but I don't think they get the bonuses any more. But yeah, they need to apply but there are other young people I think who could be eligible for it but their families don't seemed to have applied and I don't know... it's like free school meals. I think a lot of them would be eligible for free school meals but for whatever reason haven't applied... (rejecting ?) incentives to participate					Miss. Marsh: So maybe that's a reason why young people, or families who have young people who could get a free school meal don't apply. But then that's another thing that goes in that formula about the number of teachers that you can have in your school.	elaborates further Marianne: Uh huh.					So if you're maybe... a way of classing your area of deprivation that your clientele are coming from is number of free school meals, number that would get clothing grants erm... so if that's high then that justifies having maybe more teachers. So as a school, right, the head teacher will be saying I want [says in a whisper – inaudible] and I think pastoral care get that job as well sometimes, like chasing up folk that they think should be getting free school meals that maybe have'nae...it's not on the system but they're eligible for them.
accord	Miss. Marsh: ...but I think with a lot of kids there's a stigma to the free school meals and they all just want to go to  [name of local supermarket] or go to the [name of a local shop] and they cannie use their... get their free meal over there. They have to get it at the school diner.	identifier of economic status - ashamed - prefer to participate with peers		targets	alterer pressure to retain pupils elaborates further	Marianne: So if they're in the school diner, do people know they're getting the free school meals?	conduit for negative attention				Marianne: Uh huh.	accord asks follow up question	Miss. Marsh: Not... not all of them are. But, you know, you can't pass money over at the diner either, it's a que card that they have an there's obviously credit they have on their card so if you get free school meals, you know your number and your que card and you say your number and it's maybe so much a day and that will come off but if you don't get free school meals then there's a machine outside the office and they swipe... they put money in the machine and they swipe their que cards, so that tops up.	system to remove stigma				Miss. Marsh: I don't actually know how all that works but that's [in a whisper] just another political thing really. The world of education!
	Marianne: Right, aye.					Marianne: You mentioned there stigma, and I think what was quite interesting what came through in the interviews, particularly when we were talking about the XL Club...	picking on participant's point to relate to new question
	Miss. Marsh: So it doesn't matter whether you get free school					Miss. Marsh: Yeah.	concurrs accord						Marianne: ...one of the questions I asked them was what do you think other people who are not in the XL Club think about the XL Club? And a lot of what came through was people thinking it was for stupid people...
						Miss. Marsh: Aye. stigma surrounding class membership	concurrs

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
elaborates further finishes participant's sentence concurs elaborates agrees further elaborates agrees further elaborates agrees and elaborates further elaborates	Miss. Marsh: You know. They don't sorta say specific things like that. And when I hear them say confidence, I just think is that just a get out... is that just an answer... Marianne: A go too. Miss. Marsh: Yeah, is that just an answer you're saying cause that's what you think we want you to say. Marianne: Yeah, but I think then when they say I can talk to people... I think there's a fundamental thing there. It's the fact that they have the confidence in just being able... I honestly felt during the interviews, particularly with one or two, who I hadn't had that much previous engagement with and without wanting to give away who they are but I suppose in the context of what we're talking about it's fine. So particularly Steven and Mat. Miss. Marsh: Yeah. Marianne: Although I have had kinda little bits with Mat, but Mat was great in the interview as was Lewis. But Steven in particular, considering during the film project he didn't want to participate... Miss. Marsh: Aye. Marianne: ...he only participated in the origami workshop and that was the first time I think he said awww Marianne, would you come and help me and it was they way he addressed me by my name... Miss. Marsh: Aye, he asked for your help. Marianne: And I think that's really interesting as well. He was brilliant in the interview, really articulate and you know that was in front of David and Sam. And I think he actually really enjoyed it and he asked at the end aw are we gonna get to do this again? I really enjoyed it. And that was brilliant! And I thought then well this is the confidence that they talk about. Miss. Marsh: And ya see those conversations that you've been				empowered through recognition pupil's opinions actively sought in the interviews empowered through recognition struggling as a teacher to have this role	having with them? Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: It's really... I think that's what they really enjoy and they really really value. But it's really really difficult sometimes to do as a teacher when you've got the class in front of you, you know what I mean? Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: I think...because you've been able to take them out and into another room and they've maybe had like one of their pals there and they've built a relationship up and stuff with you cause you've been there quite a bit...erm... it's nice that they've been able to feel open to be able to say those things. Erm... but I wish that I could do that an awful lot more, like sometimes, if it's reporting time and things, I'll maybe pull them out individually and ask how ya think you're getting on and what you think your report is gonna say and what do you think you could improve on and you'll say well look this is what I've written and this is why I've written it. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: And do you agree. Or do you not agree or whatever. But ya never get round them all in the one period. And sometimes it all goes to pot and you don't get a chance to have those kinds of conversations... Marianne: One on ones. Miss. Marsh: ...with everybody. And being able to target set with them on a one to one. Cause like, say we'll...okay well that's been really good so what do you think you could do better? And like working out targets with them on an individual basis. Marianne: Uh huh. Miss. Marsh: I'd like to be able to do that an awful lot more but it's	accord rationale accord elaborates accord elaborates further finishes participant's sentence concurs and elaborates accord elaborates further

Collated Distilled Themes:

Maddy

Marianne

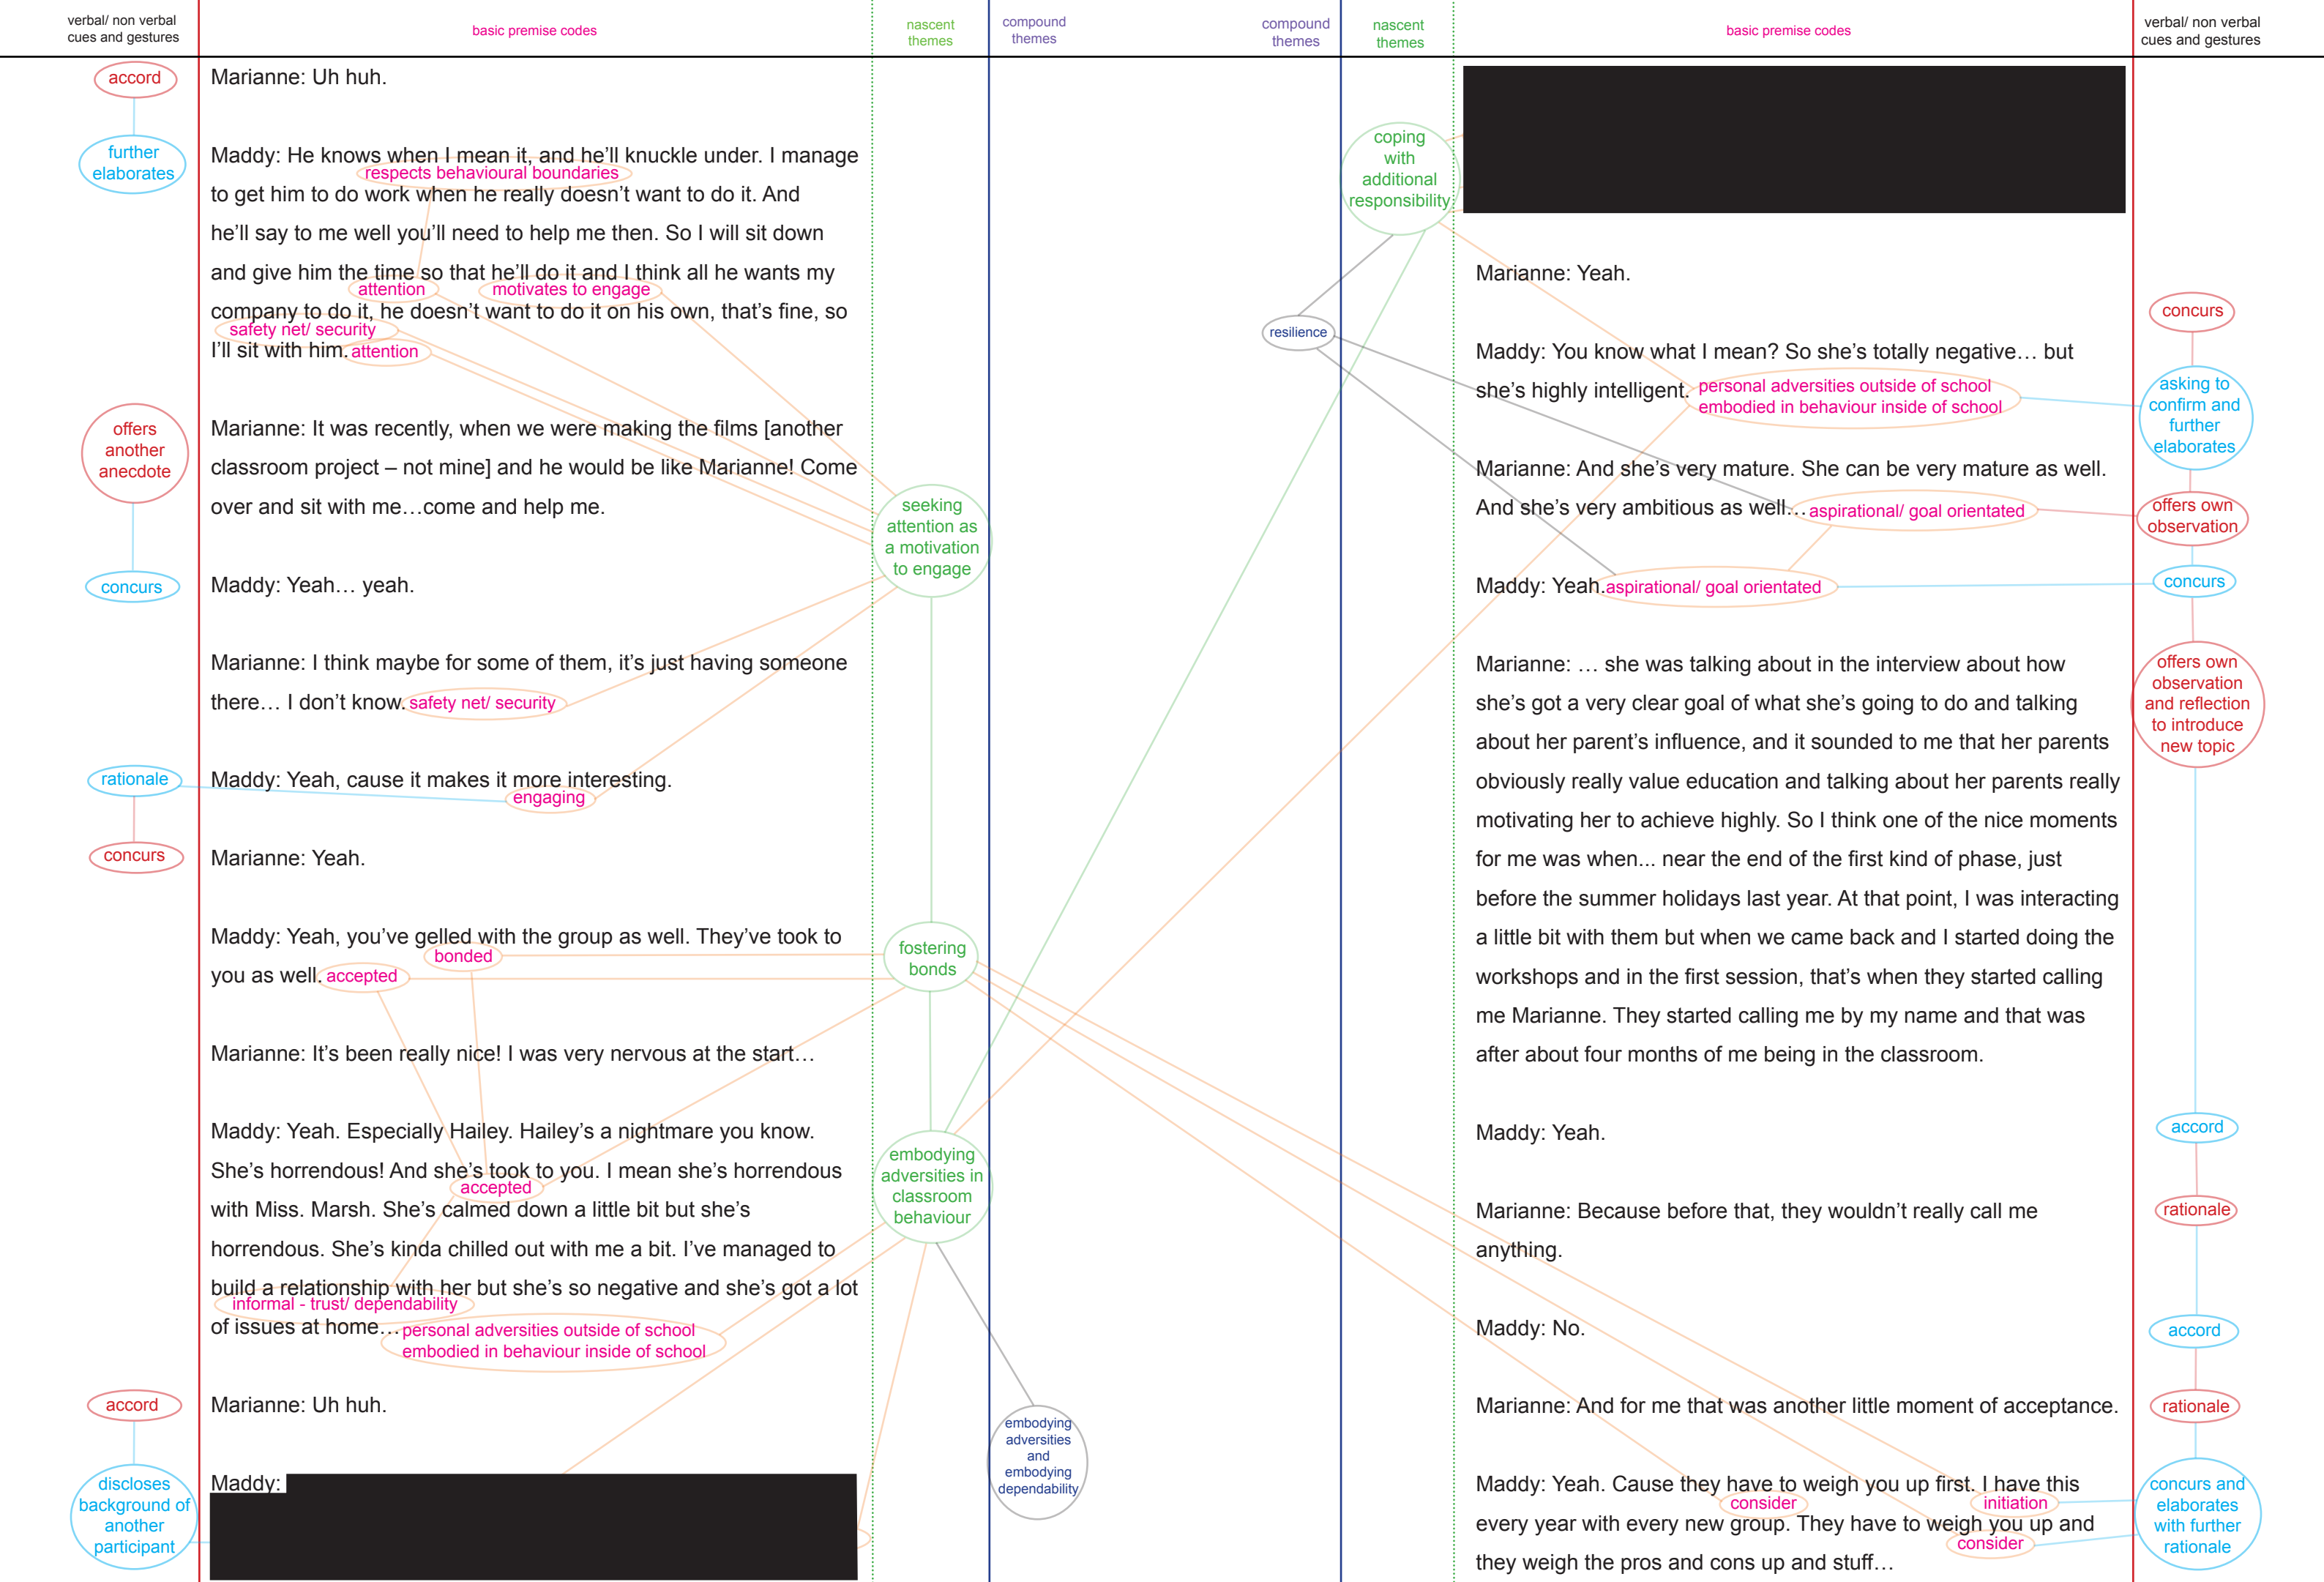

verbal & non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	distilled themes
introduces first topic	Marianne: So the first question I'd like to ask you...well me and Miss. Marsh talked a bit about this last Friday, is a bit about your role in the classroom. So if you could just explain a bit more about your role in the classroom and at the  [name of the high school omitted] and what you do outside of  [name of high school omitted] as well.
describes	Maddy: Right, okay. My role is in partnership with two organisations, and it's part to do with the government strategy and all of that. So I'm a youth worker, that is me. And I come to the school and I support Miss. Marsh with this class [the XL Cub] because they've got difficulties with learning and stuff like that.	support network initiative visiting support support network support with learning
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.
elaborates	Maddy: So I support her with the XL to help the young people excel and be good citizens.	support network support/ nurture instilling aspiration preparation for leaving school	preparation and aspiration
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.
further elaborates	Maddy: Our organisation, when we work with er... youth in youth clubs, we actually follow the same curriculum as the school...	support network engagement outside of school engagement outside of school - educate	outside of school partnerships accord	Marianne: Right, okay.
further elaborates	Maddy: ...right? So it goes hand in hand. We do workshops, drug and alcohol workshops er... more issue based than... it's more informal than formal education erm... we've just started to do the  Award [activity-based programme and award for young people] outside of school as well. Erm... we work with pre-5's all the way up to 25 year olds. So it's employability... we cover the whole spectrum of a young person, from knot [zero] up. Erm... with all different groups and that's how I came in the school, through the partnership working that we do.	support network alternative education awareness raising awareness and educating of risks alternative education alternative educational provision engagement outside of school pre-school age post school young adults preparation for post school transitions continual support and engagement as young people grow up offer groups for different stages support network	alternative educational provision engage through all stages of growing up and transitions asks follow up question	Marianne: Uh huh. Do any of the kids at this school attend your youth club as well?	informal and formal engagement (?)
confirms	Maddy: Yes.	informal and formal engagement	formal and informal engagement with young people

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
asking to confirm confirms elaborates with rationale accord asks follow up question concurs and elaborates accord concurs encouraging provoking participant to reflection concurs asking to confirm confirms encouraging begins rationale questions confidentiality reassures participant	Marianne: Yeah? Maddy: Yes, which works well because then we kinda communicate, me and Miss. Marsh will communicate, like I'll say... she'll say such and such wasn't in today but I seen him or her last night, they were fine... you know what I mean? Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: Sorta thing. Marianne: So is your youth club within this community then? Maddy: Yeah, well I work within three...one, two...one, two, thee that's within this community. Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: So, yeah. Marianne: That's interesting, so you must then have a different perspective, seeing the young people out in the community and then obviously in the classroom setting as well... Maddy: Yeah. They're totally different. Marianne: Are they? Maddy: Yeah. Marianne: That's interesting. Maddy: Yeah, that one child is totally different. Like... one of the young people that's in the class [XL Club] erm... [whispers] can I say names? Marianne: Yes, don't worry, everyone will be completely annoymised. You can say whatever you want, no one will be identified.	access to local, contextual knowledge partnership: inside and outsider knowledges mediating performances formal and informal settings indicative of performances and types of behaviours	partnership: inside and outsider knowledges mediating performances withdrawn vs. animated	can be strong contrasts in performances in and outside of school	Maddy: Right, Sam. Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: He actually goes to youth club. Marianne: Aw does he? Maddy: Yeah. And you know how he seems a bit grumpy and very solemn and... Marianne: He's quite quiet. Maddy: ...quite quiet. In the youth club, he's got a fantastic sense of humour. Marianne: Has he? Maddy: Yeah. And he... he'll...sit with me and he'll chat away and he'll wind me up and stuff like that and he's actually got a sense of humour. Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: And you wouldn't believe it. And little Sean? Marianne: Uh huh, yeah does he... Maddy: He's quiet! When he's in the youth club. Marianne: Is he? Maddy: He's the opposite. He's noisy in the class and quieter in the youth club, I don't even know he's there. It's like spilt personality. Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: It's how school affects the personality to how they feel in the youth club.	begins anecdote accord elaborates asking to confirm elaborates further finishes participant's sentence elaborates further asking to confirm elaborates further accord elaborates with second anecdote asking to confirm confirms and further elaborates accord offers a rationale

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
accord reiterating participant's previous point to confirm confirms and provides rationale asking follow up question answers and elaborates accord further elaborates in reference to previous anecdotes concurr iterates previous point concurr introduces new topic accord further elaborates on new topic	Marianne: Uh huh. So in Sam’s case, he maybe feels maybe more comfortable and relaxed at the youth club, whereas for Sean it’s not...I don’t know if maybe he’s more nervous or shy... Maddy: Yeah, yeah. He just likes to keep himself to himself and is very very quiet. Marianne: Uh huh. How often do they attend the youth club? Maddy: They were attending every week, I used to see them every week but now that they’re getting a bit older, they’ve kinda stopped. Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: It’s been a couple of weeks... two or three weeks since I’ve seen Sam and Sean hasn’t been for a good couple of months. But they used to come every week, regular. But every child is different. Marianne: Aye. Maddy: They’re all different. In the two settings [at youth club and in school]. Marianne: That’s really interesting and it’s nice that you can have those two perspectives on the same person. Maddy: Yeah. Marianne: Something that was interesting that came through from the interviews with the pupils, and something I’m sure you’ll have a lot of insight on, was their kinda perceptions of teacher’s roles at the school. Maddy: Uh huh. Marianne: So when we talked about favourite teachers and teachers they didn’t like, a lot of the stuff that came through about favoured teachers was about... well trust was a big deal and teachers that were really dependable. It wasn’t so much about teachers giving	shift in priorities and participation as young people get older performance and participation shifts with age can be strong contrasts in performances in and outside of school	support partnership: informal and formal engagement different degrees of trust trust privileged through non-authoritative relationships	them an easy time in that class... Maddy: No. Marianne: ... it was more to do with things like trust and dependability and with less favoured teachers... they didn’t like teachers that didn’t give them enough attention. And then Miss. Marsh began talking about Mr. Hepburn’s attachment role in the school, so I was wondering if you had any thoughts on teacher’s roles and your role... Maddy: That’s definitely... that’s definitely true! Because what me and Miss. Marsh find is, and we both know it, a young person will talk to me more openly than they will to her. Marianne: Right, okay. Maddy: They don’t... cause they don’t see me as a teacher, you know what I mean? Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: They’ll... they’ll talk more openly to me and I might find out more than what she does about that person and what’s going on in... in that person’s background. Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: It’s like one young person... again you’ll have to scrub out the name... Marianne: Yes, of course. Maddy: Dan? Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: He’s going through a lot of issues at home and one particular day he came in to class and he was really really... cause	concurr further elaborates enthusiastically concurs and expands accord rationale accord elaborates on rationale further accord begins anecdote - confidentiality concurr - reassuring participant concurr discloses background of another participant

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	it's very difficult, Dan... he can be dead chatty and interrupting and... this particular day he was really really happy. And I said are you all right? He said yeah, I'm fine. I says how's things? And erm... he says Marianne: Right, okay. Maddy: And... you know what I mean? And that's the kinda thing he wouldn't sit down and tell Miss. Marsh. He opened up to me, and that's me just saying are you all right? Marianne: Hm. And just having that moment together. Maddy: Yeah. And that moment together. And I said well you just let me know how you get on. So that's still over his head, he was a bit quiet today I noticed. So he has his quiet moments and he plays... I know why he plays up, seeking attention and stuff but that's the worries he's got and that's a lot. Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: even those he's a pain in the butt, I do watch his mood. Marianne: Yeah? Maddy:	copied with additional responsibility informal engagement evokes trust and dependability embodying adversities in classroom behaviour embodying adversities and embodying dependability actively performing dependability to reassure young people	resilience	contradictions in youth work's role - oscillating between informal and formal in the classroom setting mediates youth worker's behaviour/ performances preference for active learning as opposed to static mobilising and enchanting effects of active learning	Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: Erm... but yeah. But he told me that. And then Sam... he shocked me one day [laughs]. He went you're the best teacher in this school. As much as he's [inaudible] in class, he said to me in the youth club you're the best teacher in the school [still laughing]. I said yeah right okay, you're having me on, you are! Marianne: [laughs] Maddy: Cause I even talk different, I engage with them different in the youth club because I have got to be more formal in the class. I've got to get them to do the work even though they don't want to. Marianne: Uh huh. Maddy: And they really hate some it. Why do we have to this Maddy? Because you do. It's to progress, I know you don't see the reason for it but there is a reason for it. Marianne: Uh huh. What is the kind of work that you have noticed that they engage with more? Maddy: Er... the practical stuff. They like going out on the trips and the practical stuff but ya see when it comes to writing, they hate it. Marianne: Hm. That was definitely something that came through in the interviews. It was really interesting, they were really insightful when talking about different kinds of subjects and asking them about motivators... what motivates you to learn, what kind of activities get you excited to learn. And every single pupil talked about practical lessons. One in particular talked about hating being in his seat, he like to be up and active, so this idea of a dynamic classroom... Maddy: Hm. Marianne: ...not something that's just static. Maddy: Yeah.	accord a further anecdote laughing laughing laughs mirroring participant rationale accord elaborates asks related question provides examples concur and pulls on a previous example accord finishes sentence concur

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Marianne: And sort of figure you out? get to know you - place you in the hierarchy					Marianne: Do you start when the XL Club started?	asks follow up question
concurs and elaborates	Maddy: And figure you out. And see how far... they know they're not allowed their mobile phones out right, but they're plugging all their phones in the wall [what occurred in the lesson Maddy and I just took together without Miss. Marsh]. But I'll negotiate that, like I said right, get on with it, we need to get on with this class. Yeah but can we charge our phones [pupil]? Do it now, leave it alone [Maddy]. Whereas if it was Miss. Marsh, it would be no and they'd have to... and it's under the table and all of that... get to know you what your boundaries are making allowances leverage/ negotiate boundaries and rules leverage/ negotiate boundaries and rules for sake of work authoritative figure enforcing the rules illicit - breaking the rules	negotiating rules and boundaries to leverage engagement with work	reciprocity			Maddy: No, the XL Club has been going on for years. Cause my co-worker, he did it for about three years before me and he moved on to another area and got promoted doing another job, so I took over from him.	elaborates on previous point
accord	Marianne: Uh huh.					Marianne: Right, okay. Do you have interaction with the pastoral care team at  [name of high school omitted]?	asks follow up question
elaborates further	Maddy: ...but they're quite happy and they did the work. And I expected Hailey to kick off because she couldn't go and do the raffle tickets [she wanted to leave the class to sell raffle tickets]. But she asked me and I said well it depends what you're needed for. And then I said no you can't go and I was waiting for her [starts laughing]...	reciprocating trust through respecting allowances				Maddy: No, I usually do it through Miss. Marsh. in partnership with the teacher	accord
	Marianne: But it's so interesting because near the end I was aware we were slightly running out, but it was actually really good to have just a brainstorm with them, but she's the one who's coming up with all the ideas...					Marianne: Right, okay.	accord
enthusiastically concurs	Maddy: I know!					Maddy: If there's any information, Miss. Marsh will pass it on erm... to the pastoral care, if I've picked up on something, you know what I mean? insight/ contextual knowledge communicate links to the support network access to insight/ contextual knowledge	elaborates
	Marianne: ...she's so creative.					Marianne: Uh huh. And is there ever times when you notice things about the pupils when they're at youth club... information that would then pass on to Miss. Marsh? outside of school	accord asks follow up question
concurs	Maddy: Yeah.					Maddy: [pause] I've never, thank goodness, had to do that. Right. I've never had to that and bring it back into the school. So no. Cause sometimes I think if you do that, it's the trust issue. bringing the outside inside breaking trust	reflects and elaborates
	Marianne: Erm... oh I was going to ask you, so how long have you been at  [name of the high school omitted]?					Marianne: Uh huh.	accord
	Maddy: Three years now, this is my third year.					Maddy: Right, they've got a different trust with me than they have with Miss. Marsh. I'm more likely to get more out of them because I'm not formal education in their eyes... degree/ kind of trust performing a different role developed informal interactions/ relationships -performing a different role also shaped by them/ in contrast to the teacher	elaborates further
accord	Marianne: Right, okay.					Marianne: Hm.	accord
	Maddy: Yeah, it's my third.					Maddy: ...than what Miss. Marsh would. So if you cross that over completely, right, they will clam up, you know what I mean. forsaking this bond of trust become cautious/ suspicious - feel not able to share in confidence anymore	rationale

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes
	Interview ends as it interrupted by another teaching needing the classroom. After I stop recording the interview, Maddy walks me out of the school and tells me an anecdote of an occasion where this has in fact has happened. End

Collated Distilled Themes:

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
				sense of self worth controlled by others transform value imbued by association	internalising social stigma bring about change symbolic of value	Entry Twenty: 6/5/15 (1 hour, 50 minutes) Activity-based Focus Group  Today's session was the second last phase of the research, implementing the method of an activity-based focus group. Reflecting upon the insights gleaned throughout the other three phases of fieldwork, it was clear that whilst the participants often felt a sense of achievement within the XL Club, there was a common sense of shame and embarrassment. Through negative stereotyping by peers out with the class, such achievements appeared invisible and worthless. This insight informed the main activity of the focus group, where I proposed collaboratively designing a celebratory artefact in the form of a tapestry-style print design that could be hung in the school of the participants so chose. Explaining that the participants could use this to bring about positive awareness of the XL Club to the rest of the school and their peers, I also hoped this artefact would symbolically represent and restore their sense of pride.   Aware of the participants' apprehension of displaying their drawing ability, and informed by the interviews, I collected, as well as made, a range of images that I hoped would either inspire them or capture their thoughts and opinions. I encouraged the participants to either draw their own ideas or choose images to trace on blank shapes that resembled Scout or Girl Guide badges (which are also synonymous with award and achievement). I asked the participants to consider words and images that encompass their experience of being in the XL Club, as well as to symbolically represent achievements and their future aspirations. These badges would then become the iconography of the tapestry.   Revising past field notes and interview transcripts, I sourced images that represented, both physically and metaphorically, many of the key themes that had emerged – particularly in relation to their aspirations. I began the session by spreading these out across a desk to act as visual prompts. We then began brainstorming what this tapestry could contain and what message it would be communicating. The participants agreed that the tapestry should display key XL Club events and achievements. Ideas shouted 	attempting to reaffirm/ empower facilitator role

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	included images to represent their trip to the Velodrome; the school disco the participants organised; winning the science competition; and representing the Direct Animation project. When asked for images to represent their ambitions for their future, Hailey choose comedy-tragedy drama masks to symbolise her ambition of becoming an actress; Max choose a computer to represent his desire to become a software developer; Sean choose a games console representing game design; Sam choose a car to represent his ambition of becoming a mechanic; Dan choose the Royal Navy badge and Lewis the British Army logo; Steven a football as he wants to play football professionally; Meghan symbolised her ambition of becoming a criminologist with a magnifying glass. Additional themes the participants wanted to be symbolically represent included: the change of seasons; Scotland; the world; growth; transition; kinship; looking to the future; artist flare; science; some way of representing the school's identity through a coat of arms or shield; and religion (a theme which interestingly has not come to the fore before, yet Christianity pervades the identity and manifesto of the school, with religious iconography and customs prevalent throughout the school). I asked the participants to then draw these images, using any of prompts as guides or to go on the computers if they wished to source any other visuals. During the focus group, whilst the participants spent time talking about and drawing their badges, David and Joe chose to jointly create one large image instead. Relating to David's aspiration of joining the army, their illustration contained wartime memorial emblems including guns, poppies and a soldier's helmet. Due to time constraints, I was only able to facilitate the focus group over one double school period and as the last time I was able to see the whole cohort before they went of exam leave, I was going to have to assemble the final artefact away from the participants. With this in mind, and whilst making their badges, I strove to get as much direction and aesthetic information from the participants. As with the collaborative film, all the participants enthusiastically requested their names be displayed on the piece, also stating that Miss Marsh's, Maddy' as well as my own be included too. Suggesting my name be included to was another one of this fleeting yet enchanted moments, where I felt a real sense of acceptance rather than	recognition of own achievements conveying ambitions group cohesion through creativity claiming ownership gesture of acceptance				as it sometimes felt at the very beginning of this fieldwork. Nearing the end of my fieldwork, over fourteen months since it began, and finishing through designing a final celebratory artefact with the young people was also allegoric for me in terms of reflecting upon my own journey and development as researching-practitioner, as well as the research relationship cemented between the participants, gatekeepers and I.	my own self reflection performance of apathy

social
strategy

participants had slight gesture of appreciation returning artefacts to participants

Evaluation Event One

Date: 29/4/16

Duration: 55 minutes

Miss Marsh

Catherine

Hailey

Steven

David

Dan

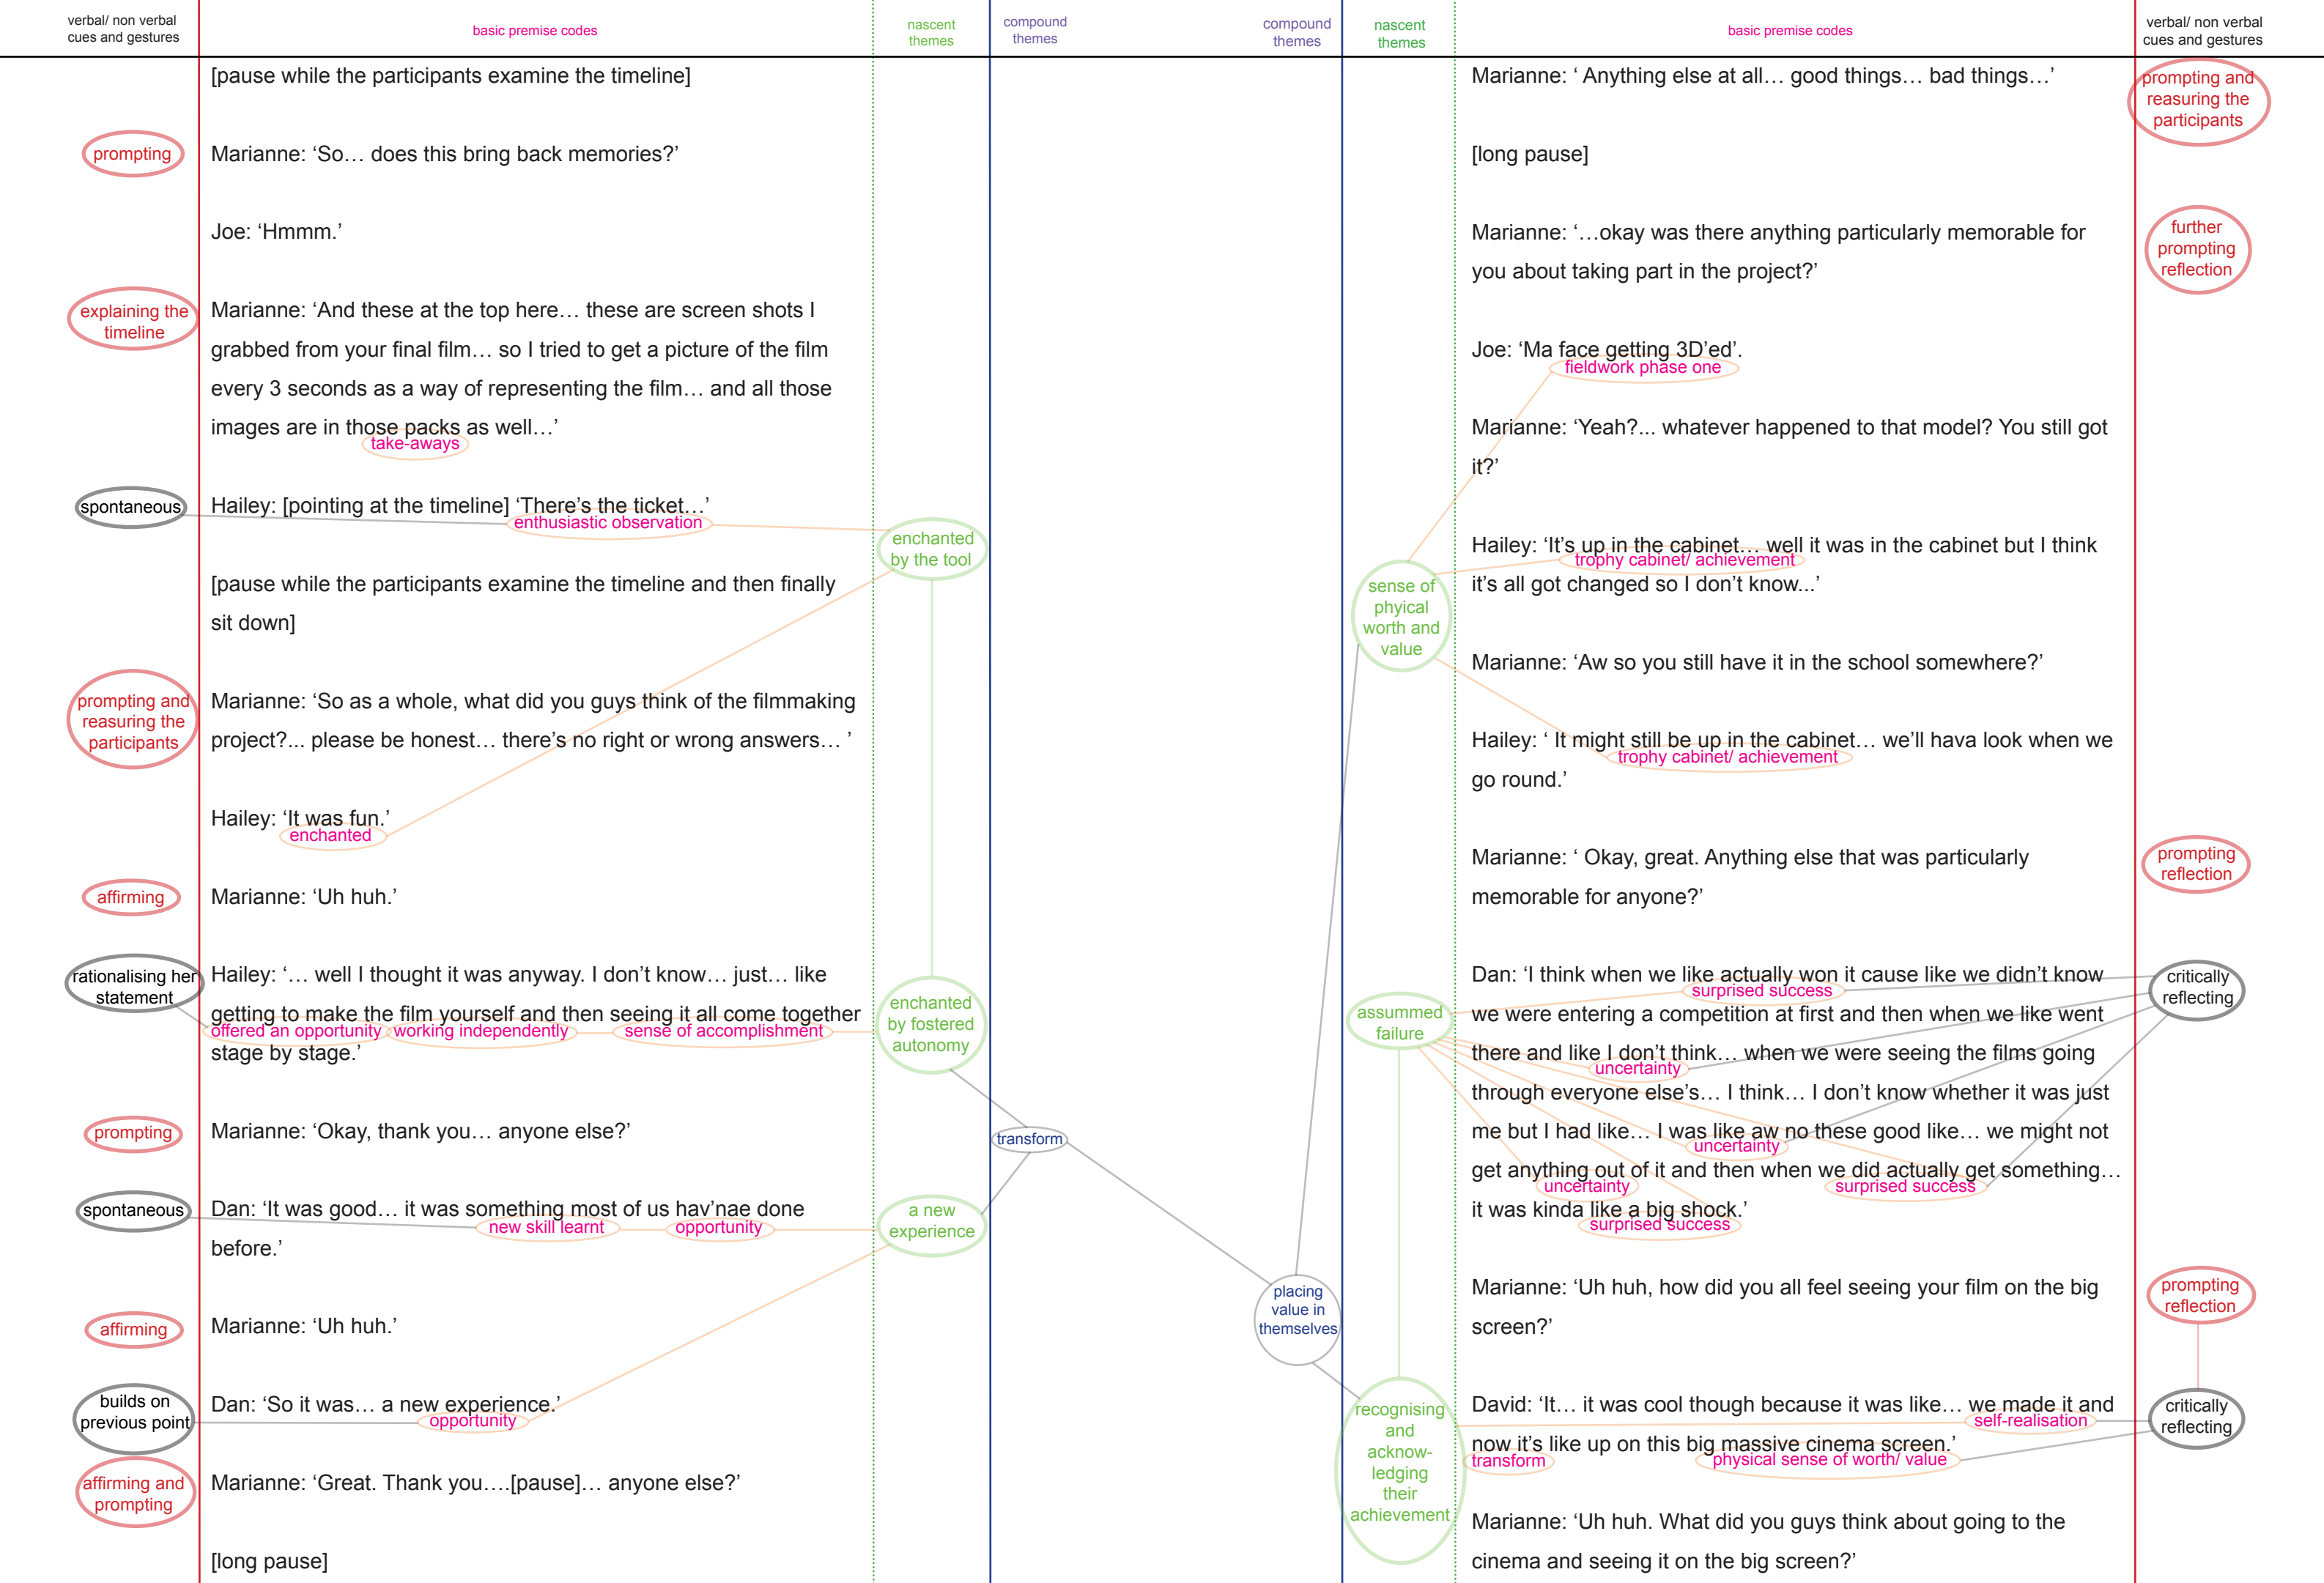

Joe

Lewis

Mat

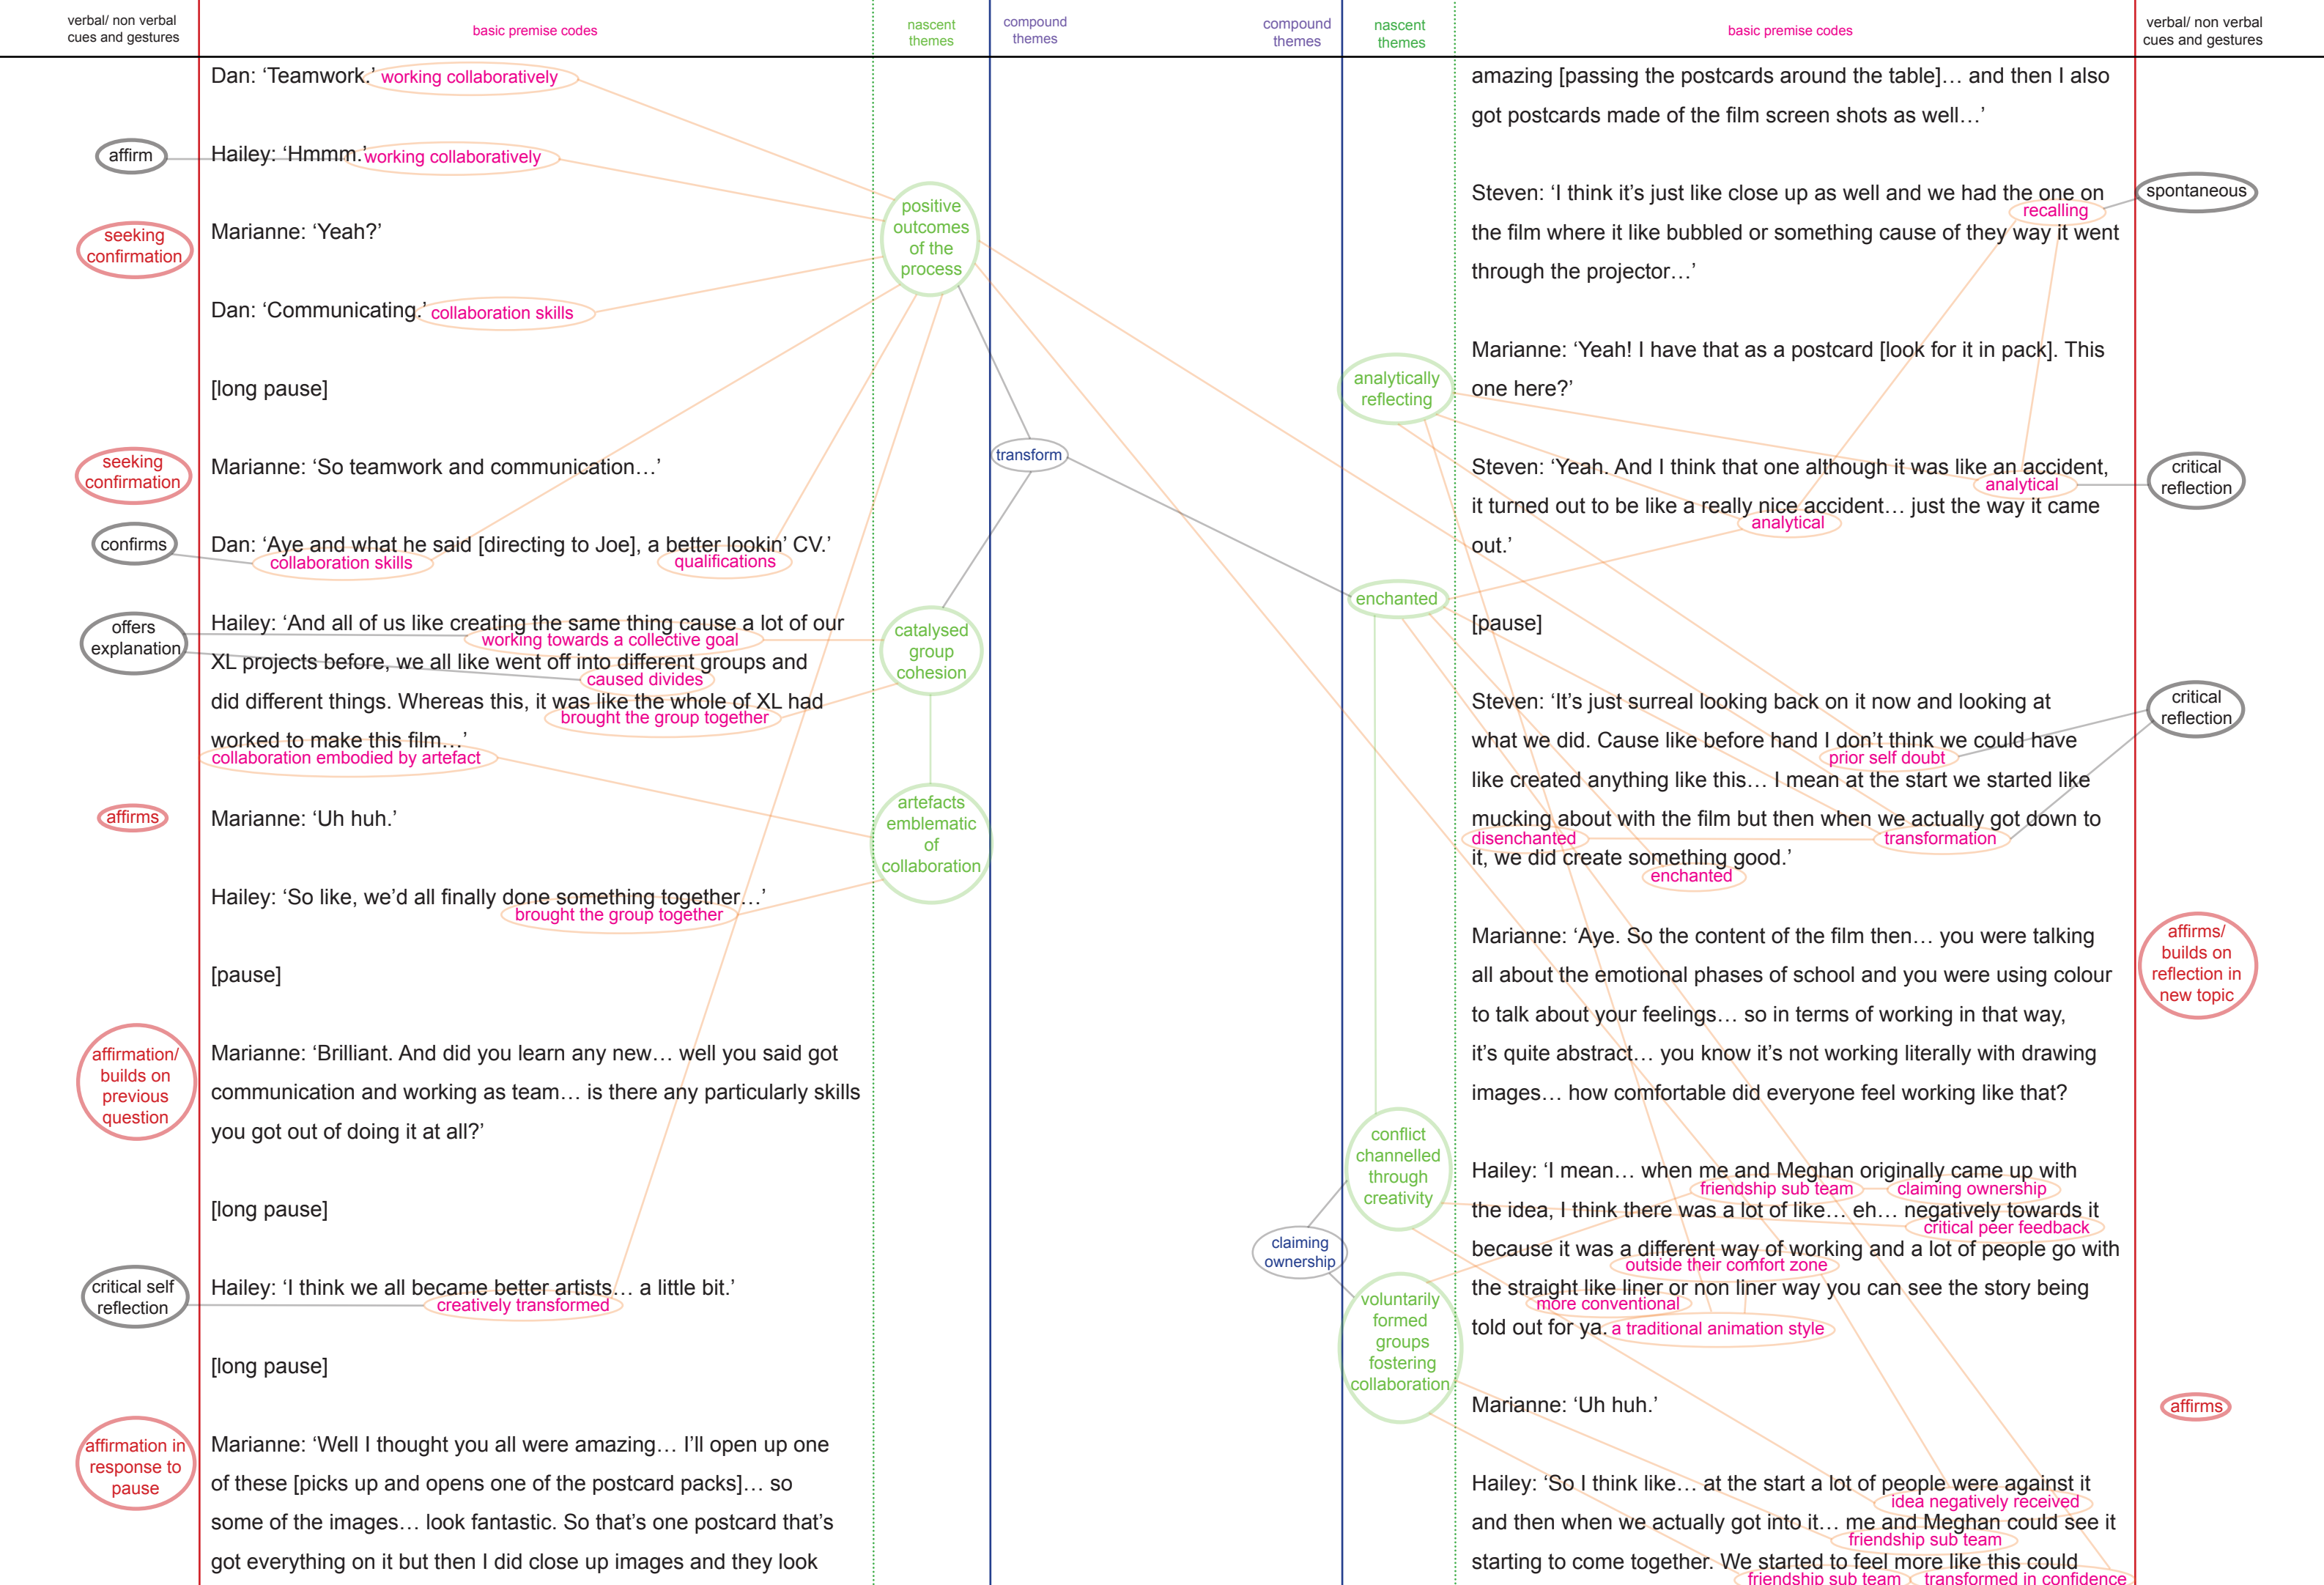

Marianne

verbal & nonverbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	distilled themes
explaining the timeline timeline rationale take-aways instilling worth spontaneous enthusiastic seeking feedback enthusiastic enthusiastic to each other enthusiastic	Marianne: ‘So... does everyone wanna stand up and come round to this side of the table so I can show you what I’ve made... So as you know when I was in the class with you guys, I wasn’t taking any photos or anything so as a way for me to be able to document my research and so to be able to look back on what we did, I made a model box of the classroom and you guys became Playmobil figures, and then what I did is, through reflecting back on each week, I would then set the scene in the model box and take photos of it. So this became a device for me to be able to illustrate what happened eh... and it’s fun to look back on so we can see all the stuff that we did. So it starts all the way from when we did the model head making for the ‘  competition and then it goes all the way through... this is us doing the workshops where we worked together to come up with ideas for the film... and then the origami workshop where we made the colour star and the popcorn boxes, the classroom screening erm... and then it goes to the end where we made the class flag design... so have a look... I’ve also got print outs of it as well so you guys can keep that.’ [general talking and laughing whilst standing around examining the timeline.] Joe: ‘Which one’s me?’ Hailey: ‘That’s incredible... the little Playmobil figures...’ Marianne: ‘Do you like it? It was a lot of fun to make and play around with.’ Hailey: (Laughing) ‘Looks like it!’ Dan to Joe: ‘Your face....’ Joe: ‘Huh?’ Dan to Joe: ‘...the 3D model’. Hailey: ‘Oh my god, that’s so cool... I wanna know which one’s me (laughs).’	protecting anonymity documenting fieldwork phase one inter-school design competition progression fieldwork phase two fieldwork phase three take-aways animated/ ice breaker enchanted amused enchanted enchanted enchanted enchanted intrigued	enchanted by the tool convivial reaction to the investment that went onto the tool

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Joe: ‘I don’t know if I was there.’ Dan: ‘Aye you were... it was the  [location name omitted]’ Marianne: ‘So it was the second time we went to  [location name omitted]. Remember we went twice and it was the second time we went to [location name omitted] and we saw it on the big screen and we saw lots of other animations as well...’ Hailey: ‘Yeah.’ Marianne: ‘So after we saw lots of other entries, ours came on and it looked very different...’ David: ‘It was very abstract... com... compared to everyone else’s cause everyone else obviously had the characters or you could eh... see eh... or there was some talking of some kind...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ David: ‘... or there was a... straight storyline explained to ya. Whereas ours was more down to interpretation an that, where everyone could interpret it differently.’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh. Yeah.’ [long pause] Dan: ‘What he said...’ [everyone laughs] Marianne: ‘Okay... so obviously using this technique everyone was working as a team. How did you find collaborating with each other and working as a team?’ Hailey: ‘There was a lot of like... tense moments where a lot of people of got into arguments at times...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’	analytically reflecting affirming building upon his reflections affirming introduce new topic critical reflection affirming	analytically reflecting no set boundaries in meaning conflict channelled through creativity	bound-lessness recognising the fragility of collaboration	self-elected authority catalyst for conflict physical space supporting collaboration classroom setting effecting collaboration	Hailey: ‘... like between... I can’t remember who most of my arguments where between... but me and Meghan kept arguing with...’ Joe: ‘Everybody’. Hailey: ‘... mostly you lot... just just to do with making the films or whatever because obviously me and Meghan came up with the idea for the emotional phases and everything... and we were try’na organise it into colours and all this and then other people weren’t listening so there was just a lot of tension happening at that time.’ Marianne: ‘ Yeah? So was working in sub groups could actually be quite difficult?’ Hailey: ‘ Yeah... because obviously we had organised it all and then try’na get them who were making the films to like listen to what we were saying... and at times is wasn’t...’ Marianne: ‘ Hmmm... has anyone else got anything to add?’ [long pause] Dan: ‘What was that Mat?’ Mat: [laughing]‘Nothing.’ Marianne: ‘How did you find doing the workshops in the classroom itself in terms of a location? Or if you had a different kind of space... would that have changed things?’ Hailey: ‘I think maybe like... cause it was the classroom and you had all the computers around you and everything and you had to keep moving the desks and everyone had to sit separately or whatever... I just think a different space may have been a lot easier to use.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah? Okay...’	argumentative defensive mediating prompting the other participants joking introduce new topic prompting critical reflection

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
frustrated	Hailey: ‘Guys! I’m doing all the talking here! Anyone wanna chip in?’					Marianne: ‘Aye?’	seeking confirmation
	Dan: ‘As usual!’					Hailey: ‘Yeah. I think... I think that’s just worked a lot better for us, like working with the people we were comfortable working with rather than... cause a lot of people clashed.’	critical reflection frustrated	Hailey: ‘Well chip in then!’				affable collaboration
	Joe: [indicating towards the class flag] ‘When was this made?’					Marianne: ‘Uh huh. So be able to work with your friendships then?’	affirming and seeking confirmation
	Marianne: ‘So this was made at the end, and there were a few people weren’t there and we designed the collaborative class flag. And I brought it back and you guys were saying earlier that it’s hanging up...’				voluntarily formed groups fostering collaboration	Hailey: ‘Yeah.’	confirms
	Hailey: ‘ It’s in the Assembly Hall.’			classroom setting on collaboration		Marianne: ‘Cool. So is there anything you have learned from taking part in the project that, if you were to do it again, you would change or do differently?’	introduces new topic enthusiastic	Marianne: ‘Brilliant! And this is another one I got printed. Erm... it’s slightly different. I got it printed onto velvet just as an experiment. So I just brought that with me today to show you...’	physical worth			self-criticality	Hailey: ‘I think maybe like look more closely at... making like the colours we used in each of the films like... like making sure that in each of them we’re sticking to our colours cause like throughout it there was a few stray colours that shouldn’t have been in the places that they were in.’	critical reflection
	[everyone looking at the class flag]			self reflexive		Marianne: ‘Hmmm’
spontaneous	Dan [pointing to an image on the flag]: ‘Look there’s mine!’	ownership				Hailey: ‘But that’s just like a perfectionist thing with me [laughing]... where it’s just like awww no.’
explaining the artefact as a reminder	Marianne: ‘So remember it was all about the XL Club, and that’s all your bits of film...’	enchanted				Marianne [directed towards David, Dan, Mat, Joe and Lewis]: ‘Is there anything you would do differently next time or change the way the workshops were carried out?’	prompting the other participants spontaneous	Joe: ‘That’s mine... all I don’t know.’ [Dan laughs]					Dan: ‘Nah, not really. It was alright ya know... it was good.’
	Marianne: So in terms of working as a team... do you prefer working as a team or working individually?’			acknowledging own achievement		Joe: ‘ We won so...’	building on each other’s opinions critical reflection	Dan: ‘As a team... with certain individuals.’					Dan: ‘Good!’
	[group laughs]					[group laugh then long pause]
seeking confirmation	Marianne: ‘Right okay? So you chose to work with certain individuals in a sub team...’					Marianne: ‘Cool, okay. Erm... and is there anything that you, either individually or collectively as a group, got of from taking part?’	affirms and builds on previous question
confirms	Dan: ‘Aye.’

Dan: 'I don't really think there's a set audience for it... to be honest.
Ya know it's anybody...' applicable to diverse groups

Marianne: 'Hmmm.'

affirms

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Joe: ‘Was there any yellow in it?’					Marianne: ‘Brilliant!’ So where’s... who else are we missing?’	enthusiastic/ affirming confirms	Marianne: ‘There was quite a lot of yellow in it.’					Dan: ‘Max’s aff, Ross left like...’ absent left school provides rationale	Hailey: ‘But that was near the start of the film the yellow was mainly... because we agreed that like... like at 6 to 8 or whatever, were like much happier. So it was nearer the start.’ associated with joy their own research associated with joy - at a younger age					Joe: ‘Was Ross even there?’
	[long pause]					Hailey: ‘Sophie, Ross... I don’t know what’s happened with them.’ left school left school
introduces new topic in response to pause	Marianne: ‘Okay, cool. So in terms of then making the big collaborative class flag together at the end that’s been hung up in the Assembly Hall... have you heard any comments made about it?’					Dan [pointing at the names on the flag]: ‘Look at aw these people getting credit who were’nae even there! That’s shockin.’ undeserved recognition seeking ownership	defensive
	Dan: ‘No really.’					Marianne: ‘Well you were all a team... and with the flag itself... we’ll just bring this up actually [moving timeline map to the side]... everyone had a hand in designing bits of film and then... so everyone’s names needed to be included.’	justifying/ reconciling provides rationale	Hailey: ‘ [inaudible] no... it’s cause it’s just got our first names or our initials on it or whatever.’ ownership feeling a lack of ownership			invested interest	protective	Hailey: ‘Who’s MCT?’
	Marianne: ‘Right okay.’					Lewis: ‘That’s Max.’
	Joe [looking at the flag]: ‘Who’s DY?’	claiming ownership				Hailey: ‘Aw.’
	David: ‘That’s me.’					Marianne: ‘Where’s Max? What’s he up to?’
justifying	Marianne: ‘Aye because I remember asking how you wanted you names and some of you just wanted initials... some of you wanted your first names...’					Hailey: ‘He’s off today. He doesn’t come in on Fridays.’ absent
	Joe: ‘It was also like another personal stamp onto it cause we each got our name like how we wanted it... So David got DY cause he wanted DY on there... and Meghan...’ ownership authorship ownership/ control authorship ownership/ control					Joe: ‘Aye he’s off.’ absent critical reflection	Hailey: ‘Aye... I was speaking to Meghan last night about this...’					Marianne: ‘Oh right. And Sam and Sean?’
	Marianne: ‘Where you? How is she?’					Hailey: ‘I don’t know where Sean is. He got made to come into school at the start of the year and then he just...’ forced to participate
	Hailey: ‘Good... she’s been working and going to college over the past year.’ participant left post compulsory education					Dan: ‘I think he’s got an apprenticeship or something...’ participating outside of school
						Hailey: ‘I don’t know.’ uncertainty
						[group talk – inaudible]

362

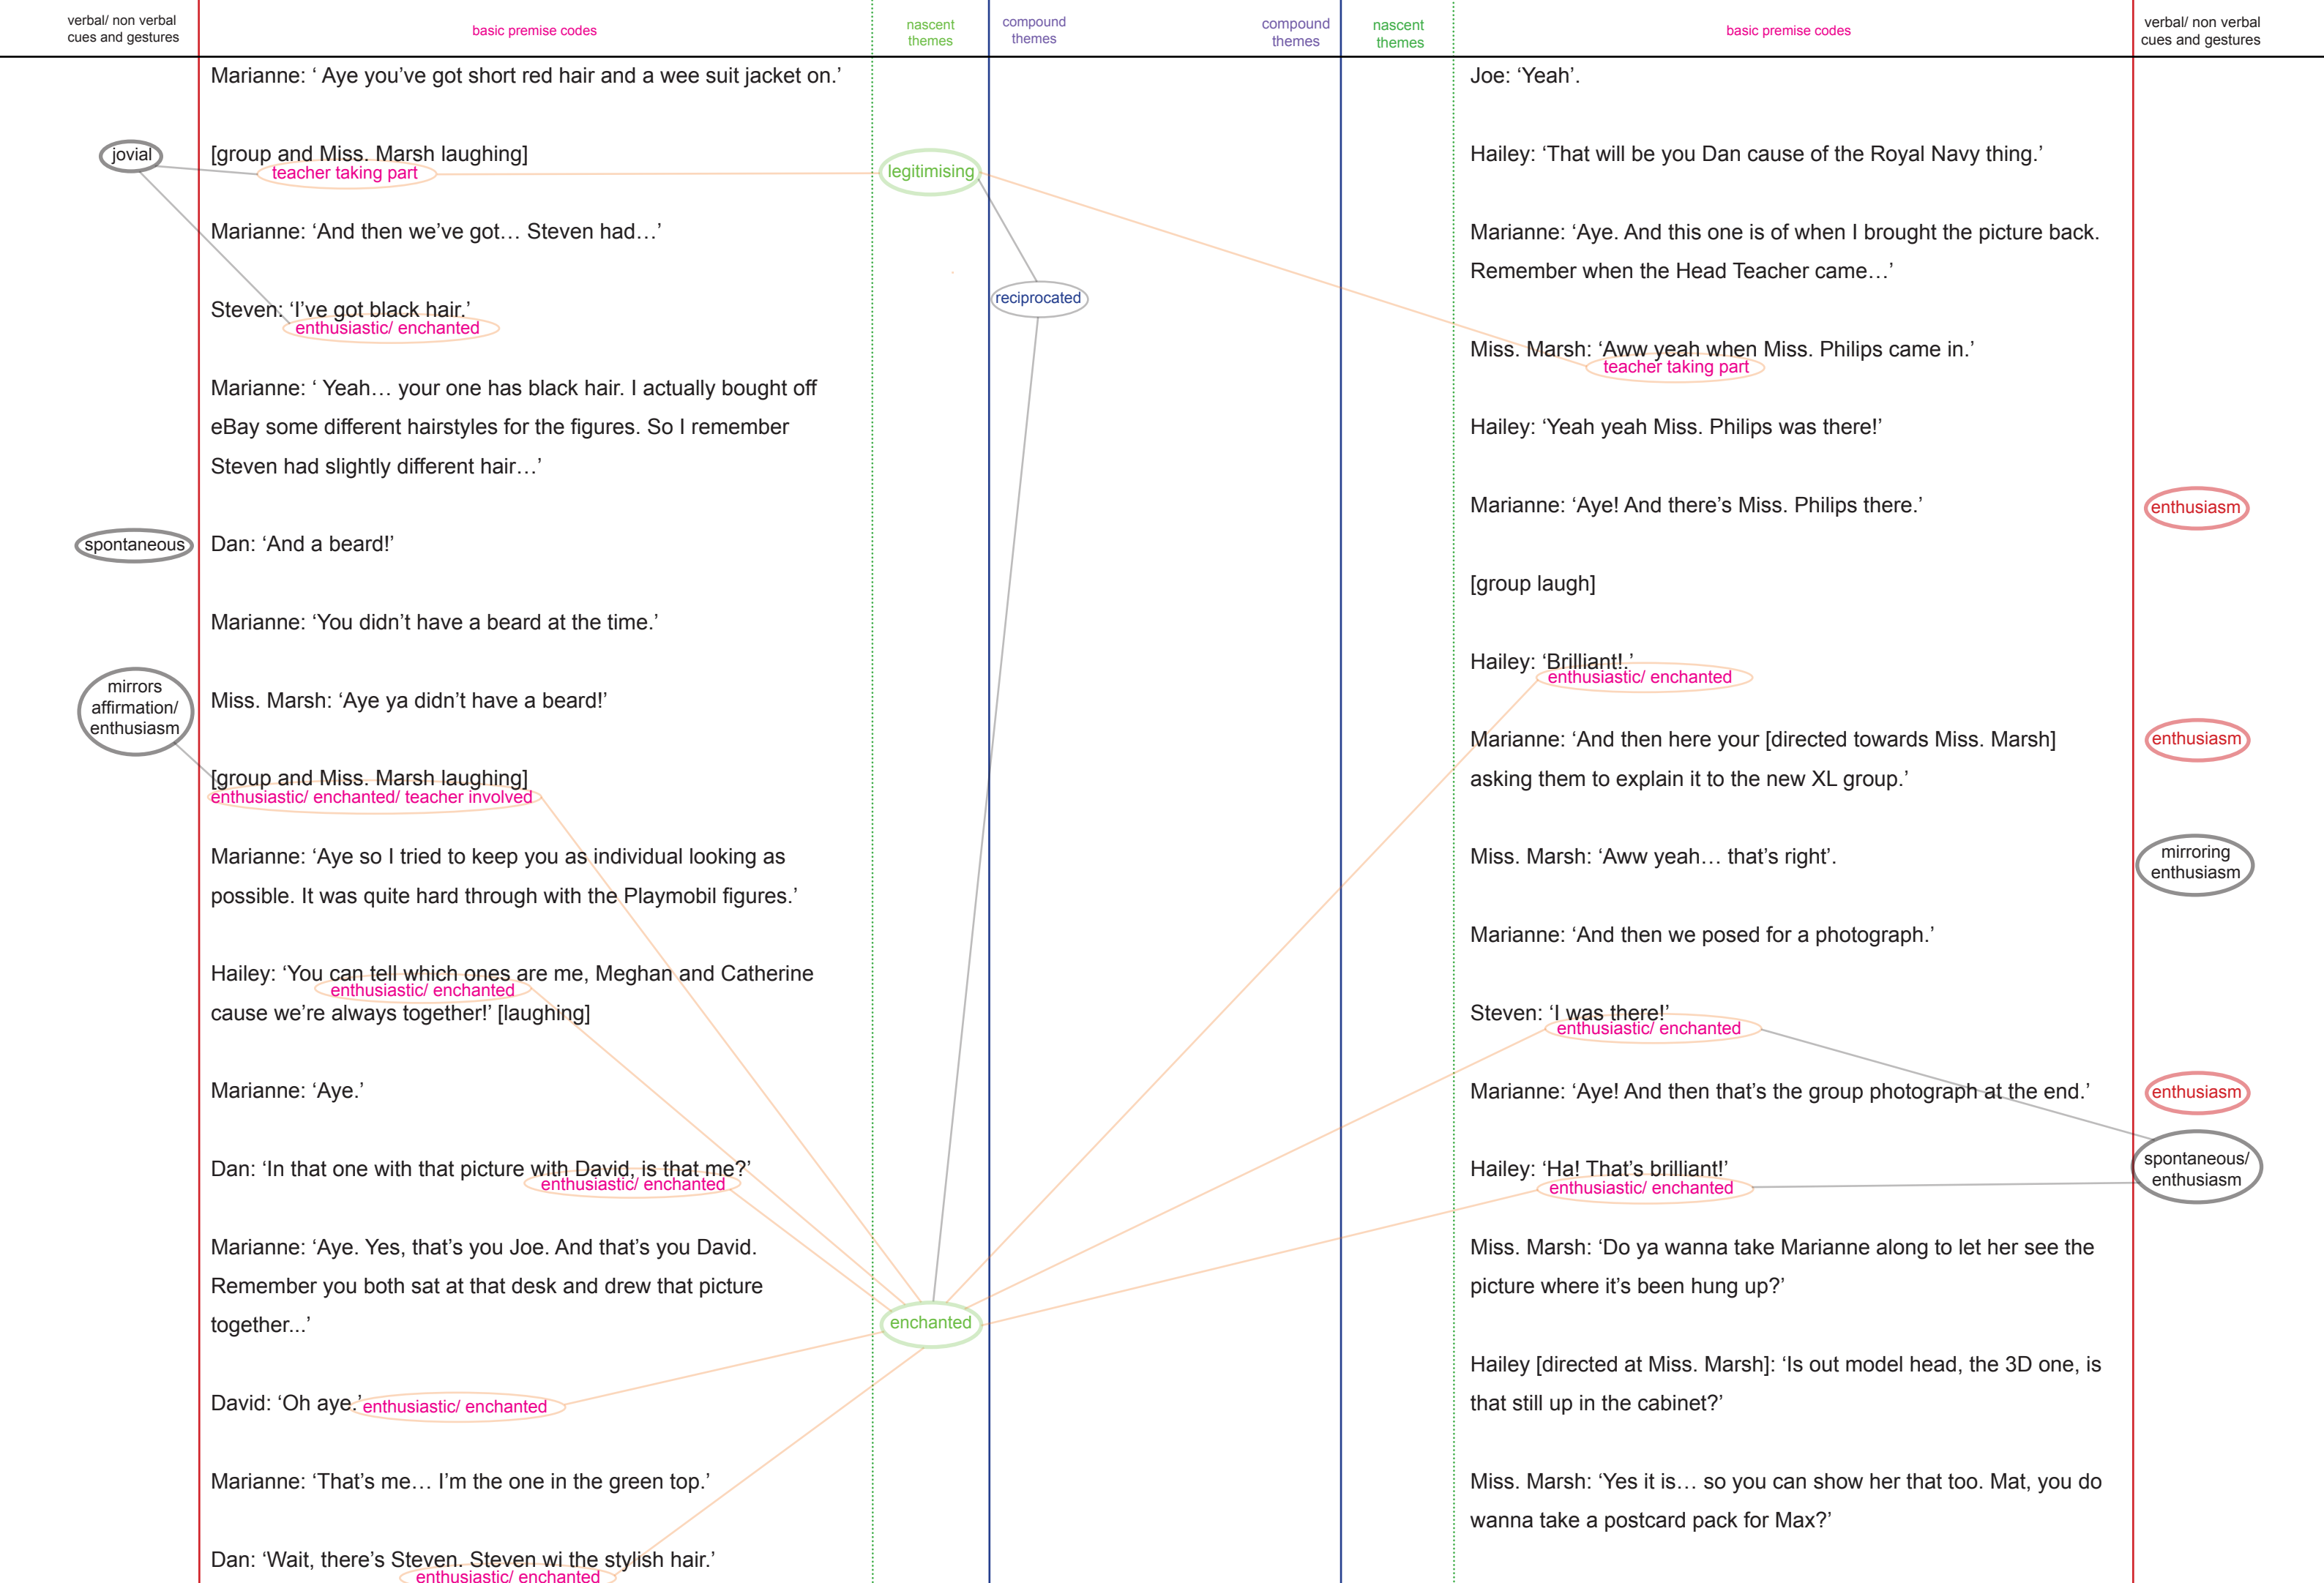

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	[long pause]					Dan: 'P.E'
introduces new topic in response to pause	Marianne: Okay... so how's it all going anyway? You all doing exams right now?					Joe: 'Aye the same.'
tentative	Hailey: 'Er... exams start next Thursday.'					Lewis: 'When's the exam Joe?'
	Marianne: 'Next Thursday... so what level is this now? National...'					Joe: 'It's done! Just portfolio now?'
tentative	Hailey: 'Erm... I'm sitting Highers. Other people are sitting Nat 5's.'					Lewis: 'Aright, I though you said you were doing Higher P.E.'
sarcastic	Dan: [begins clapping] 'Aye Hailey!'					Joe: 'Aye.'
		mocking				Lewis: 'Well isn't there an exam for it?'
		resentment				Joe: 'That's next week.'
defensive	Hailey [laughing]: 'What? I was just saying...'					Lewis: 'Aw right.'
			defensive			Marianne: 'How you all feeling about the exams?'	further prompting sarcastic/ mocking	Dan [laughing and mocking]: 'Sake! I'm sitting Highers! Everyone else is sitting National 5s.'			self-empower		Hailey: 'Erm... definitely nervous cause I have to pass one of them to get into college.'	tentative undertone of resentment					pressure/ conditional
					under pressure	for her future endeavours
defensive/ angry	Hailey: 'I never said that! Cause Catherine's sitting Higher English wi me.'					Marianne: 'Right, okay... how are you feeling Catherine about the exams?'
accusation	Dan: 'Did you no just say I'm daeing Highers and most people here are daeing National 5's?'					[long pause]
		feeling undermined				Catherine [whispers]: 'Bit nervous.'	tentative defensive/ angry	Hailey: 'I said other people are doing National 5's.'						anxious
	Dan: 'Other people are doing National 5's?'					Marianne: 'Yeah? What about you Steven?'	prompting particular participant
	Hailey: 'Exactly. Cause other are, are they not?'					Steven: 'Uh?'
defensive/ angry	Joe: 'I'm doing a higher!'					Marianne: ' How are you feeling about exams?'
	Hailey: 'I never said you weren't!'					Steven: 'I've got English next week.'
	Dan: 'Don't just assume.'					Marianne: 'How you feeling about it?'	prompting particular participant defensive/ feeling embarrassed Hailey: 'I said other people are doing Nat 5's.'
attempting to defuse	Marianne: So what subjects are you all doing?'

Marianne: 'I think that'll be David... I tried my best to keep you all looking as individual as possible... the problem is there's only so

Miss. Marsh: 'I've got the red hair?!'

mirrors affirmation/enthusiasm

reciprocated

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Hailey: ‘I’m gonna send Meghan pictures of this tonight man!’ enthusiastic/ enchanted Marianne: ‘Do you see still her Hailey?’ Hailey: ‘Occasionally yeah.’ Marianne: ‘You wanna take an extra pack just in case you see her.’ Hailey: ‘Yeah, cool.’ Marianne: ‘Catherine, you get a pack aye?’ Catherine: ‘Yeah.’ Marianne: ‘Everyone got one aye?’ [group all agree] spontaneous/ enthusiasm Hailey: ‘Aw this is incredible. I love the little Playmobil people!’ enthusiastic/ enchanted Miss. Marsh [directed towards entire group]: ‘So what ya think you could do with these postcards?’ spontaneous/ enthusiasm Dan: ‘Post em!’ [group laughs] Hailey [towards the postcards]: ‘I think these are incredible!’ enthusiastic/ enchanted Marianne: ‘Does anyone know anyone else they could pass one onto who were in the class but not here today? I got spares.’ Hailey: ‘I don’t see anyone else except Meghan.’ Miss. Marsh: Right, well guys what ya say to Marianne for all your...’ Steven: ‘Thanks.’ Hailey: ‘Thank you.’	enchanted				[group general thanks] Marianne: ‘Thank you all so much for coming along today, I really appreciate all your feedback!’ End

Collated Distilled Themes:

Evaluation Event Two

Date: 9/6/16

Duration: 1 hour, 27 minutes

Supervisor A (SA)

Supervisor B (SB)

Professor of Design (PoD)

Social Policy Researcher (SPR)

Doctor of Design-reseach (DoDR)

Professor of Education (PoE)

Marianne

verbal & nonverbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	distilled themes
	[Looking around the exhibition – general conversation] DoDR: ‘Er... it must have taking you forever to get this printed [inaudible]... what extent could this be the thesis... to what extent could you walk away...?’ balance of presentation Marianne: ‘To be honest, I was talking to SB about this this morning and this has been a really good practice for the mock and the viva where I will be having an exhibition as well... but on a practical level, there is definitely a need for more plaques to explain what things are. But I think actually to leave this alone for anyone to wander into there could be a lot of unanswered questions...’ more physical signposting DoDR: ‘[inaudible]... an explanation of the practice where you could draw out some of the theory... and I suppose something like this just requires just that extra bit of explanation... erm... but I don’t know whether more text than there already is because this wall is entirely text base now and I think that any more and it would become overwhelming... erm... I like that you have separated the findings over there so there is a separation between method and outcome. Erm... it would be nice if there was something that I could take away in that this is the study and the findings so when I leave this room I have something...’ more physical signposting separate method and outcome take away Marianne: ‘Yeah having something that sums it all up... yeah me and SB were talking about this this morning and I think like this has been very useful for me to practice, almost like a mock mock and its been a good learning curve to able to sum up the research in one room and also tonight having a less academic crowd coming and for them to be able to read it and understand... so its obviously trying to place these two audiences, an academic and also a not so academic audience. So for the mock and viva, obviously it can but more academically aligned but... I mean... its... its difficult...’ striking a balance in content SA: ‘So for this... it’s a kind of hybrid between the exhibition and articulation of what’s contained in the thesis...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’	explanation of the practice considering the aim of the exhibition	reflecting on the relationship between thesis portfolio exhibition

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	SA: ‘But for the mock and for the viva this will be more of an exhibition because they will already have read the thesis?’ less textual/ evidence-based Marianne: ‘Yeah... I think it would be really good to have erm... like these posters on the wall here... I wanted to have the timeline of what actually happened with their feedback at the same time...’ DoDR: ‘So like marking out the key events... along the way?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah... but maybe making... I’m not sure... I think there definitely needs to be a slight rebalance erm...’ less textual/ evidence-based SA: ‘Yeah.’ Marianne: ‘... for the actual...because my examiners will of read the thesis prior to...’ balance/ not repetitive DoDR: ‘And be aware of all the methods?’ balance/ not repetitive Marianne: ‘Yeah. So that’s just something I need to think about but...’ SA: ‘So in terms of responding to you... are you planning on doing a presentation to your examiners? Or will the come to this exhibition without you?’ Marianne: ‘I think it... this is something I’ve not decided yet. I think possibly...’ SA: ‘You don’t need to decide now...’ Marianne: ‘... I’m just try’na way up... like if they have read the thesis and then they come into this and actually then get to see everything...’ balance/ not repetitive DoDR: ‘I think it’s preferable that you’re here...’ Marianne: ‘I’m here but not obviously to...’	considering the aim of the exhibition				DoDR: ‘Just be able to answer questions?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah. That is something I need to think about a bit more.’ SA: ‘Okay. Lets pick that up and we can discuss that.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SB: ‘I’ve seen that before when someone presents like something that’s quite complex through short a presentation, it means Viva is a bit longer but you know... it gives it like an introduction to the actual project...’ SA: ‘Yeah... I think there’s considerations in that would it make you more nervous...’ Marianne: ‘Hmmm’. SA: ‘... because if you’re not going to be there the presentation will be more self explanatory than if you were going to be... but we can decide on that...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah. I think it’s interesting in terms of then the presentation... like kinda the artefacts and the actual content of what’s written... I definitely just need to think about that a bit more.’ balance/ not repetitive DoDR: ‘Uh huh.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah... I think it would be really good... I would really like some feedback first of all... if anyone has got any questions or other feedback that would be great.’ PoE: ‘Um yeah... erm... I thought you really brought it a live erm... so in terms of presenting your work I think you being there would be a really good thing um... it resonates to me in so many places um... SB showed me one of these animations...’ animated effected SB: ‘I think it was this one [indicates to the third TV display].’

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	PoE: ‘Was it yeah?’ SB: ‘The final...’ PoE: ‘Yeah I could immediately relate to it um... just in so many ways it resonates. It feels very authentic.’ DoDR: ‘Sorry, can I ask what your background is?’ PoE: ‘Um... I spent ten years working as a teacher in schools... in inner-city schools...’ DoDR: ‘I see.’ PoE: ‘...and I’ve spent the last er... 30 years working as a researcher working in universities er... that’s what I currently do. Erm... in fact SB and I did a very... I wouldn’t say similar but parallel kind of process using SecondLife...’ SB: ‘Uh huh.’ PoE: ‘... funded by the ESRC. Erm... with a broadly similar kind of set of aims around erm... development of agency, development of voice, co-research erm... so the quotes are funnily... familiar.’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ PoE: ‘And it took me back actually because of the schools I worked in... it’s just an anecdote but I mean the sense of authenticity from it erm... that resonates with me erm... I don’t know if you ever felt this... when I first started teaching, I got allocated a bunch of kids who... broadly speaking you would say they were in this category...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ PoE: ‘... and I come from like a...er... a scientific research background into teaching and you know... I got this group of kids who’ve got no... had no resources, no space, no syllabus, no exam. And what we did was we went out...’	verifies verifies verifies verifies			Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ PoE: ‘... er and begged tools and equipment and other stuff and we conservation work around the city... and erm... they took it over and in the school, I kind of you know... there were these kids who were kind of... kids who were not doing anything academic and I kinda got labeled with them you know and I kind of felt more at home with them than I did with [laughing] some of the you know... it was kind of another form of existence erm... and that kind of resonates quite a lot with... with the accounts that you’ve given...erm...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ PoE: ‘... so it feels very authentic.’ SA: ‘Hmm... I’m gonna play a slightly different role than I usually would with you... [laughing]... erm... much more critical erm so... I absolutely agree I think that you bring it to life... I think some of the terms that you use are a bit heavy-handed...like contextual immersion when you describe it as building trust and rapport which is much more within what you’re trying to do...’ Marianne: ‘ Uh huh.’ SA: ‘... so it seems to me that there’s almost a play between you thinking what it should be and it’s academic contribution and using what you’ve actually done and have been trying to do. And I think the latter is much more powerful so it may be good just to actually go through and listen to what you said in the recordings and align it because I think that will bring it a live.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SA: ‘I think once you’ve got those headlines... there’s far too much text. You need to almost go through it and highlight what are the stand out ones because then people will come in and get it in a nano second without having to go through. And I think, and again we can do this together, it needs to be curated like an exhibition, what was the role of the artefact... you know what did that play and

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	that needs to be labeled.’ highlighting and communicating the role of the artefact Marianne: ‘Yeah. SA: ‘And I think this is a real missed opportunity to show these as I think you said... all one offs... and I think that’s a lovely expression showcase the films better for both those but also the kids you worked with as well. So to maybe have them... select ones as vignettes. It would really show how that process did transform them and I think it’s particularly powerful when you talk about the roles that they took on... the production roles/ seeking autonomy director, the producer... and that’s... that’s no mean feat to try and achieve that in a timeline as a very infrequent teacher or erm... person they were working with so I think you can really make that...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ SA: ‘... I think the model is stand out and I think it really captures the contribution and again more could be made of that.... So I think its good... but it needs to be ramped up...’ modelbox impactful Marianne: ‘Okay.’ SA: ‘...to another level.’ DoDR: ‘Can I ask, you obviously mentioned text and I would agree in terms of there being a lot of text erm... how would you re-envision this like... say if it didn’t have as much text... what would be foregrounded?’ less textual/ evidence-based SA: ‘I mean I guess that some... I mean I think the quotes are foregrounded... we don’t know what the space is going to be for the final exhibition yet do we?’ Marianne: ‘I’m quite... I quite like this space. I the space works quite well in terms of the amount of stuff. I think anywhere bigger and it might look a bit bare and also I need to get more lighting... I think the lighting also... I can’t have any windows because of the TVs... I just don’t want too much light. Essentially I wanted to get more lights... I’ll show you... because I think this [changes the lighting	effecting content of the exhibition - what am I communicating? foreground artefacts verifies verifies				state] has more impact for the films...’ PoE: ‘Oh yeah...’ Marianne: ‘... but it’s too dark you know over there [pointing towards the back of the room].’ DoDR: ‘But you could under light key elements.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah, I need more lights but it’s erm...’ SB: ‘Spot lights?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah!’ SA: ‘ Yeah, I think you could do one or two things. You could refine this format...’ DoDR: ‘I think these images could be foregrounded [Playmobil photographs] and you could have a timeline underneath that just describes the key stage along the way and separates... showing where the methods begin and end... if they are sequentially separate so if contextual immersion is sequentially separate from the other thing then we could just have those key dividers, a simple description about what that method is and perhaps quotes... but quotes connecting to images. So we see things alongside...’ refining the timeline simplify the timeline use of quotes with images Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SA: ‘And then the images... so that could play... I’m a big fan of vinyls because then you have to sccccccoh [making action as if quickly taking off the wall]... and then you could have these images erm...’ transient nature PoE: ‘Could I ask a question about clarification because I’m not really... I find it difficult to get my head round the practice-based PhD.’ [group laughs]

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	DoDR: ‘You and everyone else.’ PoE: ‘Yeah... erm so the issue of audience here. I’m not clear on who your audience is.’ Marianne: ‘So I think...’ PoE: ‘Because to me I’m thinking method... I read that and I’m thinking contextual immersion I’m thinking methods and ethnography...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ PoE: ‘So that tells me something about how you are methodologically orientated towards this work...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ PoE: ‘Which I found useful erm... so and then clearly then there is a consensus that there is too much text so then I need to ask the question who’s the audience?’ SA: ‘Usually... the audience for this specifically would be the Viva. The examiners.’ PoE: ‘Oh right. So it’s a research audience.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SA: ‘So what they would get is the thesis, so the written text, 40,000 words which would contain all of this three months prior to the exhibition and then they would be invited to the exhibition and the key thing is...’ PoE: ‘So is the exhibition an exhibition of the research?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah... well as a practice-based researcher... so for me I’m bringing my participatory practice which is about using design for youth engagement so the exhibition is communicating the use	contribution appears ambiguous			inter-disciplinary drawing on multiple fields beyond design	of design for youth engagement... obviously within that there were other methods I used to kinda to a form of triangulation so for me it’s about the whole process of then where the design comes in. So then for the contextual immersion, I was in the classroom but I wasn’t essentially using participatory design at that moment that was completely integral to informing the workshops that then happened after that. To then having the interviews which would then kind of... so for me its about being able to communicate the practice but also use other methods which are more traditionally social sciency or whatever...’ DoDR: ‘Sorry it’s kind of related to your question... I don’t want to move this away but it’s in my head... I’m just wondering in terms of findings what your foregrounding... so it what participatory design has done? Or is it how kids can... or sorry is how we can understand factors that mobilise their sense of agency for kids which I would say is sociological...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ DoDR: ‘...over and above a design-based outcome.’ Marianne: ‘Sure... so basically my question actually has a kind of dual... sort of... and I frame this within my thesis that I am making a sort of dual contribution to knowledge... so essentially what I’ve found is a gap in knowledge is both with a methodological one and looking to develop a new way using my participatory design practice as a way of experimenting and exploring that for youth representation. And then also looking well what can we learn from this in terms of using this... so it’s also substantive...’ DoDR: ‘So presumably then in your contribution, you align with studies that are psychological or sociological...’ Marianne: ‘Absolutely.’ DoDR: ‘... [inaudible] design-based. So I’m just wonder then about the key findings... do we need have participatory design practice a bit more highlighted on that wall [indicating towards Findings

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	display] so we see what you as a designer have brought to it because if I came to that I'd be like okay well this is me as a social researcher and what I need to do if I want to find out more about what will motivate kids...' Marianne: 'Yup... I think what I have... what I'm need to explain which is difficult because I imagining for the future exhibition which will be for the Viva, the examiners will already have read the thesis so they'll know about this. Obviously for today... I have... I almost have sort of two literature reviews. So my first one is a kind of scope of context where I'm looking at the context of youth representation, looking at social and political discourse surround erm... youth and then also looking towards methods afterwards...' DoDR: 'Uh huh.' Marianne: '... so for me I can... I definitely agree that actually that needs to be... the design needs to be foregrounded...' DoDR: 'Because the research question foregrounds participatory design practice...[inaudible] but I wouldn't necessarily associate what I see... just in terms of the titles [inaudible]...' Marianne: 'Uh huh. I think it's about being able to communicate that one is not really with out the other within this study. So for me it's like...' SB: 'There're linked'. Marianne: 'Yeah, exactly and what I found was this is the context and within the context these a gap in the way that I see that there's opportunities here and I believe participatory design... there's a role for that within that and actually... and for the scope of context literature I draw on a lot of policy, sociological studies... I mean a lot of the literature that surrounds this area is all sociological so erm... I draw on a lot of that and then looking into the use of participatory and visual methods within sociology as well is something that I've looked in the methods section which is really interesting and actually participatory video came from visual sociology so it's a node					to that as well... I'm drawing on visual sociology as well as how participatory design can augment this method...' DoDR: 'Sure yeah.' Marianne: 'So I think I need to definitely make that dual contribution a little more... well more transparent.' SA: 'So I think there's two other things that you kind of underplayed was the fact that you went back to the school and presented this and they had a response to the fieldwork and the research...' Marianne: 'Yeah.' SA: '... and the contribution to how this [the exhibition] would actually be configured so I think that's really powerful because it's one of the tensions in participatory design approaches is when does it cease to be participatory and you become the altour or the decision maker and I actually think what you said, that this was not ideal was really a positive because you had to find ways to work...' Marianne: 'Yeah.' SA: '... that involved them. And I think the strips which you then digitized and then played back is really powerful and that became out of necessity because you couldn't get digital frame to frame so it became a much more creative process. Some of these things are so difficult to enter that you need all this equipment for participatory design or it's very basic so I think that's a really powerful finding that you know you can find ways work round to allow people to truly participate...' DoDR: 'Uh huh... yeah.' SA: '... and to be able to see the work so I think don't underplay that fact that that was your creative problem solving around that so I think that's a real positive.' DoDR: 'Uh huh.'

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	SB: ‘I think the fact that you also had drawn on... like you’ve referenced the wider literature in relation to methods so you... you know you’ve gone beyond participatory design in the sense of you know the methods that participatory design researchers might just associate are within their own domain but you’ve... you’ve gone beyond that and I think that’s really important to the social sciences because often you can see... you know the two things being completely separate and I think that you know you’ve got that sort of heritage that your referring back to is important here.’ SRP: ‘You address some issues that we would struggle with you know, and one of them is what happens when you get... you go and you have a completely open brief and you don’t know where the project is going to end up and how do you talk about that to the professionals who ask what is it your doing, what are you aiming to get from this...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SRP: ‘... and I think your first bit about trust and rapport was really interesting because what for me built the trust and rapport was the fact that you all went on a journey together and you were a traveller on that journey with them...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ SRP: ‘...and you made [inaudible] opportunity that you weren’t looking to get your own interests from it, that you were actually doing something. And I think increasingly in social research we have to get more into that space of doing things with people that leads to an outcome that comes from them, you know instead of rather than the researcher deciding what’s important...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ SRP: ‘... the other thing was... was this [indicating towards the films] and you know working with you know people like filmmakers in a co-productive way, there’s always a moment where we have tension. Is this still co-productive?’	inter-disciplinary how design can inform and contribute to other fields method-ological constraints and assets verifies			Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SRP: ‘Or is this filmmaker saying I’ll step in here... you know? I’ve been on walks round  [Scottish inner-city area] with a photographer who’s telling people what to photograph... you know. That isn’t co-production but for this you’ve got the raw materials from people working in a... sort of dramatic situation where workshops have created a script but then they haven’t had the confidence to then go and perform it and its actually had to be handed over to erm... to professionals basically. You know... that’s facilitating it happening. There needs to be that transition where they say no this is as far as we want to participate from now on it’s over to you... erm and some of these thoughts are a but disconnected but I think your findings are really strong... particularly about agency and the individual verses the collective. And I think what you’ve nailed there is how the education system is not set up to handle that tension between... individualism’s fine when it’s towards a collective aim that everyone can buy into but when individualism is for its own sake and your own promotion that that’s problematic... you know it seems to me in the current curriculum there’s no marks for team work... there’s no marks for collaboration... but as you know the employability outcomes of this... you know the fact that they understood how a production works and actually in the real world it’s all about collaboration. So school’s not only not aligned to the constraints with these particular kids but it’s also not aligned to how their [inaudible – brain?] works and what’s interesting about that is the way... the way you’ve discovered that, you haven’t got like bland quotes saying that and then you reinterpreting it. It’s the kind of relationship and understanding of those kids and that journey you’ve gone on as well, which I think is... is interesting. In some areas that would be methodologically problematic. You know it’s where is your evidence... this is what you thought but I think this brings us back to the... what the method offers. So... from a social research perspective, rather than an arts perspective, I feel strongly that’s what I’m getting from this...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ SA: ‘I think also... I remember... what your saying there [to SRP]...

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	around the trust and rapport was the first time they called you your name.’ key milestone - gesture of acceptance Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SA: ‘And that... and that really struck you. It was a real...’ critical moment in the developing research relationship Marianne: ‘Yeah because that took time... it’s in one of my field notes and I think it’s interesting what you [directed towards Pete] were saying at the end there in terms of being problematic... and this is something I struggled with in terms of my data gathering. So I’ve been... a lot of my data itself is field notes and I have all of that and then I also have then from the interviews I do also have transcriptions that could be considered more like hard data. But erm... yeah in one of my field notes, it wasn’t until very near the end of the first phase that they actually called me by my real name and that was a moment of kind of where I felt... I kind of reflected upon this... I reflect on my own feelings throughout my field notes as well about how I’m in the classroom and at the start I’m was really awkward and kind of... I was really nervous at the start of this fieldwork because obviously I’m wanting this to go well and I’m wanting them to like me and erm... engage with me. So I reflect a lot on my own kind of awkwardness [laughing] at the start in trying to engage but then being rejected but then slowly and eventually... I mean a lot of it came through being able to take part in the creativity of this competition [indicates towards phase one of the case study timeline] that was really...’ SB: ‘Hmmm... some focus.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah! And actually it was during this time that they started to call me Marianne and not Miss... because they call their teachers Miss or they just won’t call me anything... they called the youth worker by her first name as well so it was an instant kind of moment where I felt a sort of bond start to form... I just felt a sense of acceptance and actually, and I wrote about this, I felt instantly more confident...’ PoE: ‘Uh huh.’					Marianne: ‘... that I was sort of part of the group. So that was a real milestone for me in the first four months and it did take about three months before they called me Marianne, which was really nice actually.’ my own transformation gesture of acceptance incremental SA: ‘I think it’s also worth mentioning that when we first conceptualised this... it was three case studies... so you would start in this school, then you would go to another school or another context and then you would do a third one... taking a very traditional route...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SA: ‘And then I think that you took a lot of risks in I want to stay here and I’m just going to go deeper and deeper and deeper into this case study.’ rationale for methodological choices Marianne: ‘I thought I had been given such an amazing opportunity so initially when I first... it was in my first progression presentation which was half way through my first year and I was saying how I’m going to do three case studies and I’m going to be able to triangulate it and be able to talk about young people across the spectrum and... and actually through getting access to this school to work with young people who are under 16, who had been identified by their own teacher as you know... vulnerable and have a lot of challenges and then I’ve got through ethics to do this, and then got parental and the young people wanted to do it... and so... I didn’t want this to be a little short intervention, this needs to be something which is prolonged and... so I was allowed to stay... so I stayed with this group for two years... so I met them when they started third year and then the final evaluation exhibition which happened this year... their now nearly finishing fifth year so they’re almost like adults now... it was really strange when I came back and seeing how they had grown up. So it shows the longitudinal nature of it... I think that was really important in terms of understanding dimensions like trust and rapport and actually being able to report about that...’ SPR: ‘Uh huh... there’s another way of looking at it and that’s the effect its had on the teachers in the school and their practice. Did

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	you get a sense of how the teacher that you were working with... or the school itself had learned from this?' informing gatekeepers practices institutional transformation Marianne: 'Hmmm... I got a lot of insight from the teacher... at the end of the evaluation exhibition... so at the end when I was tidying up and I was asking her how the new cohort of the XL Club were getting on... so obviously these young people in my group had now transitioned the course with some of them just finishing off doing exams in fifth year and some of them had gone of to college and stayed on at school further education and some of them had left... and I was asking her about the new cohort and how they were getting on and they are doing the same Youth Achievement Award curriculum... and she said mentioned that this year this group weren't doing as many creative things and that it was a challenge as there wasn't much class cohesion... which was one of the things that the young people [in this study] reflected on with the film making... that it was something they did together... so I think it actually help to cement cohesion with the group because instilled group moral/ working as a collective there was a lot of... a lot of social politics within this group which fragile collaboration did become interesting as I started to learn this and actually learn the social erm... clusterings within the group. Erm... there was one girl that many of the participants, particularly the male participants, acted very aggressively towards, and she was the one who really wanted to become the Director of the film and negotiating this... through the narratives that reported on these kind of rules and the hierarchy between the participants, I think actually... well I don't know if it's do with the kind of projects that I was helping with that helped with group cohesion... and with the teacher, when I was doing the film making workshops, she was rarely involved... she was always present, as was the youth worker, and only would they really get involved when there was negative behaviour. When the particiapnts actually signed their consent forms, they signed a sort of behaviour contract within that as well which was, by consenting, agreeing to respect their peers within this group, not to swear... this gave me a little bit of authority when it came to disrespectful behaviour...' SPR: 'Was that behaviour contract negotiated in the group as well?' Marianne: 'No that was something as part of my ethics form that predefined	creativity helped cement group cohesion drawing on each other's strengths/ resources/ capabilities managing group dynamics			differing but complimentary agendas	had to be approved before I went into the school... it was just three points to respect each other, to not swear and not display aggressive behaviour.' PoE: 'What about... were there tensions between your agenda as a researcher and the kid's agendas?' differing motivations to participate Marianne: 'I think... not particularly. I think one of things that was difficult for me was because this was quite emergent and I didn't really know what was gonna happen, it was difficult for me to be able to tell them exactly what was going to happen...' difficult to anticipate outcome PoE: 'Hmmm.' Marianne: '... so I was like let's do this project together, I don't really know what's going to happen and at this point I didn't even know about the competition so there was no kind of... it was very open ended but also trying to gage a slight... trying to gage what they're motivations were to take part and erm... I was given... out of five classes a week, I was given a double period so I got to go in once a week and it was interesting because over this double period the young people had the choice when the bell rang for the second period to go to another class or they could stay and do more of the workshop. This was interesting as they chose whether to stay and work longer on the films or to go. And usually... there were the usual suspects that would leave and go which was fine and there would be the this core group that would stay every week for the additional period... they were under no obligation to... the option was there for them. So it was really nice to see that actually quite a lot of them... there was a core group of about six that would stay every week for the additional period whereas a few of them would leave... So yeah I think in terms of gaging their own agenda to take part... I think in some cases it might have been simply because this is fun for them or it was a chance to miss another period of a class they possibly didn't want to go to... for whatever reason they chose to stay, it was their decision. Eventually though with the competition... that kind of instilled a sense of erm...' SA: 'Lets keep doing this?' collective mobilisation

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Marianne: ‘Erm... yeah! Kind of mobilised them... it became a slight competitive element but in a really positive way so it was like well is everyone up for this? Let’s do this. As a group decision so...’ SA: ‘Can I ask another question, if you describe yourself as a participatory designer, and in this occasion you used participatory film... animation. Are you implicitly saying that you that you’ll develop your methods in line with what the cohort might want?’ Marianne: ‘Erm... sorry what do you mean?’ DoDR: ‘In like another iteration.’ SA: ‘Another iteration... so when you started working with the group... so you didn’t come to this as a participatory filmmaker...’ Marianne: ‘No.’ SA: ‘... so you came in with your Masters background and you used the method of participatory film with this group...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ SA: ‘... if you call yourself a participatory designer and you were going to do that in Post Doc would you be developing methods in line with emergent projects? So it could be participatory cooking or participatory pottery... as opposed to participatory film...’ Marianne: ‘ Yeah... so after the PhD would I define myself as a participatory filmmaker?’ SA: ‘... or would you keep reapplying this as a method or would look at the broader learning from this method that you could apply to any participatory practice-based approach?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah... I think... so it’s interesting, I arrived at using erm... this animation technique as a way of innovating participatory video and testing that and one of my findings was... we could imagine that a researcher could say to me well you talk about this	mobilised participation process over output			method-ological contribution	method but I’m not a designer so how am I meant to implement this? But I think my learning from this can be applied other methods... applying the ethos of Participatory Design onto other methods. So it’s not so much about the final artefact... for me what was more important was the process of actually doing it, so the essence of what occurred was... was the transformation. The method was used as a way for the young people to develop and harness their own sense of agency and capacity and enact that. So for them it was taking it on and becoming co-researchers... they self-assembled and it was them learning it and then self-implementing it and taking on these roles to the point where my role completely transformed as well. So at the start I was much more... giving and teaching them the tools through quick master classes then it was like now you go off and self implement that. So for me it’s much more about process than output. And the outcome can be what you learn from the process. It doesn’t necessarily need to be a physical output. The films are an output but I think the films themselves shouldn’t be seen in isolation, away from this [gesturing the rest of the exhibition]... what it’s grounded in.’ PoE: ‘Could I ask you what your view is... I’m just interested really... about the relationship between Participatory Design um... and educational research?’ Marianne: ‘I think um... Participatory Design for me... there’s lots of different words that are used within design with the essence of what Participatory Design is... so like Co-design, Co-creation, User-centred Design... so there’s all these different words but for me when I say Participatory Design, I am drawing upon the heritage of what that is... it’s really important. So there’s a complete political agenda behind that...’ PoE: ‘ Yeah’ Marianne: ‘... and I think that applying that... so you asking the difference...’ PoE: ‘Well I mean... the reason I’m asking you is because I... I don’t have a background in Participatory Design but I use these methods

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	in what I call research-based innovation... working often in informal learning contexts with people of a range of ages erm... including some of this age group. Erm... and I come from a background of educational research which has got some sociological stuff in it but the erm... the stuff that I create is neither one nor the other because I view myself as an interdisciplinary researcher... so I'll blend whatever methods are to hand or interest me. So I use quite a lot of methods from counseling like psycho-drama erm... and other therapeutic methods as well. And I merge them together but they're not one, there not the other... they're something that's created out of putting these things together. So I just wondered... the boundaries? And so the boundaries... quite a lot of my PhD students are working in an interdisciplinary way as well... it creates all kinds of problems in finding external examiners for them because usually they'll be in one area or another. But the point I'm making is that what interests me is the fusion between the contributing areas into something that is no longer any one of them and it's not necessarily directly traceable back... or could easily be claimed... reclaimed by any one of them because it's moved beyond them into something else...' Marianne: 'Yeah.' PoE: 'And I'm just... what I'm really asking you is what sense do you have that's what's been going on here. You've been moving beyond the methods of Participatory Design and practice, which is very evident that it's there, you're clearly drawing on educational and sociological [inaudible]... but I call them social science research methods. You're clearly drawing on those but nor is it traditionally that either. Erm... it's highly interesting, it's highly creative... I just wondered where you felt you were sitting in relation to those disciplinary contributions to something that's clearly highly innovative, highly original and extremely interesting...' Marianne: 'I think... well I come to this from a Participatory Design background... that's what my Masters was based in and erm so... I ground this methodologically as speaking from a Participatory Design point of view which I think then... holding a mirror up to this... so I've grounded this project as a Participatory Design practitioner but then that's interesting because what does that					then contribute to the field of Participatory Design? I feel that the contribution that this study could make is very interdisciplinary and I draw on and talk about how this could be erm... contribute the fields of education, policy and design research communities. And I think that actually I have worked in a very interdisciplinary way, and obviously with the PhD itself, your training to be a researcher so perhaps then after this I'll go on then to work in this interdisciplinary way. I went to Sociology because a lot of the studies which contextually ground this study come from the social sciences. So I went to that, drawing on some of their methods within this to give it almost a bit more research rigor. I think I need to think about and clarify that a bit more...' PoE: 'It might not be easy to clarify it... that's what I've found. I mean I've worked with computer scientists on interdisciplinary projects like this who then said to me at the end well so what? And you they kind of... some people simply cannot get their head around it so that's something I think you'll properly have to... always have to deal with them with this kind of work. The boundaries become blurred... interestingly.' Marianne: 'Yeah.' SB: 'I think at the beginning of this... this discussion today you talked a lot the studies that in NEET, this kind of NEET sphere if you like, being grounded in quantitative data and I think it would be useful to kind of flag up and highlight what this process and your journey through it um... you know where that can go in the future for future researchers because there is obviously this tension between you know getting quick data and large data sets and then quite time intensive and resource intensive erm... methods that don't necessarily give you a quick snap shot of what such a project like yours could do. So where is that going and also how are the voices of the young people...' PoE: 'Yeah.' SB: '... coming out.'

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	PoE: ‘Don’t loose contact with those voices. I was talking to somebody yesterday who styles himself as a world-class researcher in the field of quantitative studies with this age group... a guy called  [name omitted]... he’s a college of mine...’ Marianne: ‘Oh yeah!’ PoE: ‘And I said to him that there are some major holes in your work... what’s missing? And he said the deep qualitative studies of subjectivity, which is what you’ve got here.’ SA: ‘I think also, and I’ve nicked this from SPR, the stories above the stats, particularly in relation to policy as well. So those voices are made powerful...’ PoE: ‘Yeah... and important.’ SA: [indicating towards to SPR] ‘... it’s timely for these things to be foregrounded beyond the statistics because the statistics don’t reveal the issues.’ Marianne: ‘And it’s also not saying that quantitative is bad. It’s more like ...’ DoDR: ‘There’re different aims surely?’ Marianne: ‘Absolutely there are different aims but a lot of the literature, even on... if you go to the ScotGov website, a lot of the kinda literature that I have been trolling through for the last three years... it is heavily statistics and heavily stratified in terms of being able to get groups into different groups for services to then be aimed at. But then there’s no real insight into the kind of complexities that a lot of young people are facing... and when I talk about the layers of deprivation... it’s different for each individuals, it’s different things that are affecting them...’ SA: ‘Yeah.’ Marianne: ‘... and also it’s not understanding fundamental things...’	researching at the micro level	challenging current practices		making research less abstract and based on real human experiences through a macro lens: not understanding the root and route of the problem	like how it feels... to live like this. Their social cultural practices, it’s like you’re not really getting an understanding of that. And this adds to the complexity and also what’s kind of informing those...’ DoDR: ‘So it’s going beyond the economic concerns?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah...’ DoDR: ‘The interpersonal... the sociological?’ Marianne: ‘... yeah and I think there’s a real need to and while policy... well new policy in the last couple of years are really trying to address these issues for young people and there really to help with transitions and with you know... the Curriculum for Excellence and all these other difference initiatives that are really trying to get people into apprenticeships and all this stuff... and you know it’s like again it’s a case of yes your addressing things but the onus is placed in reconditioning... we’re gonna change the curriculum and then your gonna become better citizens. Well why don’t we talk these people and ask about the factors... it’s not about removing the onus...’ DoDR: ‘So would you say your not looking to get a snap shot with your research but rather you’re looking to transform a given situation and tell others how they might go about doing the same thing in other contexts?’ Marianne: ‘Sure. I think it’s about going in there and doing youth engagement that really is engaging young people and actually get something that is very authentic and is something which lets young people represent themselves and also tell the stories they want to tell and foreground what they think is important.’ DoDR: ‘Hmmm.’ Marianne: ‘And also then... and I am not saying this is a perfect study because I’m still figuring out what to say if someone was to ask what would people in policy take away from this?’

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	DoDR: ‘Yeah... but it’s a how to. It’s the most obvious thing though... she learned these things... we need to flag those.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SA: ‘But we’ve been in rooms in government and had conversations and it was like a light bulb moment when they asked us what could we do. So this was the director of youth and families for Scottish Government and we said well talk to the children... it was as though he has never ever... they’d never thought that that might be...’ SB: ‘And I think about your exhibition like... the voices...’ DoDR: ‘Hmmm.’ SA: ‘Yeah.’ SB: ‘... I think the voices of the people, their direct quotes that I think...’ PoE: ‘Foreground...’ SB: ‘...foregrounding those in the exhibition so that you can clearly kind of see what people are saying. I know you’ve done it... tried to do it but I think the voices are so important because where else are they going to get...’ DoDR: ‘Even if you read out a transcript or something like that...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah we talked about doing something like that with getting voices overs or something like...’ SA: ‘Yeah.’ Marianne: ‘... that could be effective.’ PoE: ‘Yeah... you could put voice overs in alongside some of these films.’					DoDR: ‘In headphones or something?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SA: ‘Or have listening posts.’ DoDR: ‘Yeah... that would be really nice.’ SB: ‘Or vinyls on the walls where you’ve like clusters of quotes in a sphere or something representing like erm... a particular time of the... the project.’ DoDR: ‘Five or six key statements that really impacted or had impact on like the value...’ SA: ‘And the one’s... some of these quotes are quite visceral... you know you feel that you know... your body responds to it so it’s finding those quotes and then I think almost trying to think about it as a monograph... the way that you talk through it... they’re could be an accompanying book that is the exhibition, and that would go with the thesis...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SPR: ‘Just going back to the policy thing, the question a lot of people will ask is what’s scalable about this, you know, you can’t repeat what you’ve done in every situation so what are the key dimensions and qualities in what you have done that is scalable? And I think also a later question is of limited resources and what policy makers try and do things... like one thing that will hit a number of individuals... you know the best value but I think there is value in this in that the approach can address a range of problems. You don’t need a different policy for truancy, for eh... you know violence, for substance misuse. It’s an approach that can be applicable to all of them.’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ SB: ‘I mean... I think that’s really important what your saying and it

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	makes me think about the value of this kind of an approach, not for particular groups of pupils that have been labeled but it's something that should potentially be embedded into a curriculum for all young people... to experience something like this which has... that has... that keys into their aspirations for what they're doing now, where they want to go, where they're seeing their futures... a sort of blend of visual arts curriculum plus entrepreneurial skills, plus eh... various...' DoDR: 'To make a statement in relation to the possibility of something...' SB: '... that everybody has an opportunity to experience this. It's not not just you know... a group that's been labeled as the special group...' Marianne: 'No.' SA: 'You could see how easily... the model box really represents that's, how you could that in prisons. You know... you could see... so in answer to that it's the method but also, and I think part of your final reflections in the thesis, one of the qualities that you bring... what's unique about you and your ability to preform this because as we know a lot of people can't do it... a lot of Participatory Design is just actually applied onto people under the guise of participation and a lot of people think participation is because you've got a few people in a room together...' Marianne: 'Yeah definitely.' SPR: 'I think social research... back to the earlier conversation how really your, in these kinds of approaches, your method should be true to the context and nature of the thing you're looking at which is what I think you've caught. But so many sociologists... and you're talking up sociologists, end up doing interviews or focus groups because that's their particular methodological predilection...' SA: 'Yep.'	transformative opportunity through participatory research projects verifies	legacy	challenging current practices research based on a research relationship	be explicit about being an inter-disciplinary practitioner sterile research ethical/ relational contribution	SPR: '... so they end up getting reality to fit their methodological framework and you've been brave enough to go out of your comfort zone and use Direct Animation erm... and maybe your allowed to do that in an art school but in some Sociology departments they would be saying but she's not a filmmaker... she's an ethnographer and you have to stick to your level or...' Marianne: 'Niche?' SPR: 'Yeah niche.' PoE: 'And that's one of the reasons why I often say to my own students make sure to make some statement about the interdisciplinary nature of this work so that its erm... explicit.' Marianne: 'Yeah definitely...' DoDR: 'Well presumably in Visual Sociology and Visual Anthropology there's been discussions around how this is a difficult thing to do and engaging with people can be problematic and...' Marianne: 'Yeah... surprisingly a lot of the research I've read, particularly around participatory video is a lot of sociologists talking about how amazing it is... the accounts of it are very optimistic... they talk about it and it was all very... well they don't talk about any issues and I go back to the complexities of trust and rapport...' DoDR: 'Hmmm.' Marianne: '... it will say things like we did this project and we established trust and rapport... through filmmaking we established trust and rapport. Well what do you actually mean by that?' DoDR: 'What did you do?' Marianne: 'What did you actually do? And for me it was almost quite an invisible process... it wasn't really ever explicitly stated and it was something that just very quietly developed in terms of very little gestures such as calling me by my name, in terms of ...'

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	taking part, in terms of me being like a passenger with them on the journey for the first project particularly where I was able to share in all their emotions with it. So I got to go on the field trip with them and I remember being really nervous as well because I wanted us to win too and I remember sitting there waiting to hear. It's the taking part... participating within their practices first of all...' taking part in their practices sharing/ person-centred sharing/ person-centred taking part in their practices SA: 'Yeah.' verifies Marianne: '... I think that's so important. Having a good while, a good four months of doing that before I was like do you wana try this [Direct Animation] then? This is what I'm bringing to this scene.' incremental/ incubation period participants then taking part in my practice SA: 'Just going back to that Visual Sociology thing as well... I think it's part of... I find that people who are not trained visually are very self-congratulatory as though they've almost created visual arts themselves and are very erm... demeaning to people who have participated if it doesn't confer to what they think they had in their head in how it was going to turn out. So I've seen presentations where a group were given video cameras and the guy spent ten minutes apologising for the quality because the folk couldn't work the cameras properly...' PoE: 'Hmmm.' SA: '... so what you're doing is...' DoDR: 'Seems to contradict what should motivate...' SA: '...the absolute converse of that in the sense of you weren't looking for them to create masterpieces...' process over output Marianne: 'No.' SA: '... you had no aspired aesthetic. It was the form that they were taking and in participation that was of interest rather than of an applied aesthetic and I think it is an interesting play between people who are visually trained are more often accepting of that and can see the beauty in the crude mark making and the authenticity of that' process over output process over output	reciprocity of practices equally transformed verifies		authenticity not perfect but genuine research artefacts visually impactful responding to contextual limitations	rather than well I want to perform and look like a... you know?' false agendas Marianne: 'Yeah.' DoDR: 'But I think on that, your creation is fantastic. So from things that are quite simple and rudimental as you say and, you know, you're not apologising for it. You've made this really impactful visual suite of artefacts that you walk into the room and it's amazing you know. You're completely over taken by the colour and so on.' verifies experiential multi-sensory PoE: 'It's very very difficult to actually do something creative in a situation as constrained as the one you were in.' verifies SA: 'Hmmm.' PoE: 'I know because I've tried it many times... that's what I've found. So I think you know, celebrating as you [to Brian] say, the amazing creative energy that there is there...' verifies experiential DoDR: 'Uh huh.' PoE: '...and er... making sure that stays foregrounded is just crucial.' DoDR: 'Have you discussed that at all in terms of your creation of this because you mention it briefly when you say I had to go away and make something of this...' SB: 'Yeah cause you were really constrained by time weren't you?...' contextual limitations Marianne: 'Yeah.' SB: '... in terms of like the sessions that you had. I mean it was very time bounded wasn't it, so it wasn't like you could spill out or anything...' contextual limitations Marianne: 'No. There were lots of challenges... with the context so eh... So I think one of the reasons I wanted to make the model box was to also show the eh... intimacy of the classroom. So it was' contextual limitations visual representation physical limitations

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	very small for the number of people. I would get in early to move the desks around so I could set up the workshop...' physical limitations physically stage collaboration SB: 'Not a lot of space...' physical limitations Marianne: 'Yeah, not a lot of space and then that becomes a site for conflict.' physical limitations PoE: 'Hmmm.' Marianne: 'There was a lot of conflict that would happen between the pupils... I mean that was also a challenge to sometimes deal with. But that's when I would lean on the authority of the teacher and youth worker... for their authority to kind of... because I didn't want to be seen as an authority figure at all and I think a lot maybe at the start they found it difficult to talk to me. Maybe they were also trying to work out where I sat within this hierarchy...' gatekeepers involvement protect my role connotations uncertain of my position uncertain of my position PoE: 'Did you say anything about that to them... they must have asked...' Marianne: 'Of course, when I first started I introduced myself and I told them what I was doing... but I think it was a kind of implicit... because I'm older than them but I'm not as old as the teacher, perhaps the way I dress, you know, there're lots of factors that they could have found from the start difficult in terms of placing of me within all of this. They would constantly call me Miss and I would be like just call me Marianne. Another interesting thing was the teacher kept calling me an artist, she was like Marianne's an artist from the art school...' assumed association viewed as an adult - association with authority in school ambiguity ambiguity ambiguity/ assumption of roles [group laughs] Marianne: '... and I would be like no I'm not, I'm a designer. I think its funny because if you're not at the art school there can be the assumption that everyone is a fine artist... I don't know I take that as a compliment but erm...' having re-define myself ambiguity/ assumption of roles SB: 'But I think that bit about yourself is... you know how you	contextual constraints ambiguity in the classroom power hierarchy assumed roles		examining my agency whilst attempting to mobilise theirs	a reflexive approach agency in action adapting to irregular participation	negotiate these things and your own voice as you experienced it through the projects is really key...' acknowledge my own postionality verifies Marianne: 'Uh huh.' SB: '... alongside, you know, the evolution of the kid's voices from the start where, you know, they were quite sort of... you know weren't gelled as a group and weren't able to articulate their voices to the point where they got to this and they were assigning each other roles... taking the agency.' shared transformation social divides mobilised mobilised self-efficacy PoE: 'How many... I mean that's an interesting question to me as well because I'm thinking how many voices do you have in this? There is the researcher and there is a participant in the process alongside the young people you working with in this process... and then there's their voices and the multiplicity of them as well as the kind of... you know... but I suppose what I'm particularly asking you is how many of your voices are there in it?' Marianne: 'Yeah... so I had 15 young people in the class, but that would also change on a weekly basis. I had a core group of about 12 who would be regulars and there were kind of drifters who would come now and away...' transient transient PoE: 'Yeah.' Marianne: '... and then of course there was the youth worker and the teacher, and I also interviewed them as well and also then there was my own reflections...' acknowledge my own postionality PoE: 'Are they within the thesis?' Marianne: 'Yeah. So I've written the thesis from the first-person point of view...' acknowledge my own postionality PoE: 'Yeah all right.' Marianne: '... and it's very much written as a narrative. And especially the case study chapter is pretty much the story of the

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	case study and I talk through it chronologically and identify the key significant moments... obviously I'm writing the thesis and one could say that I've chosen those because they were significant to me but I'm speaking from a point of view of being completely embedded within the single case study... PoE: 'Yeah.' Marianne: '... and perhaps maybe if I was to do it again, I could write it differently but for me it's... why I recognise that and I reflect on my own voice and presence as well...' PoE: 'Right.' Marianne: '... throughout it so I acknowledge a lot of tensions within that and reflectivity address issues... and yeah I think if any other researcher did this same study, it would be a completely study...' PoE: 'Hmmm.' Marianne: 'And I acknowledge that.' PoE: 'Yeah... uh huh.' SB: 'But this is interesting because it is a Participatory Design practice for youth engagement so anybody who's thinking they want to engage with and use... the first question that comes to mind is well how do you do it? How do you go about it? How do you...' Marianne: 'What I say a participatory practice for youth engagement essentially I think my kind of... what I'm saying my participatory practice is is not necessary prescribing this [indicating towards the films] as a method...' SB: 'No.' Marianne: '... what I'm saying is it was the process that we went on that was actually way more important...'	acknowledge my effects on the research how to explain a non prescriptive process			addressing the individual through addressing the collective method-ological contribution	SB: 'It's about the participatory nature of the study.' Marianne: '... exactly. So it's the practice of what we did which was transformative, and not the... the final outputs are great but that's not the meat of what was actually important...' PoE: 'Right... hmmm.' Marianne: '... and actually this [the final film] at the end went on to win second place in a competition but that was a subsequent... almost a...' PoE: 'Spin off really?' Marianne: 'Exactly, that was something...' SPR: 'I'm remembering a project I did a couple of years ago with a... a youth project that tried to get young people out of gangs and out of gang related activity. It dealt with young people as individuals and one of the tensions it had was that the gang, and sometime the young people didn't even realise they were in a gang, is that the police had labeled them a gang and the local community had a called them a gang but to them, they were just hanging around with their mates.... is that there was a real tension in that their mates got them into trouble but their mates were also they're source of support and identity and a lot of stuff you're talking about is about self presentation, I think speaks to a kind of practice where you work, not with the individual, but with the group. So in trying to move young people out of gangs and getting them to do things like play football and help their community, they will soon slip back, and the young people would say it themselves as well... you know I'll slip back into that group I get in trouble with. But this is a way of taking the whole group somewhere else you know? And that's really quite radical at the moment where we tend to treat things as individual problems and treat people at the individual level so erm...' SB: 'Yeah, that's interesting because in connecting with some of the stuff that you were talking about earlier in relation to the students that you work with... they were all presenting lots of difficult

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
behaviours as well weren't they?'  Marianne: 'Yeah...'  SB: 'You know... sort of disrupting the group and creative... there was creative tensions...'  Marianne: 'There was lots of tensions and politics...'  SB: '... and politics. In some ways the focus on the collaborative aspects perhaps... did that help with the dynamics?'  Marianne: 'I think it definitely helped to often... well when we started there was often... well the social dynamics, the majority of the class were boys and there were four girls in the group and one of these girls were completed targeted by the rest of the boys... they would all gang up on her and be quite aggressive with her and she, to be fair, would give it right back to them. It was escalate very quickly and erupt into these spats before they were dissolved very quickly by the teacher... but I think what was interesting particularly during the film making process, the actual process itself... their conflict was then focused on the process instead of personally attacking each other. So actually a lot of the kind of arguments they were having were then about the work... like I don't agree with what you're doing or how you're doing it like that ... you know. That became a little more healthier than throwing really aggressive abuse at each other where it was much more personally targeted, where as the creative nature... a lot more of the arguments were then targeted at the what we were doing as opposed to each other...'  PoE: 'Yeah.'  SPR: 'So you're using that energy and you're not trying to get rid of that energy but the energy is directed towards something...'  Marianne: 'Well it's through something...'  SPR: '...more positive.'	social dynamics social baggage brought into the fieldwork setting ostracised social conflict authority figure transformative channelled through creativity becoming positive tensions/ conflict becoming positive tensions/ conflict channelled through creativity becoming positive tensions/ conflict	process catalysing group cohension creativity became a conduit for channelling social tensions	transforming dynamics		creative conflict	Marianne: 'Yeah and it's actually it also showed they were invested in the method and cared about what they were doing... it was also healthier conflict than before when it was...'  SB: 'Negative.'  Marianne: 'Very negative.'  PoE: 'Hmmm.'  Marianne: 'And at times it would slip back into more personal conflict but it was interesting that a lot if the conflict was about what they were doing and not about each other and stuff that was happening outside of the class. They would bring in a lot of social baggage into the classroom... even what happened during that morning break would be brought in with them, which would then play out.'  SB: 'Can you just say something about erm... how the people came to think about the emotions of education...'  Marianne: 'So we were having a group idea generation session...'  SB: '... how did that happen?'  Marianne: '... we had a group idea generation session, there's a picture of it here [points to the case study timeline], so this was when I was approached by the teacher about the competition, so during this session we discussed ideas after I had presented the idea of entering the competition to them which they were all up for. So then I facilitated this group conversation, so I asked right what do you want to make this film about, what are the issues, what do you think is important, like what would you want to make this film about? And they were talking about... some other ideas that came up included school uniform and different learning styles but they through a vote the group decided to focus on the emotional phases of education. This was also because they thought this would work really well with this technique...'  SB: 'So they raised it?'

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Marianne: ‘Yes, Hailey, one of the girls, raised the point that they could talk about emotion through colour and they made that connection with colour and metaphor. We can use colour as a metaphor for emotion. And then essentially we had a whole phase of research where they made a timeline where they tracked the different phases...’ [PoD enters and joins the discussion] PoD: ‘Hi there.’ Marianne: ‘...different phases of their educational journey and then went round and interviewed each other to erm... gage emotions that were felt at the time and then conveyed that through a colour which was then translated onto the film.’ PoE: ‘So amazingly creative learning...’ SB: ‘So they then started to collectively talk about that?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah and interview each other and collect their own data...’ SB: ‘So they instigated the interviews amongst each other...’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh.’ SB: ‘... they took that one board themselves?’ Marianne: ‘Uh huh. So Hailey and Meghan took the lead and interviewed the groups of people...’ SB: ‘So spontaneously like...’ Marianne: ‘Yep, and then they got the information and put into this chart... they made a timeline... these are photographs of their post-it notes [pointing to the case study timeline] and then began assigning colours to it. So then the other participants were creating these kind of mood boards colour charts... I showed them	spontaneously conveyed through metaphor group mobilised research artefact research artefact research artefact intuitively implementing a research method analytically reflecting analytically reflecting intuitively implementing a research method self and group mobilisation self and group mobilisation research artefact research artefact	participants transformed their roles to co-researchers	agency transformed in action reciprocity	efficacy based on securing trust emotional responsibilities	examples of mood boards and suggested that this could be useful for gathering up and explaining the colours...’ SB: ‘I think this is a really interesting thing that you have properly highlighted but just to foreground the fact that they took this process on themselves as researchers...’ PoE: ‘Uh huh.’ SB: ‘... you know, they kind of got enough confidence and insight to this point where they got actually adopt an approach... a research approach...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SB: ‘... without you really having to prompt them to do... I think that’s amazing...’ PoE: ‘Hmmm.’ SB: ‘... that they actually had the foresight to that and take it on.’ PoE: ‘But what you’ve done is create the space... a protective space erm... and convince them that you were erm... genuine in this situation and then that creativity comes out in them...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ PoE: ‘...because that’s very similar to work SB and I... we found similar kinds of... the need for a protective space and develop some trust and then in that space loads of creative things can happen... and that’s so evident in your work. It’s very powerful.’ Marianne: ‘It was interesting, one of my first meetings with the classroom and Head teacher was... about the group that they thought who would possibly want to participate in this project, one of the key kind of things they were talking about was the idea of instilling routine and it’s also about reliability, so one of the key...’	research artefact transforming their own roles/ status self efficacy intuitively implementing a research method self efficacy intuitively implementing a research method my role secure based on trust based on trust feeling secure secure to take risks and experiment trustworthy feeling secure

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	PoE: ‘Uh huh.’ Marianne: ‘... traits they talked about teachers that they liked are teachers that they can rely on.’ PoE: ‘Hmmm.’ Marianne: ‘... so I think this reliability was also something I wanted to... as a single case study I was going to be embedded and was there for the same period every week so there was this predictability which I think is important in terms of this in terms of rapport and trust...’ PoE: ‘Yeah.’ Marianne: ‘... particularly trust. They know to expect me there. I think it’s the aspect of displaying reliability that would help to them to feel more invested in the project themselves....’ PoE: ‘Have you written about this?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah this is all in my field notes. I talk about this... it shows that I’m invested in them. It’s a kind of reciprocity and also bringing in all the supplies for everything...’ PoE: ‘Yeah.’ Marianne: ‘... and also making... with the class flag and making postcards of it so they got to keep one as well as giving to the school...’ PoE: ‘Brilliant.’ Marianne: ‘... I also made these DVD portfolios [presents the group with one] so they all got a DVD with all their films on it and a little portfolio. So it’s all instilling worth into everything to show that I’m invested in this project just as much as they are. So there are a lot of kind of little take-aways... it was like look this is your work, here it’s for you, have it. So there were a lot of things made and given to	embodied through my actions reciprocity ways to embody value			being able to visually communicate physical and tacit dimensions of the setting	them...’ PoE: ‘Yeah.’ SB: ‘You made a pack of postcards?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah [brings the pack over and passes round the group]. When I went back for the evaluation event I also wanted to give them... I had made a version of this timeline to gather reflections from them and I wanted them to write and draw on it but they just wanted to talk which was fine. But what I wanted to do was to give them a vision of this so they could have it as well...’ PoE: ‘Of course.’ Marianne: ‘... so I made a little comic book of all the model box images used in the timeline. And I also got all their artwork professionally printed on to postcards... just so they could have this [holds up pack of postcards].’ PoE: ‘Yup.’ Marianne: ‘... just any way of... they were also printed on nice, high quality card...’ SB: ‘Yeah.’ DoDR: ‘Is there much in the literature about this mode of presenting situations without actually representing people or showing photographs?’ Marianne: ‘To be honest, I kind of came to the idea of the model box a few months ago because I was really concerned about... obviously I’ve got my data mainly as field notes and I wanted to be able to visualise this narrative for the reader. And initially I thought about doing drawings for this but they weren’t communicating enough the physicality of the actual classroom setting... so yeah, I made the model box and I could set each scene...’

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	DoDR: ‘Yeah.’ Marianne: ‘... and then photograph it...’ DoDR: ‘It’s possibly [inaudible]... you don’t see this else where, it’s worth mentioning it ethically...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah! Ethically, yeah because that was also one of my challenges, they didn’t want to be photographed. It wasn’t until the interviews and with the young people who chose to be interviewed, did they consent to be audio recorded. But a part from that, there was no photographs or video taping, which made it really challenging.’ DoDR: ‘Yeah. And that represents...’ Marianne: ‘It tells the story but also suggests the physicality of the story in terms of the physical space itself and how that also really contributed and was a catalyst for a lot of tensions as well as like good stuff that happened as well.’ SPR: ‘I think it’s a really nice solution to it... a very common problem of how you maintain confidentiality and also, as you point out earlier, they’re still represented...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ PoE: ‘Yup.’ SPR: ‘... so they can still point to that particular one with the red hair and glasses and go [inaudible]...’ Marianne: ‘... as they can remember. So when I presented them back... it was a case of aw I remember that and I remember that, so we could talk about instances. So that final event where I showed them the timeline, that was two years after that first phase. So it was a long time ago, so its presenting stuff back to them that happened a year and a half ago...’	alternative ethical solution to documenting and reporting dual purpose: as a mode of reporting and as a recall tool to support critical reflection			paradox of Action Research consciousness raising participants recruited on my behalf	PoE: ‘There is literature about the use of avatars erm... about representation... you know you could connect in with that which is discussing the very issues you’re raising here of how you have some kind of distinctive representation whilst maintaining some protection for the individual.’ Marianne: ‘That sounds really interesting.’ PoE: ‘And identity comes into it, you know.’ DoDR: ‘In terms of them looking to see who they were...’ SPR: ‘I have to ask about Miss. Marsh’s quote there though and this kind of identity down there [indicated at the case study timeline], talking about not really knowing what XL means...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SPR: ‘... or what it stands for. And then we get a very clear description of what kind of kid ends up in XL and I’m just thinking about what the ethical challenges are there... you know if one of these kids came in and read that and suddenly realised why they were there.’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SPR: ‘... how to handle that.’ Marianne: ‘Well this has been something that I have been very conscious of throughout the whole of the study and in terms of how I’m going to present this back, because essentially I want the participants to be able to read the thesis if they wanted to. And we’ve [to SB] talked about this and what I’ve called my controversial stories... so there are a couple of stories that happened along the way that if they were to read back, could be problematic. But essentially in this case, the young people were chosen to be part of this group [the XL class] and through this process of selection they were interviewed. So the teacher and Head teacher identified this group for this study, and did that for me so they would have been

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	explained that before they joined as they had to interviewed...' PoE: 'Did anybody opt out?' Marianne: 'Opt out? Out of the... the was one boy who erm... he took part but barely participated in the workshops yet during the film competition presentation ceremony when we got out award in front of audience, he was one of the first to jump up and collect it. [Group laugh] And then interestingly during the interviews, he was the one who... well he had Asperges and a couple of the young people also had other learning challenges, but he was the one... he talked about at the end... Steven... it was actually a really nice moment where he asked at the end of his group interview, he asked if we would be doing this again. And I was confused, I said another interview? And he said no, more questions. And this was really the first time he had really engaged with me at all for the period of nearly a year...' PoE: 'Yeah.' Marianne: '... and I think that was because I was offering him a different form of engagement. So here we were in a much smaller group and at points it was pretty much a one to one conversation...' PoE: 'Yeah.' Marianne: '... and he obviously really engaged with that...' PoE: 'Yeah.' Marianne: '... where as this [indicating towards the filmmaking workshops] was much more like about the group...' PoE: 'Just couldn't cope with it.' Marianne: 'Yeah, so erm... yeah that was interesting.' PoE: 'Yeah.' Marianne: 'And going back to this interdisciplinary use of methods...					it allows you to provide different... I think it's important to be able to offer different modes of intervention and engagement...' PoE: 'Oh absolutely' SPR: 'Yeah.' Marianne: '... and also within the group, there was a girl who was basically mute for the whole project perhaps because of this group dynamic. She would though be fine to sit and work on her own but in terms of group conversations, she would never participate. I think that was a lot down to social dynamics going on with the group...' PoE: 'Yeah.' Marianne: '... and she didn't want to be interviewed either.' PoE: 'No.' Marianne: 'So clearly there's a reluctance there... so I think it's about being able to offer different platforms...' PoE: 'Yeah... absolutely. I mean that fits with stuff we've done as well. I'm thinking of young people who erm... have no... the one who took us on a tour of an island [talking about his own research project], she had taken on an avatar and the avatar bore no relation to their actual appearance... said that was the first time she had full control over how she looked and that was really important to her...' Marianne: 'Uh huh.' PoE: 'And then took us on a tour of the whole island... loads of kinda insights and observations that you just wouldn't have got from her in any other way so I think having a range of possibilities is just absolutely...' SB: 'Yeah to allow someone...' PoE: 'To allow for different forms of creative expression.'

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ PoE: ‘It’s one of the most fascinating things about this.’ in line with the participants’ preferences verifies [pause] PoD: ‘I just gatecrashed your meeting here [laughing].’ Marianne: ‘Oh no  [name omitted - PoD] You’re vey welcome!’ PoD: ‘Hi, I’m [name omitted] and I’m quite interested and I just wanted to meet you [indicated towards PoE] actually. And I just wanted to contribute something... I was at a meeting with the Scottish Government yesterday and they were talking about attainment, you’ll know all about this [to SPR] as well...’ PoE: ‘Yeah [name omitted] is a colleague of mine who is involved in all of this.’ PoD: ‘Alright... and somebody was just talking to me yesterday about we erm... need to fit our expressive tools for kids at different ages and develop identity and to be able to participate in education and in society and so... well here I come in here today and there’s lots of different things you have been doing. I just wanted to er... soak it in a little bit and I’ll come back later but maybe we could have a little seminar around this topic... PoE: ‘Hmmm yeah.’ PoD: ‘... it could be quite interesting and just because erm... it would be good to develop it a bit more widely.’ PoE: ‘Yeah. Absolutely. I have a friend called  [name obmitted] who runs an outfit called  [name omitted] social entrepreneurship and some of this... he’s works on  [name of street omitted] I think. He’s got an office there. He would be fascinated to get a glimpse of this [the exhibition]! And work with you on it!’ verifies verifies Marianne: ‘Uh huh. Well that sounds brilliant.’	five phase case study offered different ways of participating		contribution	addressing the individual through addressing the collective transferring transformation	PoD: ‘Sounds great. Yeah... the idea about policy design. How could you design policy was what our discussion was about yesterday. For things like social inclusion, participation and identify formation...’ SPR: ‘Yeah.’ PoE: ‘Yeah a seminar would be a good idea!’ PoD: ‘It would quite hood just to open up and have a chat about it.’ Marianne: ‘Definitely.’ SPR: ‘Because this is about creating social inclusion, not starting with the individual but by starting with the group...’ PoD: ‘And that’s quite different... yup.’verifies SPR: ‘... you know. If you do that with a community...’ PoE: ‘Well you create a community.’ Marianne: ‘Hmmm.’ PoD: ‘Yup, so it’s completely transferable as well.’verifies SB: ‘You’re creating a research community!’ PoD: ‘Yes.’ SB: [laughing] And they all became researchers!’ PoD: ‘Researchers of their own lives.’ PoE: ‘Yeah... thanks so much Marianne.’ Marianne: ‘Thanks so much for coming!’ SB: ‘Well done.’

verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures	basic premise codes	nascent themes	compound themes	compound themes	nascent themes	basic premise codes	verbal/ non verbal cues and gestures
	Marianne: ‘Thank you!’ SPR: ‘Will there be an output that’s somewhere between this and the actual thesis?’ Marianne: ‘Yes. So there’ll be... I’m going to have the thesis with portfolio embedded within it. And I’m going to do a kind of monograph from the final Viva exhibition so it might be that the monograph will be a bit more easily available...’ SB: ‘Yeah... it’s having something to present to present in the library but also if you didn’t get to the exhibition you can still get a sense of the exhibition from the monograph.’ SPR: ‘Sure.’ SB: ‘Because you can’t obviously...’ Marianne: ‘Experience it.’ SB: ‘... experience it. You need a format that...’ PoD: ‘What were you thinking of?’ Marianne: ‘We were going to make a monograph, like get erm... take really nice photography of it and create a book and maybe doing some filming of it and put in a DVD...’ SB: ‘And some pull outs?’ Marianne: ‘Yeah some pull outs would be nice.’ SPR: ‘Yeah I think something for researchers, you know. So we have briefing papers and short films and...’ Marianne: ‘Yeah.’ SPR: ‘I think the community engagement people in our work would see this and you know... if they get a chance to see it.’					Marianne: ‘Yeah well I’ll need to think about some kind of...’ PoE: ‘I’ll mention your stuff to Antony Gerard.’ Marianne: ‘That would be brilliant, thank you. And thank you all so much for your time, you’ve all be very generous and this has been really really helpful so thank you so much.’ End

Collated Distilled Themes:

